New City Council President DeCristofaro Pledges To Work With Sheets

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro was sworn-in as the new City Council president, pledging to work closely with the James Sheets administration to preserve and improve the quality of life in Quincy.

DeCristofaro, who was unanimously elected Council President, also said he will continue to address what he referred to as "detrimental" issues to the entire city: the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and Clean Harbors, Inc.

"With regard to the MWRA and Clean Harbors, these are two situations that are detrimental not only to Ward 2 but to the entire city of Quincy and the South Shore.

"Be assured that I will continue to do all that I can to protect the health and well-being of all of our citizens," he said.

DeCristofaro, who succeeds Councillor Patricia Toland as president, called his election "a distinct honor and privilege." He also thanked his fellow councillors for their vote of confidence, adding, "It will be both challenging and rewarding to work with them."

The new president noted that the council begins its new session with two members: Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio.

"I am pleased to welcome them and hope they will enjoy their years on the council as much as I have," said DeCristofaro, who was first elected to the council in 1981 and is beginning his fifth two-year term.

"I am grateful to the people of Ward 2 for re-electing me to represent them and I will continue to address their concerns to the very best of my ability."

After taking the oath of office from City Clerk John Gillis, Sheets, in a 20-minute inaugural address acknowledged tough times are ahead mostly because of financial restraints but added through hard work and unity, Quincy will successfully meet the challenges ahead.

"We will search for solutions to our economic problems. We will grapple creatively with those quality of life issues.

"As the old mariner would say, whether we succeed or fail will depend, not on the force of the gale, but the set of the sail. Not on the intensity of our problems but on our response to them.

"We will succeed because we have learned the secret of leadership -- that the hopes for our future rests not on the grandness of our plans but the character of our people... We will succeed because we know that trust is more important than the exercise of power, that leadership must be conscientious and accountable, because we will listen before we act.

"We will succeed because we will drink at the well-spring of public life -- caring about others. Let us begin together right now," the new mayor told spectators inside the Quincy Vocational-Technical Gymnasium.

Sheets, who succeeds four-term Mayor Francis X. McCauley, who was not a candidate for re-election, announced several courses of action to deal with a projected $13.5 million deficit in fiscal 1991 and to improve the quality of life here.

Regarding finances, Sheets said he will:

- Suggest sources of new revenue but was unspecific as to what these sources will be. He also hinted that new revenue sources might not be enough and therefore budget cuts may be necessary.

- Issue an executive order freezing the filling of all vacant positions as an additional cost saving measure.

Sheets, who said cutting the budget by $13.5 million would have a "catastrophic impact" on all departments and services, said he will not recommend a Prop. 2½ override.

In addition, he said his administration will "isolate" Quincy Hospital and the West Quincy landfill which he called "two additional sources of fiscal difficulty." Last year, the hospital had a $3.2 million deficit while the city has been court-ordered to pay $4 million to cap the landfill this year.

"We cannot, and will not, allow further deficits," place his recommendations regarding the hospital's future before the City Council within the next three months. He also noted that his administration is "looking seriously" at using the landfill for passive recreation.

Confident that budget problems will be resolved, Sheets pledged to address Quincy's quality of life issues such as proper zoning, proper police and fire protection and health concerns.

In this area, Sheets said he will:

- Instruct Planning Director Richard Meade to "identify the process through which we must go in order to

Firefighters Ratify New Contract

The Firefighters Union has voted to ratify a new pay contract.

The Firefighters Union has been without a contract for more than two years.

The new contract, voted by a wide margin of 155-16, calls for retroactive pay increases as follows:

Three percent increase on July, 1987, a two percent increase on July of 1988, a six percent increase on January, 1989, and another six percent increase effective Jan. 1, 1990.

The new contract will expire June 30 of this year.

The contract also includes additional payments for longevity, clothing allowances, holiday benefits, and educational credits.

Mayor Elect James Sheets said he is happy with the new contract.

"I am pleased that the firefighters have ratified the contract," he said, "and certainly, one of my first duties as Mayor will be to bring the appropriate order before the City Council that will enable the firefighters to be paid the money that's due them. It's been a long and difficult time for them and I am very happy that going into my administration that that issue has fundamentally been resolved. I'm sure they're very happy."

Former Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday morning that "the bulk of the money" for the Firefighters Union has been set aside in a special reserve fund over the years.

"There is well over a million dollars in that account," McCauley said, "and that should take care of most of it...so it won't have an adverse financial effect on the city at this time."

McCauley To Receive National Financial Leadership Award

For helping the city regain its financial footing, Mayor Francis McCauley will be honored as this year's winner of the Mayor's Financial Leadership Award, a nationwide program that recognizes sound and innovative fiscal management of municipal governments.

He will receive the award during the winter meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors in January, which, along with New York-based AMBAC Indemnity Corp., sponsors the annual competition, currently in its fourth year.

Quincy received the highest honor among America's smaller cities, those with populations under 150,000.

McCauley was recognized for his emphasis on Quincy's investment portfolio and his desire to cooperate with the private sector during a downturn in the city's financial history.

Conceived in 1986, the Mayor's Financial Leadership Award honors mayors who have set financial management as a priority in their administration—as evidenced by the introduction and management of sound fiscal practices, as well as a mayoral commitment to strengthening fiscal integrity within municipal governments.

With city finances floundering when he took office in 1982, McCauley embarked on a plan to restore Quincy's financial status. Under his leadership, utilizing new revenue sources became intrinsic to Quincy's financial recovery.

For example, Quincy collected more than $5 million in delinquent property taxes and oversaw the sales of unused city assets.

McCauley also established a capital outlay program to eliminate a backlog of equipment and building repair needs in city departments. He also introduced a sewer user fee plan which qualified Quincy for state and federal funds for new and existing sewer projects.

In addition, the mayor established a data processing department to computerize financial records and restructured the budget and revenue procedures to provide more accurate forecasting and better control. Several departments were also reorganized and consolidated.

During the past eight fiscal years, the city budget and non-property tax revenue accounts were in surplus amounting to more than $20 million. During this time, the free-cash deficit was eliminated and a surplus ($8.2 million now) was realized.

McCauley said the award also recognizes the work and effort by the City Council and city departments.

Ward 3 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 3

Registered Democrats in Ward 3 will hold a caucus Saturday, Feb. 3 at 2 p.m. to elect delegates to the 1990 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Ward 3 will elect 12 delegates and four alternates equally divided between men and women to send to the convention. The apportioned number of delegates has been allocated on the basis of a formula giving equal weight to the Democratic Party registration and the average vote for Democratic candidates in the last general elections for governor and president for which figures were available at the time delegate tabulations were prepared.

Chairman John Lydon Jr. will call the caucus at Granite Place, 125 Granite St., Quincy. The caucus is open to all registered Democrats, persons ineligible to register and media representatives. The only persons eligible to participate in any portion of the caucus are those who are registered Democrats in the ward or town as of Dec. 29, 1989. There will be no absentee or proxy voting.

Candidates for delegate and alternate must also be present, voting and give his or her written consent to be nominated and that nomination must be seconded by two persons at the local caucus.

All ballots will be written and secret. Those candidates receiving the greatest number of votes on the first ballot will be elected.

Each candidate will be allowed to make a two-minute speech and to distribute on his her behalf one sheet of paper listing qualifications and ideas.

Slate-making is allowed, but no special preferences shall be given to slates. There is no quorum requirement for the caucus.

There will be no admission or expense charge at the caucus, although donations may be solicited.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, philosophical persuasion or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited.

Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed in writing with the Compliance Review Commission, c/o the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 45 Bromfield St., Boston, MA 02108 no later than Feb. 5, 1990.

Elected School Committee Vice-Chairman

Schools Must Address Social Inadequacies Says Santoro

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Frank Santoro, unanimously elected vice-president of the Quincy School Committee during Tuesday's inauguration ceremonies, said cooperation, respect and support from the entire community is needed to meet the educational challenges of the 1990s.

In his acceptance speech, Santoro pointed out that public schools in the 1990s must address not only education but also social inadequacies. With Quincy facing a $13.5 million deficit, Santoro noted that the new decade brings great demands on teachers and the school system.

"When looking at the children of the 90s, not only are we looking at students who need to learn what we had to but we are also looking at students who need to learn what many of today's families and society never taught them. Schools of the 90s must address not only education but also the social inadequacies and they must do it with budgets that do not stay in step with the problems.

"We would agree that the teacher is the primary source of our children's learning, yet since Proposition 2 and a half, this state has laid off over 13,000 of them."

Continuing, Santoro said, "In the year ahead, we will be faced with contract negotiations with no money to give. Our school facilities could use $14 million of repair. And PTO's are supplementing text and supply orders through fundraising.

"Yes, the demands of the 90s will be great on teachers and our school system. That is why we call upon the entire city for its assistance. Input from all aspects of the community is needed, wanted and valued.

"Elected officials, business leaders, senior citizens and all citizens of Quincy need to join parents and teachers in this drive. Many events this past year have enhanced this goal: the march on City Hall made education a political issue; Supt. Dr. (Robert) Ricci's business linkage and vocational education strategies have enlightened business interaction; the continued support from the City Council and the City-Wide Parent Council are all included in the initiatives that must continue and be joined by every citizen of Quincy," he said.

Santoro then called upon every citizen to ask: "How can I help bring education into the 90s? What can I do to guarantee that every child feels wanted and learns something new everyday?"

"Together, we must embrace and lead our leaders and our children into this new decade."

Santoro also welcomed Mayor James Sheets, who will serve as chairman of the School Committee, and newly elected members, Mary "Jane" Powers and Ronald Mariano.

"It is with you that I and the other committee members call upon for your help so that we may bring our school system into the 1990s," he said.

Santoro, who accepted his new position with great pride, also acknowledged several outgoing members and thanked them for their support, years of service and devotion.

"I am honored to have served with the late Chris Kennedy, Peg Nigro, Bob Jarnis and Frank McCauley. They should all be commended for the many hours they have given the children of Quincy."

Keep Path To Mailbox Clear Of Ice And Snow

The U.S. Postal Service asks area residents to clear ice and snow from walkways and steps leading to their mailbox so that letter carriers will be able to deliver their mail in a safe and timely manner this winter.

Letter carriers experience a high incidence of injuries resulting from slips, trips and falls when icy and snowy conditions prevail. Many of these accidents could be prevented if walkways and steps were shoveled, salted or sanded.

A safe, clear pathway not only benefits your letter carrier, but also your family, friends and other visitors to your home.

Readers Forum Praise For Cerasoli, Post Audit Committee

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In recent years, under the chairmanship of Representative Robert A. Cerasoli of Quincy, the House Committee on Post Audit and Oversight has provided valuable service to the Legislature and the public. It is perhaps the single most public-orientated legislative committee whose goal is to promote more effective management of state government through performance evaluations conducted by the Committee's audit investigative bureau.

Requests for an House Post Audit review may come from a variety of sources; the 11-member Committee, the Bureau, other legislative committees, individual representatives or concerned citizens. Each year many new programs are initiated dealing with the problems facing the Commonwealth. State expenditures, as we all are aware, have escalated dramatically. Consequently, Post Audit's mission focuses on: "Are the funds being spent on these programs producing the desired results? Are there better ways to attack and solve the state's problems?"

Chairman Cerasoli has been both diligent and courageous in maintaining his committee's firm stay on course. Through Post Audit reports, government and the public were advised as to the frailties of the Massachusetts prison furlough system, the deterioration of the state's civil service system, exploitation of the 03 consultant system, abuse of special repair and confidential vehicle registration plates, inappropriate expenditures by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and many others. It should be further noted that these reports are usually accompanied by corrective legislation and data, or both, and have resulted in millions of dollars saved on behalf of taxpayers and ratepayers.

However, aggressive leadership in the political arena can often lead to ironic consequences. On the very evening that those House members...many of whom two years ago were unfamiliar with the 03 account...voted to curb excessive spending for consultants, they then attacked the messenger, cutting $163,000 from Post Audit's $975,000 budget. We believe this precipitous action is unwise and sends out the wrong signal. The purpose, as we understand it, of the House Post Audit and Oversight Committee in evaluating state programs, is to provide the Legislature with an analysis of what happened...why it happened...and what alternatives are available for future action.

Any contribution toward better management procedures in our state government should be supported, not disparaged by intemperate acts.

John Gatti, Jr.
Legislative Chairperson

The torch has been passed at City Hall.

Francis X. McCauley exited Tuesday after four terms as Quincy's chief executive. James A. Sheets entered and for how long a stay only time will tell.

Ominous fiscal times are forecast for the next two years and maybe longer. Sheets is coming into office at one of the toughest periods any new mayor has had to face.

McCAULEY

How many terms await him no crystal ball can tell. But Quincy voters traditionally give a new mayor a second term as long as he shows them he is (A) honest (B) he is trying. (C) and not only has intelligence but a dash of good old fashioned common sense to season it.

Sheets should qualify in all those categories.

Sometimes you can't help wonder why anyone would want to be mayor.

The mayor's office down through the years has proven a political dead end. Only one of Quincy's mayors has gone on to a high office. Charles Francis Adams was Secretary of the Navy under President Herbert Hoover. And he had the Adams family name going for him.

And from a popularity standpoint it's really all downhill.

If a mayor was elected unanimously, he would start losing ground the second day in office. The first time he said "no" to someone looking for a favor.

And, by the time he runs for re-election, he can count on at least 10,000 negative votes out there. Even George Washington would probably have 10,000 votes against him as a Quincy mayor running for re-election.

Frank McCauley came into office with a high reading on the applause meter. Going out, the needle has slipped somewhat.

In those eight years in the office where the buck stops period, McCauley like mayors before him, developed his share of critics. And, like mayors before him, gave, from time to time, cause — imagined or real — to criticize.

There are those, for example, who say he should have played hardball with General Dynamics over that $19 million tax settlement. They forget the court ordered him to settle up.

And there are those who say he should have taken the shipyard by eminent domain or in a joint venture with the private sector and developed it into a tax revenue bonanza.

This, they argue, would also have prevented the MWRA from grabbing off the shipyard and earmarking it for the sludge facility.

Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Passing The Torch

LEVY

But that's hindsight. No one dreamed that Paul Levy would one day sneak into town and snatch the yard and the hell with Quincy.

Some think McCauley should have tied Levy and Co. up in a straightjacket of legal knots they could never wiggle out of.

But, unfortunately, with the court ordering the cleanup of Boston Harbor, in what could have been a long and expensive run, that may not have worked. Whatever the MWRA wants, the MWRA will get. If not today, tomorrow. But Sheets says he will go to court and give it a try.

The tax settlement — a matter he inherited — the shipyard sale and the sludge facility were three of McCauley's major frustrations in office.

But, if he is remembered for them, he should also be remembered for his accomplishments.

The city's financial picture and credit ratings improved under him.

Although he has an image of a tight-wad who pinches pennies until Abe Lincoln turns blue, he established a good capital outlay program and spent $21 million for: school computers, eight pieces of new Fire Department equipment, communications equipment for both the Police and Fire departments, replacement of half of the police patrol car fleet each year, new snowplows, upgrading public works and forestry department equipment.

And besides that: $8 million on school refurbishing, plus a new police station, new hospital and a new animal shelter.

McCauley didn't mind spending money as long as the city could afford it and as long as it was for something really needed.

He is one of the few — if not the only mayor — who caught flak because he came up with a $10 million surplus two years ago. Special interests tried to get him to part with it. But he held on to it as though it was his life's savings.

That money, he insisted, was for a rainy day. Well, in case you have been on a slow boat to China and haven't seen the papers, it's fiscally raining like hell in Massachusetts and Quincy is in for some of the storm.

And, those $10 million bucks will help Quincy balance this year's fiscal budget through the end of June. The money will look good to Sheets.

McCauley was a banker and tried to run the city in a strict business-like manner.

To many he was cold and beyond warming up in the personality department.

But he could be warm and he could let his hair down among people he knew. His 60th birthday farewell to close friends and associates last week was an example when he came up with his own obituary. An hilarious spoof of his death at age 95 in the year 2025 while discharging.

Frank McCauley was an honest mayor. His administration was clean. He did what he thought was right though at times you may not have agreed with him. And he leaves the city in pretty good shape.

History, we think, will treat him well.

Text Of Mayor Sheets' Address

Following is the complete text of Mayor James A. Sheets' inaugural address.

The hopes and dreams, the objectives and goals of my administration can be summed up in the words of Sheldon Bennett, Pastor of The United First Baptist Church, the Church of Presidents, when he said of Quincy: "We want a city of greatness, not only in prosperity, but especially in spirit ... a city in which the spirit of brotherhood and sisterhood is strong ... a city that is not a city of hostility but of hospitality ... a city that forever remains a city of peace and light."

While these are goals of the spirit, they must form the foundation for all our endeavors. We cannot plan together unless we share our dreams together; we cannot build together unless we are willing to work together. We cannot be unified unless we trust one another; we cannot be successful unless we realize that we must share our success together. We cannot succeed unless we put our faith in the creator of all men and believe we are a nation and a people of destiny. That we are moral keepers of a sacred public trust.

The pathway to the future for our city will not be easy, for we live in both the best of times and the worst of times. In the best of times because we are here to eight years of sound economic planning, management and growth. The worst of times because we are here to the state's economic blundering and confusion and to a philosophical malaise in which the most fundamental values of our people, namely the right to a sound public education and the right to be safe and secure in their person and property are in jeopardy.

In this year's city budget alone, we face a 10 million dollar revenue shortfall. This deficit is the result of a state cut in local aid of 32 million dollars; it is the result of the failure to provide an average 2 million dollar increase in local aid. It is the result of an unexpected and unplanned 2 million dollar increase in employee health insurance costs. It is also the result of spiraling MWRA assessments as well as increases in worker's compensation costs. All of these costs are fixed and beyond this city's control.

Fortunately, because of frugal management in the McCauley administration, we are hopeful that our surplus of free cash will cover this shortfall, and that we will end this fiscal year on June 30th with a balanced budget.

However, the outlook for the 1990-1991 budget, which takes effect on July 1 of this year, is grim. By all projections, we face a budget deficit of $13,500,000. There will be no surplus to help us, and this projected deficit does not include any newly negotiated employee raises. A straight reduction of the 1990-1991 budget by $13,500,000 would have a catastrophic impact on all city departments and services but especially on education, fire and police.

Very soon, I will present to the City Council my recommendations for meeting this fiscal crisis. Those recommendations will not include a suggestion to override Proposition 2½. They will include suggested sources for new revenue. We must realize that even these new revenue streams may not be enough to cover the deficit and that budget cuts may be necessary.

I will also immediately issue an executive order freezing the filling of all vacant positions as an additional cost saving measure.

In light of the fiscal shortfall, we have already been working hard over the past six weeks to isolate two additional sources of fiscal difficulty. Quincy Hospital and the court-ordered capping of the city landfill which will cost $4,000,000. Under no circumstances can we allow Quincy Hospital or the landfill to negatively impact our 1990-1991 budget. The hospital deficit for last year was $3,200,000. The projected deficit for this year is $2,000,000. We cannot, and we will not, allow further deficits. Within the next three months, I will be placing my recommendations concerning the future of Quincy Hospital before the City Council. As for the landfill, we are looking seriously at the use of the site for passive recreation. We would keep it open space, but use the funding for constructing the recreational facility to finish the 4 million dollar capping of the landfill.

If we are to meet these economic challenges, we must meet them together. The next two years are going to be extremely difficult. Our ability to work together, our creative talents, our willingness to sacrifice, all will be tested constantly. We must not allow a budget crisis to become a crisis of the spirit; we must not allow a revenue crisis to become a crisis of resolve. We must not lose our confidence in each other nor our willingness to work together for a greater common good.

While these fiscal problems are painful and real, we will successfully resolve them and they will pass into history. Their character is fleeting and temporal. The truly lasting issues are the quality of life issues. They are not temporal and fleeting but last for generations affecting our children and our children's children. These legacies of importance, include sound education, clean air, clean water, neighborhoods whose quality of life is adequately protected by proper zoning and proper police and fire protection. These legacies build cities and nations that form character and ensure the future of all our tomorrows.

It is to these ends that my administration is dedicated. We intend to take the following actions: First, it is important that our neighborhoods be protected from overdevelopment and poor development. Good, well-planned and properly located development is integral to a healthy, growing city. Bad development destroys neighborhoods, adds to traffic woes and encourages further bad development. To protect the integrity of our neighborhoods, I am instructing our planning director, Richard Meade, to identify the process through which we must go in order to rezone the city and then activate that process. Further, I will, be executive order, create a planning review board, which will meet bi-weekly to evaluate all proposed new development and determine its impact on city services including water, sewer, schools, drainage and traffic control. That board shall consist of the Planning Director, Building Inspector, Commissioner of Public Works, Commissioner of Public Health, Traffic Engineer, Mayor and President of the City Council or his designee.

Second, we have already begun to plan our "Adopt-A-Park Program." It is my intention to create an annualized, private-sectored fund to help maintain, repair and expand our park system. This will require special legislation in order to roll over unexpended funds from year to year for the same park use. The "Adopt-A-Park Program" will supplement the McCauley "Adopt-And-Island" program and both will become part of our overall beautification program for the city. That program is being crafted and will be implemented by my Executive Secretary, Tom Koch.

Third, in order to ensure environmental safety, we are going to continue our fight against clean harbors. Bernice Mader will head Quincy's Environmental Task Force which is our major planning mechanism in the fight against Clean Harbors. I would like to publicly commend David Smith for the outstanding job he has done as chairman of the task force. Without his prior contributions, the road ahead would be much more difficult.

Fourth, the battle against the MWRA will continue. The city of Quincy will file a lawsuit against the MWRA before the February 12th deadline. We intend to vigorously pursue the MWRA in court with the objective of preventing them from using the permanent sludge treatment facility at General Dynamics. Such facilities should never be constructed in dense, urban areas such as Quincy Point. They create odors, result in lower property values and, in general, discourage meaningful growth and change. The city of Quincy is not going to be pushed around by the MWRA or any other state agent. We will control our destiny.

Fifth, much positive and meaningful change has occurred in downtown Quincy in the last eight years. Completion of Hancock Plaza and the near completion of Presidents Place bode well for its future. However, much remains to be done. A successful downtown area is the heartbeat of any vibrant city. I intend to move forward with plans for the further revitalization of the downtown area, including the construction of a new cultural center and the expansion of existing retail capabilities. Our planning will be comprehensive and move forward with the support of our people and neighborhoods. Given the present economic climate we will begin this process by identifying federal funding sources and apply immediately for a planning grant. That money is available and we plan to get it.

Sixth, Quincy must continue to be a leader in the field of public education. We should be proud of our accomplishments and the fact that we have a good public school system. Yet, the educational challenges of the decade of the 90's are enormous. World progress and change will and must be education-driven. Barriers among nations are crumbling. Bridges of economic cooperation and change are being built. Technology is now the economic cornerstone of a new world economy, and we must be the vanguard of that change.

We must craft improved learning environments, create exciting curriculum changes, find different ways of challenging young minds, build better relationships between educational institutions and business, and strengthen parent teacher ties creating more meaningful links between school and home. We must find creative

Flavin Council President On 41st Ballot

John P. Flavin was elected president of the City Council by a 5-4 vote over Angelo P. Bizzozero on the 41st ballot taken over three Council sessions.

The first 40 ballots showed Bizzozero with four votes. William P. Hughes with three and Flavin with two before Hughes, Clifton H. Baker and Carl H. Leander switched to Flavin on the 41st.

The Council then named Martin A. King as city auditor, ignoring Miss Elizabeth N. Dunn who had been appointed by Mayor Thomas J. McGrath to succeed the late Henry O. Fairbanks a few months ago.

The delayed election of Flavin and the appointment of King overshadowed the inauguration of McGrath for a second two-year term as mayor on his 57th birthday.

TRACK WALKING HAZARDOUS

The Massachusetts Safety Council issued a warning of hazardous conditions on the New Haven Railroad's Old Colony tracks not far from the Quincy station.

"This is the use of the railroad tracks by pedestrians beyond the railroad station in the direction of West Quincy," said the Council's warning.

"On Friday of last week a train was forced to make an emergency stop because five children were discovered walking on the tracks in front of it.

"These are the conditions that, if not corrected, inevitably lead to an accident."

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Scallops Au Gratin Very Little Fat

Recently when my brother John brought me some great large scallops, I decided to prepare individual serving dishes to each family member. In this entree, I used potatoes, so if you enjoy potatoes, you will really like this recipe. And there is very little fat, since I've used skim milk for the cream sauce. (You may also skip the potatoes if you like).

SCALLOPS AU GRATIN

- 1 lb scallops
(preferably large, but any size will do)
- 2 potatoes
- 1 Cup or so of seasoned breadcrumbs
- 1 Cup shredded cheddar cheese (optional)
- 2 Tbsp margarine
- 2 Tbsp flour
- 1 Cup or so of milk
- 1 Tbsp cooking sherry (optional)
- Salt & Pepper to taste

First of all, boil the potatoes with the skin on or put them in a microwave. Prepare a simple cream sauce by melting the butter, adding the flour and the milk until smooth. (add the sherry if using and salt and pepper). Cut the potatoes in bite size portions and add them to the cream sauce stirring until well blended.

Coat the scallops with the bread crumbs. In a slightly greased casserole dish, layer the scallops and then dredge them with the cream sauce now blended with the potatoes. Sprinkle the top with the cheese and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 20 minutes or until cheese melts. (the time always depends on the size of the dish and the type of oven). I doubled this recipe the day I cooked them and served it with a salad.

Reaction To Sheets Inaugural Address

Reacting to Mayor James A. Sheets' Inaugural Address Tuesday, several present legislators and former Quincy officials said the new mayor has a realistic approach in meeting the challenges ahead, most notably city finances.

Senator Paul Harold: "I thought that he gave an overview of the major issues facing the city, most important the role of the state as far as local aid and the amount of local aid and charges that are being levied on the community. So I think at the state level, the city level's main concern, for at least the next year and probably two years is going to be revenues and where those revenues are coming from if there's a continued shortfall in state government which we anticipate."

State Representative Robert Cerasoli: "I think Jim has a very realistic approach. I think Jim has a tough road ahead but I think he's going to approach it realistically and hopefully everyone can work together."

State Representative Steve Tobin: "I wholeheartedly agree with his attitude which is it's not the force of the gale but the set of the sail. Everybody's got tough times. It's how we handle this situation that I think will determine how well we'll come out of it. I intend to be as helpful as I possibly can. I think we're in for a solid two years of hard work and we're going in the right direction and that's what's important. We got off on the right foot today and I'm very pleased to be a part of it."

Attorney and former District Attorney and former City Councilor George Burke: "I was very impressed with it. I think he's going to be a great mayor. I look forward to his administration the next two years. I think it will be a progressive one and I think it will be productive of the issues that involve the city."

Norfolk County Treasurer and former Ward 2 City Councilor Daniel Raymond: "I served with Jimmy on the City Council; he's a man of integrity and he has a great future ahead of him and he has a good vision for the City of Quincy. I think his combination of talents of his education ability, his ability to bring people together of varied backgrounds is going to serve him well. In his speech, he referred to the problems the city is having economically and financially and I think it's going to require an awful lot of his abilities in order to bring together all the aspects, both practically and politically, to make sure there's a good solution to those problems."

Text Of Mayor Sheets Inaugural Address

ways to utilize retired teachers and administrators whose years of experience, grasp of education fundamentals, and understanding of young people would add a valuable dimension to our public school system. It is my intention to become deeply involved in all aspects of the educational process. For education must and will provide the real dynamics for change in the Quincy of tomorrow.

In closing, I want to thank the people of Quincy for this opportunity to serve them, and also Mayor Frank McCauley for making this period of transition from one administration to another so productive and positive.

We will search for solutions to our economic problems. We will grapple creatively with those quality of life issues. As the old mariner would say, whether we succeed or fail, will depend, not on the force of the gale, but the set of the sail. Not on the intensity of our problems, but on our response to them. We will succeed not because we suddenly find $15,000,000 in new revenue, nor because we have suddenly found the key to defeating a toxic waste incinerator. We will succeed because we have learned the secret of leadership -- that the hopes for our future rests not on the grandness of our plans but in the character of our people. It rests not in our own self-confidence but in the richness of our heritage, in roots planted deep in our soil by generations of men and women who have taught us common decency, respect and love for others. We will succeed because we know that trust is more important than the exercise of power, that leadership must be conscientious and accountable, because we will listen before we act. We will succeed because we will drink at the well-spring of public life -- caring about others. Let us all begin together right now.

Acupuncture Relieves Headaches

Except for the common cold, headache, is the leading complaint of many people. About 42 million individuals undergo headaches so severe that they often have to stay away from work and suffer at home. Of these, only about 10% have headaches that are due to serious organic disease.

Most patients are diagnosed as having migraine headaches, also called tension headaches. A careful examination will sometimes uncover that these headaches without any organic disorder have their origin in the food, drink or nicotine habit of the patients. Stress can also be a cause.

Using acupuncture to treat the various types of headaches is well established. Depending on the headache category, results can vary from excellent to ineffective. A long-term study conducted at the University of Alabama Medical Center, Birmingham, reveals some surprising results.

In this study, questionnaires were sent to patients following acupuncture treatment for headaches. To establish length of pain relief, questionnaires were forwarded six months after treatments had been completed.

It was found that acupuncture treatments gave valuable long-term relief. For most patients, frequency, duration and severity of attacks decreased significantly. When short-term evaluation was used, the percentage of patients who responded to treatment was over 80 per cent. When longer time periods were involved, the ratio of patients with favorable responses decreased. Six months after their last acupuncture treatment, 45 per cent of patients were still receiving notable relief from pain.

One remarkable discovery was made at a medical college in Taiwan. It was found that treating a single point on the foot resulted in almost instant pain relief in patients suffering from tension headache at the temple region. Of these, 75 per cent obtained relief within 15 seconds, while another 12 per cent of patients required up to five minutes for pain to disappear.

WHAT IS SCOLIOSIS?

Scoliosis is one of several medical "buzz words" such as arthritis or cancer which seem to immediately conjure up fearful thoughts for many of us, but whose real meanings are often misunderstood. Technically, Scoliosis is defined as an abnormal curvature of the spine. In the anterior to posterior perspective or as you were to look at another person face to face. The concept of curvature of the spine is somewhat confusing because, when we look at each other from the side or lateral perspective; there should be curves apparent in our spines which are perfectly normal and essential to proper postural mechanics. Typically a patient with scoliosis may not even have any back pain, but may appear to have poor posture, holding one shoulder or hip higher than the other or having one shoulder blade more prominent than the other. The exact causes for why Scoliosis occurs in a patient are not fully known, but it does seem to "run in families" indicating a definite genetic relationship.

Scoliosis may develop slowly and quietly with no pain felt in early childhood but seems to become more noticeable as the children enter their early teens. Young girls are affected more often than boys and they seem to be more vulnerable to scoliosis as they experience the tremendous hormonal changes associated with the onset of their menstrual cycle.

Proper evaluation and treatment is especially crucial during "progressive stages" of scoliosis when the curvature may get much worse in a relatively short period of time. The doctor of chiropractic, with intensive training and knowledge of the spine, is eminently qualified to check for and treat scoliosis.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock St., North Quincy, 773-4400.

A New Mayor, New Era

rezone the city and then activate that process."

- Create a Planning Review Board which will evaluate all proposed new development and determine its impact on city services including water, sewer, schools, drainage and traffic control. The board will consist of the planning director, building inspector, commissioner of Public Works, commissioner of Public Health, traffic engineer, mayor and City Council president or his designee.

- File a lawsuit against the MWRA before Feb. 12 in an effort to stop the permanent sludge treatment facility at the former General Dynamics shipyard.

"The City of Quincy is not going to be pushed around by the MWRA or any other state agency. We will control our own destiny," Sheets said.

- Expand the city's "Adopt-a-Island" program to an "Adopt-a-Park" program using funds from the private sector to help maintain, repair and expand the Quincy park system. Executive Secretary Tom Koch will implement the program which will become part of an overall beautification program.

- Continue the city's fight against Clean Harbors. Administrative Assistant Bernice Mader will head the Quincy Environmental Task Force which is the city's main mechanism in the fight against the firm which is proposing a hazardous waste incinerator near the Quincy-East Braintree line.

- Continue the revitalization of downtown Quincy, including the construction of a new cultural center and expansion of existing retail capabilities. Sheets said he intends to apply for federal grants immediately to fund these projects.

The new mayor also said Quincy must continue to be a leader in public education. Noting educational challenges of the 1990 "are enormous," he said, "We must craft improved learning environments, create exciting curriculum changes, find different ways of challenging young minds, build better relationships between educational institutions and business, and strengthen parent teacher ties creating more meaningful links between school and home."

Sheets, who taught at Quincy Junior College for 26 years, said he intends to become "deeply involved in all aspects of the educational process."

Fiscally, Sheets said Quincy finds itself entering the 1990s at the "best and worst of times."

He praised McCauley for his "sound economic planning, management and growth" over the past eight years.

However, the new mayor said Quincy is " heir to the state's economic blundering and confusion and a philosophical malaise in which the most fundamental values of our people, namely the right to a sound public education and the right to be safe and secure in their person and property are in jeopardy."

Sheets pointed out that Quincy faces a $10 million shortfall this year due to a $3.2 million cut in state aid and the state's failure to provide an average $2 million increase in local aid as well as an unplanned $2 million hike in employee health insurance costs and spiraling MWRA assessments.

"Fortunately, because of the frugal management in the McCauley administration, we are hopeful that our surplus of free cash will cover this shortfall, and that we will end this fiscal year on June 10 with a balanced budget," Sheets said.

Next year, the city faces a projected $13.5 million deficit. Explaining he will suggest sources of new revenue to the City Council very soon, Sheets added, "We must realize that even these new revenue streams may not be enough to cover the deficit and that budget cuts may be necessary."

The new mayor stressed that the fiscal challenges ahead must be met "together."

"Our ability to work together, our creative talents, our willingness to sacrifice, all will be tested constantly. We must not allow a budget crisis to become a crisis of the spirit; we must now allow a revenue crisis to become a crisis of resolve."

"We must not lose our confidence in each other nor our willingness to work together for a greater common good."

Sheets 28th Man, 31st Mayor

James A. Sheets is the 28th man to hold the office of mayor of Quincy.

But he is the 31st mayor because three chief executives, Gustave B. Bates, Charles A. Ross and Thomas S. Burgin, served split terms in office.

There have also been three acting mayors since three men who were elected to the post, filed to serve full terms. John L. Miller died in office and Ross and Burgin left office before their time was up.

Here is a list of mayors and acting mayors of Quincy and the years in which they served:

Sheets Not A Minister

In giving the benediction at the Inauguration ceremony of new Mayor James A. Sheets, the Rev. John J. MacMahon revealed an apparent secret about the city's new chief executive.

Fr. MacMahon, retired pastor of St. Mary's Church in West Quincy, was telling a story and mentioned that Sheets is a minister.

However, according to family members, Sheets is not a minister.

The mayor did take a few theology courses while attending Eastern Nazarene College for his bachelor's degree. However, Sheets' degree is in history and psychology. He was never a theology or divinity student.

And in case you were wondering, the middle initial "A" in the new mayor's name stands for Andrew.

Realtors Adopt 'Yes, You Can' (Buy A Home) Campaign

Faced with months of negative reports on the condition of the real estate market, the Quincy, South Shore and Plymouth County Boards of Realtors have joined forces to promote the "Yes, You Can" (buy a home) theme.

This multi-faceted campaign includes specific advertising targeted at first-time homebuyers and will begin in January with full page advertisements featuring homes priced under $150,000. Board officials indicate that there are over 1,000 homes, currently on the market on the South Shore, under $150,000.

The "Yes, You Can" theme originated with the Springfield Board of Realtors and has become so popular that Realtor Boards across the country have adopted it in an effort to restore the confidence of homebuyers and sellers.

In addition to the advertising campaign, the two Boards will establish a coalition of allied industries to assist in providing the public with a more balanced view of the real estate market on the South Shore.

Realtors firmly believe that there hasn't been a better time to buy; with interest rates dropping to single digits, a strong inventory, and motivated sellers, adding up to extremely favorable conditions for potential homebuyers.

Leadership of the two boards will utilize multi-media opportunities to get the message out to the public, including appearance on cable television and radio talk shows.

Average Price $183,689 Mass. Real Estate Prices Remain Stable, Sales Return To Pre-Boom Levels

The average price of all property sold in Massachusetts rose to $183,689 during the third quarter of 1989. This is an increase of one percent over the average sales price recorded for the same period last year, according to figures compiled by the Massachusetts Association of REALTORS (MAR).

The data includes the sale of single-family homes and multi-family homes, commercial property, and raw land sold through REALTOR-affiliated multiple listing service (MLS) systems across the state.

The $183,689 average sales price achieved during July, August, and September is up slightly from the 1988 third quarter average price of $181,283, and represents a modest three percent increase over the 1988 year-end average sales price of $175,975.

"Although these latest numbers clearly indicate a change from the rapid appreciation rates of a few years ago, they nevertheless do show a small, but significant increase in property values," said MAR President Patricia Pingree, of Georgetown.

"The fact that we have appreciation, instead of depreciation, in today's less active market is very encouraging and should demonstrate to prospective home buyers that housing remains a very sound, long-term investment."

With selling prices expected to remain virtually unchanged during the final quarter of the year, the three percent appreciation rate projected for 1989 would represent the smallest annual increase in Massachusetts property prices since 1982 when prices increased only one-quarter of one percent. A three percent appreciation rate for the year would be healthy for the real estate industry however, suggested MAR President-elect J. Thomas Marquis, of Duxbury.

"We had five consecutive years of double-digit price increases from 1982 through 1987, and although many people welcomed the equity growth hundreds of others were quickly priced out of the market. Moderate single-digit appreciation rates will allow homeowners to continue to build up their equity and provide expanded opportunities for first-time homebuyers to enter the market," he stated.

In its report, the MAR also announced that sales of all property dropped nine percent during the third quarter compared with the same period last year. A total of 12,158 MLS sales were reported during the past quarter vs. 13,233 in the third quarter of 1988.

"It is only reasonable to expect that there would fewer sales year," observed Pingree. "The record level of sales activity which occurred in the mid-eighties was unprecedented, and it simply would be unrealistic to believe that such a pace would last forever."

"It is true the sales numbers may point to a slowdown in the housing market, but they do not by any means indicate a crisis. Instead they merely mark the return to a more normal market for the next few years," Pingree maintained.

In fact, the 1989 third quarter total of 12,158 sales is slightly higher than the 12,055 sales reported in the second quarter of 1986 during the middle of the housing boom, and nearly 23 percent more than the 9,896 sales closed during the third quarter of 1985.

In addition, even based on a projected decline of 15 percent in property sales during the last quarter of this year, 1989 still would be ranked as the fourth most active year for property sales in the state's history.

"From a historical perspective, the third quarter sales figures remain very strong," Pingree said. "However, the current market will continue to be ruled by simple laws of supply and demand, as well as a general consumer wariness until the state's overall economy improves," she continued.

The number of property listings through Realtor MLS Systems also dropped nearly 10 percent from the second to the third quarter of this year, indicating that they may have peaked during the past spring. The number of MLS listings fell from an all-time high of 44,148 statewide during the second quarter to 39,951 in the third quarter.

"There truly are many excellent opportunities available today for buyers in Massachusetts as a result of the high volume of inventory, stable price pattern, and recent drop in interest rates below ten percent. For these reasons, the key to successfully selling homes is setting a price which the current market will support," said Marquis.

"Admittedly, sales will continue to be slowing during the next several quarters, but predictably due to a correction occurring in the market. Absorption of the existing housing stock will take time, but properly priced homes particularly at the lower end of the market continue to sell very well."

Self-Employment And Mortgages

The assumption that anyone who can afford a mortgage will get one is perhaps the one misunderstanding that leads to more wasted time and money than any other circumstance involving residential mortgages," said Carmine Lunetta, in an article about self-employed prospects in Real Estate Today, the official publication of the National Association of Realtors.

Before beginning to look at properties, the homebuyer and the real estate agent should meet to discuss the facts about self-employment and mortgages.

"The prospects may think they can afford the loan, but particular and definite qualifying rules may sometimes lead to an entirely different conclusion," says Lunetta, a former mortgage loan officer and real estate.

"First," Lunetta advised sales agents, "you must determine which prospects are self-employed according to the rules of mortgage underwriting." This entails more than simply asking. "Most likely, they have no idea how the mortgage industry determines that, so their responses may not be correct," says Lunetta.

Determining whether prospects receive a W-2 or 1099 form for income tax purposes is generally a good test. "In almost all cases, those who receive a W-2 are employees, and those who receive a 1099 are self-employed," he says.

This test, however, is not always conclusive, as in the case of individuals who receive a salary as employees of a small corporation and also own a certain percentage of that corporation's outstanding stock. Such ownership will cause mortgage underwriters to classify them as self-employed.

Mortgage underwriters have special rules for self-employed individuals applying for a loan.

"Generally, for their self-employed income to be considered as qualifying income for mortgage underwriting purposes, self-employed prospects must have been self-employed in the same line of business for at least 24 months preceding the mortgage application," says Lunetta.

"In addition," she continues, "most lenders want to determine not only that the prospects' income is sufficient to repay the mortgage loan but also that the business is a sufficiently viable entity and can reasonably be expected to continue to support the prospects' future obligations."

It is also important to know that not all income currently being earned by self-employed people can be used in a mortgage qualification calculation. The income of self-employed prospects is not what they're earning at the time of the application or even what they earned in the previous year. "Rather, it's the monthly average of the amount earned for the 24 months immediately preceding the application," states Lunetta.

Raiders Win Streak Snapped By Somerville

By TOM SULLIVAN

After skating past five straight Greater Boston League opponents and scoring 42 goals in the process, the North Quincy hockey bowed to Somerville, 2-1, last Saturday, dropping its record to 5-1.

The Raiders, under first-year coach Dave Peters, finished their schedule against GBL opponents last night (Wednesday) at Arlington against the top GBL team and annually one of the state's leading teams. They open their Suburban League schedule Saturday against Quincy at 6:40 at the Youth Arena and will be at Waltham next Wednesday night.

"Somerville played outstanding defense and we had very few shots in the first two periods," said Peters. "We had some good chances in the last period but couldn't capitalize. I think they have a better team than Medford and are right behind Arlington."

Somerville scored a goal in each of the first two periods and with 12 minutes left in the game Brian Zimmerman scored North's goal with Joe Fasano assisting.

"It was a good break for us when Pat O'Donoghue gave up basketball to play hockey," Peters said. "He has done a great job in every game and gives us a top notch goalie."

"With him in goal, a solid defense and one of the best lines around in Zimmerman, Fasano and Sal Manganaro, I think we will do all right in the league."

Earlier in the week North Quincy scored six goals in the first period and rolled over Revere, 10-3. Manganaro had a hat trick and four assists, giving him 15 goals and eight assists in five games.

Fasano had a hat trick and an assist, Zimmerman two goals and four assists, Mike DesRoche and Mike Christopherson a goal each and Jamie Tapper two assists.

Quincy Loses

The Quincy hockey team turned in one of its best offensive performances of the season last week but it wasn't enough as Somerville handed the Presidents their fourth straight loss, 7-to-5.

Quincy dropped to 0-4-1. Quincy played Everett last night (Wednesday), will open its Suburban League schedule against North Quincy Saturday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena and will host Brockton next Wednesday at 5:30 at the Youth Arena.

Scott Curtin scored two goals in the third period against Somerville but the Presidents couldn't overcome Somerville's big lead.

Scott MacPherson, Shane Abboud and Mark Gilmore also scored for Quincy. John Kisch had a hat trick for Somerville.

"We just can't put everything together," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "We are very young (seven freshmen and five sophomores) and the boys are hustling all the time. We should improve as the season goes along."

B.C. High Basketball Team Has Strong Quincy Connection

The 1989-90 boys basketball team at Boston College High has a Quincy connection this year as the Eagles are off to a 2-1 start.

Senior guard Peter McLoughlin of Quincy, also co-captain, leads the team in scoring averaging 20 points a game. Senior center John Shea of Quincy, has dominated the boards averaging 16 rebounds along with 10 points a game while guard/forward Jamie Green, also of Quincy, is shooting 100 percent from the free throw line in his first 3 games.

B.C. High head coach

Brian Buckley and assistant coach Bob Evans, both in their first year at B.C. High, are also from Quincy. Evans, who coached at Archbishop Williams for the past 7 years, has his junior varsity team off to a good start also winning 2 of 3 games.

The Eagles, who lost their opener to powerful Durfee 61-57, came back to defeat Cumberland, R.I. and Xavier of N.Y.

According to Buckley, the Durfee loss helped the team. "After the Durfee game our young players believed in their abilities," Buckley noted.

North Quincy Runners Shine

Several North Quincy runners came up with outstanding performances in track meets over the Christmas vacation.

At the Boston College Holiday Classic, Sherrin Quintiliani showed signs of coming back from a knee injury which shortened her cross country season with a strong second place in the two-mile. Her time of 12:29.3 qualifies her for the state championships in February. She also has qualified in the mile.

"She's only doing light running 15-20 minutes a day so this is a promising sign," said coach Jeff Hennessy. "The B.C. track is not as fast as Harvard or B.U."

Also qualifying for the states were sprinters Wayne Sit and Hiep Ngo. Sit did 6.8 in the 55-meters and Hiep 6.9.

At the Age Group Development Meet at Brown, Jennifer Nutley, a freshman, qualified for the states with a 7.93 in the 55-meters. Also turning in a time performance was Ilana Cobban, winning the 800-meters in 2:39.8.

At the Brown Inter-scholastics held in the new Olney Margolies facility in Providence, North's entry in the girls' freshman-sophomore distance medley came from behind to win over top-ranked Tilden High of New Jersey. Leadoff runner Cindy Walsh kept things close with a fine 4:25.8 for 1200 meters and Jennifer Nutley ran the 400-meter leg in 70.7.

By the time Ilana Cobban had finished her 800 meters in 2:46.7, Tilden had built a 100-meter lead over the Raiderettes. However, Suzanne Lewis, running the mile anchor leg, chipped away slowly with consistent laps, reaching the Tilden runner with 400 meters to go and finishing in an outstanding 5:47.7. The total time for North was 14:10.4.

Each girl received a medal and the school received an engraved trophy. There were 18 schools in the race.

Woodward School In Celtics-Easter Seal Shoot-Out

Students at the Woodward

School in Quincy are shooting baskets to raise money for people with disabilities in the Boston Celtics-Easter Seal Basketball Shoot-Out during the week of January 8.

Celtics star Kevin McHale is honorary chairman of the event, sponsored annually by the TJX Companies, Inc. The program teaches youngsters about disabilities—then gives them a chance to help.

Raiders Lose In Tourney Final

The North Quincy boys' basketball team lost a 12-point halftime lead and bowed to Weymouth North, 71-62, in the finals of the annual Christmas tournament hosted this year by the Raiders.

Red Stevenson's North team fell to 2-4, two of its previous losses being by two point and the other by three. The Raiders opened their Suburban League season last night (Wednesday) against perennial league champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin and will host Quincy next Tuesday night at 7:30.

North, which edged Weymouth South, 67-66, in the opening round, had second half troubles in both games just as it has all season. "We've had trouble in the second half all season," Stevenson said. "It's been a definite pattern. We could easily have won all our previous three games but found all kinds of ways to lose."

The Raiders held a 25-14 lead after a quarter and still led, 42-30, at halftime. Weymouth came back strong and out-scored North, 19-6, in the third quarter to take a 49-48 lead. The Maroons built on that lead in the final session.

Erik DeBoer, who earned the plaudits of Weymouth coach Steve Shoff, again led North Quincy offensively with 21 points, including three three-point shots and Dan McLean had 12.

North got off to a fast start against Weymouth South in the opening round but again had second half troubles and had to hang on for dear life as Brian Curran hit two free throws with six seconds left to give North the one-point win. "We just hung on," said Stevenson. "We played a great first half and Weymouth played a great second half."

DeBoer scored 20 points and took down 14 rebounds, Angelo Kyranis had 13 points, Curran had 12 and was five for six from the free throw line in the fourth quarter, and freshman Sean Donovan added 11 points.

Presidents Bow Twice In Tourney

The Quincy boys' basketball team turned in two of its best efforts of the season in the annual Christmas Tournament at North Quincy but the Presidents lost both games to Weymouth North and Weymouth South to drop to 0-6 on the season.

John Franceschini's Quincy team bowed to Weymouth North, the tourney champion, 60-55, in the opener and lost to Weymouth South, 55-50, in the consolation game.

The Presidents opened their Suburban League Youth Fitness Program season last night (Wednesday) at league powerhouse Brockton, will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday night at 7:30 and will play at North Quincy next Tuesday night at 7:30.

The luckless Quincy team stayed with Weymouth South all the way as the teams were tied at 11 after the first quarter and Weymouth led by three going into the last quarter when it dominated the offensive boards to take the win.

During the last quarter South's Todd Cusick had three offensive rebounds resulting in five points and Chuck Gibbs grabbed three for six more points. During the game South out-rebounded the Presidents, 29-15.

Joe Russell, who led the league in three-point percentage last year, had 17 points including three three-pointers, and E.J. Nordstrom added 12 points.

In the opener against Weymouth North, Quincy made a fine second half comeback after falling behind, 38-20, at the half.

The Presidents came back strong in the last two quarters as Nordstrom had 20 pints and Russell added 10. Quincy outscored the Maroons, 17-7, in the third quarter and trailed 45-37 going into the final session.

MRS. RACHEL ROBINSON, widow of baseball legend Jackie Robinson, leads a group of Quincy Central Middle School students on a tour of the "Jackie Robinson: An American Journey" exhibit at Boston's International Place. Mary Schiess of the Quincy Central Middle School and her group of sixth-graders were the first class in the state to see the exhibit. It chronicles the life of baseball hero and civil rights leader Jackie Robinson in commemoration of his entry into major league baseball as its first black player.

North Girls Top Quincy In Tourney

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, after losing to Weymouth South, 44-36, in the opening round, came back to defeat Quincy, 53-47, in the consolation game of the Christmas tournament at Weymouth South to improve its record to 4-2.

The Quincy girls, playing one of their best games against North and leading most of the way, had dropped their opener to Weymouth North, 45-39. The First Ladies dropped to 1-5.

Both teams opened their Suburban League schedules last night (Wednesday) North playing Cambridge Rindge and Latin and Quincy met and Latin and Quincy meeting Brockton. Quincy will play at Cambridge Friday at 3:30 and will play at North Quincy next Tuesday at 6 p.m.

In the consolation win over Quincy, Christine Salton led the North girls with 17 pints and Joanna Hugnetta added 13.

Amy Baker led the First Ladies with 14 points and Chris Barrett, playing with a broken finger, had 12.

rebounds to lead the way over North Quincy.

For the North girls Tara Miles scored 11 points, including three three-pointers, and Kerry Tolson had seven.

Quincy trailed Weymouth North, 24-17, at halftime. Barrett scored 12 pints and Baker nine. Sue Mathison had a big night for Weymouth with 15 points and 12 rebounds.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Operation Identification Is Free Have You Joined?

Q. What is Operation Identification?

A. Operation Identification is a program to discourage theft and burglary by identification of valuables and advising potential thieves this action has been taken by placing stickers on your doors.

Q. How is this accomplished?

A. By engraving your drivers license number on any article of value that can be carried from your home.

Q. Why does this aprogram discourage theft?

A. The use of the decals on the doors serve as notice to potential thieves that items of value have been marked with an identification number. If the items are stolen they could be used as direct evidence against the thief when found in his/her possession. Marking your valuables also makes it difficult for thieves to sell or trade your valuables.

Q. What items should be marked?

A. TV sets, radios, VCR's, tape recorders, stereos, hub caps, bicycles, typewriters, computers, office equipment, or any item of value that will not be defaced by engraving your ID number. Jewelry is best photographed and appraised by a reputable appraiser. Once your property is engraved you should keep a record of it on an Operation ID inventory sheet. Photos of valuables and inventory sheets should be kept in a safe deposit box away from the home in case of fire.

Q. What does this cost me?

A. Nothing, but a little of your time.

Q. Has this program really worked to prevent crime?

A. There is convincing evidence that burglars avoid both homes and neighborhoods where Operation ID is in force.

Q. How do I get the engraver and stickers?

A. Call the Quincy Police Crime Prevention Unit at 479-1212 ext. 117. The engraver will be loaned to you and the decals for your doors and windows will be given to you when you return the engraver.

Quincy Featured In Ch. 2 Domestic Violence Documentary

By JANE ARENA

According to the most recent statistics, 25,000 people were murdered in America last year and about half that number were killed by someone they knew.

Public health figures show that in Massachusetts a woman is killed by her husband or boyfriend every 22 days.

WGBH Channel 2 will explore the subject of acquaintance violence in a one-hour program "Private Violence, Public Shame," which will air Wednesday, Jan. 3 at 9 p.m. Parts of the program were filmed in Quincy.

Featured in the program are Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt and the work of the Quincy Police Department in addressing the problem of domestic violence. Quincy Patrolman Lane Watkins also appears in the program.

"Private Violence, Public Shame," narrated by actor Louis Gossett, Jr., explores acquaintance violence through three segments, each focusing on how different forms of violence have shaped four lives: a former high school football star who is sentenced to life in prison for the murder of a co-worker, a 32-year old man, a victim of violence as a child, who is learning to stop battering women, and two inner-city teenagers who look for a way to escape the violence of their neighborhood and find it in the end.

The program also profiles several Boston area agencies, including the Cambridge-based Emerge, which is one of the few agencies in the country for men who batter women.

Of local interest is a segment on the Quincy Police Department, which, in conjunction with Delahunt's office, enforce strict procedures to protect women and get men into treatment in cases where domestic violence is suspected.

The program also features some leading experts on violence prevention, including former Massachusetts Commissioner for Public Health, Deborah Prothrow-Stith, MD, who developed violence prevention curriculum now being used in many Boston schools. "Private Violence, Public Shame" examines the subject of acquaintance violence from all angles and viewpoints, offering insight and valuable information on both its causes and prevention.

The program was written, produced and directed by Sharon Simon, an independent producer, in association with WGBH. Although there are no immediate plans to broadcast the program nationwide, the distribution company of Coronet MTI Film and Video will distribute segments of the

WEEK OF: January 4

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Ambitious and hard-working are characteristic qualities. You also have a great sense of responsibility. Some find you leaning toward the materialistic side. Travel, added prestige, and renewed relationships are the themes of 1990; you may find as well that they overlap through the year.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Friends reconcile thanks to your recent efforts. Children seek out your advice in a less-than-obvious fashion. Small bonus or advancement may arrive after weekend.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Impromptu trips are highlighted at this time, but it's up to you to make the arrangements. Legal matters require careful review. Intellectual activities are on tap after the weekend.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

A friend may be unexpectedly frank, but listen to the intent rather than the sharp words. If traveling, plan for unexpected expenses. Mechanical maintenance demands your attention.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

An old idea can be taken out of mothballs and refined. Writing assignments are highlighted as well. Two cautions at this time: budget extra carefully, and prepare to play the diplomat at work.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Neighborhood events may be unusually time-consuming, especially if you take on a leadership position. Partner is in a sentimental mood. Coworker is ready to bury the hatchet.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Signs of improved lifestyle appear, but hard work remains the key. Accounting and budgeting tasks require super careful review. Avoid procrastination in the health and fitness departments.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Projects involving group participation are highlighted over solo efforts, provided egos don't intrude. Financial news-brightener may arrive after the weekend. Relationship is on a steadier course.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Quincy Junior College Present Program In Virginia

Quincy Junior College and Brigham and Women's Hospital recently conducted a panel discussion about their collaborative Advanced Placement Nursing program at the COMBASE National Conference in Williamsburg, Virginia.

COMBASE is an organization comprised of community college Presidents and Trustees who are committed to the concept of community college education. The theme of the conference was preparing for the 21st century and its educational needs.

The panel consisted of O. Clayton Johnson, president of Quincy Junior College; Jenny James, vice president of Nursing Services for Brigham and Women's Hospital and Patricia Ryan, associate dean of Allied Health for Quincy Junior College. Johnson presented the history, organizational structure and student demographics of the college. James discussed the workforce demand of her institution for skilled labor and nursing personnel. It was these specific needs that precipitated the initial discussion between B & W and QJC about the possibility of developing an Advanced Placement Nursing program (LPN to RN) for her current LPN employees.

Ryan addressed the unique nature of the program from its development through the approval of the Board of Registration of Nursing, to its implementation. The program is done collaboratively with the Hospital. It is a part-time, on site program using QJC faculty as well as B & W clinical specialists. Students are allowed to continue their work as LPNs while pursuing their studies toward an Associate's degree and eligibility to take the Registered Nurse licensure examination.

The program illustrates a model for the collaboration of education and industry as well. The style could be adapted to many other areas within the community college setting.

Other presenters at the conference were Dale Parnell, past president of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges and a noted author, Arthur Cohen of the ERIC clearinghouse and Henry Figgie of Figgie International.

Pui Shan Lai
Atherton Hough, Gr. 5

That I could have a lot of money, so I could buy food for the poor. I'd like this because I feel bad for poor people. They don't have the stuff we have. They don't get things for Christmas like we do. I give a lot of money to Unicef because life is terrible for poor people. I'd also like to help the poor in any way I can.

Tim Semchenko

Felicia Tam
Merrymount, Gr. 5

For all children to have a happy family. I have learned from TV that not all kids have parents that are together and some kids are in foster homes. It would be nice if all the children got one or two presents they really wanted, but most of all, a Christmas with a family that truly cared and loved them.

250,000 Turn Out For Christmas Parade

Threatening skies and cold temperatures didn't keep an estimated quarter of a million people from attending the 38th annual Christmas Festival Parade in Quincy Center on Sunday, although that number was down a little from the anticipated 300,000.

The parade, on the theme of "A Storybook Christmas," kicked off at 12:30 and took just over an hour to pass by.

Spectators from all over the South Shore lined the 2.8 mile route and delighted in the several floats, marching bands, color guards and specialty units participating in the parade.

This year's parade was dedicated to the memory of Thomas M. McDonald, who had been involved with the parade since it began in 1951. McDonald died last December.

This year's grand marshal was North Quincy native

Ken Coleman, long-time radio "Voice of the Boston Red Sox." Coleman, who now lives in Cohasset, began his broadcasting career covering high school football on WJDA.

According to tradition, floats illustrating the parade theme competed for trophies and prizes in both commercial and non-commercial categories.

Winners and their prizes were: Quincy Bay Race Week

Association took first place for their float, "The Story of Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer." They received the Fr. Thomas Tierney Trophy and $1,000.

Quincy Junior College won second prize with "It's a Snow White Christmas," and was awarded $500.

The Germaniowa Yacht Club finished third with its entry "Christmas With Peter Pan in Never, Never Land," and was awarded a $300 prize.

The Woodward School took fourth place with "The Little Engine That Could," float and won $200.

Colonial Federal Savings Bank took the Best Commercial Float for its entry depicting characters from "The Wizard Of Oz."

The Mayor's Trophy for the Best Quincy Float was awarded to the United First Parish Unitarian Church for its entry titled "The First Christmas Story." High School Marching Bands also competed for prizes in the Christmas Parade. Bands in each of the four divisions were judged on marching and music. Winners were:

Division I, Chicopee High School Band with a total score of 78.4; Division II, Abington High School Band, with a total score of 86.1; Division III, Agawam High School Band with a score of 86.5 and Division IV, Shepherd Hill High School Band, who scored 94.4.

For Outstanding Community

Clara Yeomans Sun 'Citizen Of Year'

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmental activist who still "appreciates every blade of grass" has been selected as The Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" for 1989.

Mrs. Yeomans, now a free-lance natural resources consultant to the community—schools, clubs and organizations—was selected from among 37 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

A 10-member panel—representing the community—made the final selection from those 37 nominees.

Mrs. Yeomans, charter member and former executive secretary of the Quincy Conservation Commission and president of Save Our Shores, is the fifth winner of the award established in 1985 to annually honor an individual for outstanding community service or for a special achievement.

Prior winners were Anthony Siciliano, Deputy Civil Defense Director; Ruth Wainwright, long-time community volunteer, the late Richard J. Koch, Sr., a leader in community and charitable causes and Martin Finnegan, Director of Athletics in the Quincy Schools and coordinator of Project Impact, an innovative program to train teachers and community adults to help youngsters deal with drug, alcohol and other problems.

Mrs. Yeomans, who lives at 115 Winthrop Ave., Wollaston, was nominated by Corinne Mitchell of Hillside Ave., Wollaston, who said:

"Clara has worked tirelessly through the years to preserve and protect our environment and to educate our citizenry. She has volunteered her time and energy to many organizations among which are the League of Women Voters, Quincy Conservation Commission, Save Our Shores, Friends of the Blue Hills and many others. "At a time when an understanding of our resources is so important."

Sun publisher Henry Bosworth congratulated Mrs. Yeomans for her 30 years of service—most of it unpaid.

"She was speaking out back then when environmentalists were considered by many as obstructionists to progress but time proved were quite on target with their concerns."

Mrs. Yeomans, when informed she had been selected for The Sun Citizen of The Year Award said:

"I am delighted. I am honored. It is a great reward to be recognized like this for doing something you strongly believe

Nearly $600,000 Owed Real Estate Tax Delinquents Face Foreclosure Action

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city is preparing to take foreclosure action on approximately 300 delinquent real estate tax titles if the taxes totalling nearly $600,000 are not paid.

Deadline to pay the outstanding bills is Thursday, Jan. 25 at 10 a.m., said Dana Childs, the city's tax collector-treasurer. Once the deadline passes, the city can take the first legal step toward foreclosure, Childs said.

"The next step is the actual taking of tax titles. From there, the foreclosure process begins at land court (in Dedham)," he said.

"We have had some foreclosures in the past."

According to Childs, this is the most outstanding real estate money since the city began aggressively pursuing delinquent tax money under former Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

During the eight years McCauley was in office, $8.9 million in delinquent tax money and interest was collected. In the six and a half years prior to the McCauley administration, the city collected slightly more than $2 million.

When McCauley took office in 1982, the city had 651 delinquent tax cases totalling more than $7 million. About $1.6 million of this amount was money legally withheld by General Dynamics that resulted from tax abatement cases during 1977 and 1980.

However, since 1982, the city has increased its delinquent tax collections by at least 283 percent.

The real estate tax titles range from homes and businesses to vacant lots and "some that are balances left when the taxpayer paid the original bill late," Childs said.

Most of the 300 delinquent titles, which total $598,700, are from 1989 real estate bills but there are a few from 1988.

A complete list of 1988 and 1989 outstanding real estate tax titles is in the legal advertisement section in this issue of The Quincy Sun placed by the city.

About 26 percent of the 300 titles are properties belonging to the Ricciardi Development Company, Childs said. Ricciardi's 86 delinquent tax titles totaling $155,116 include the Summit View project in West Quincy. That project alone has $42,446 in outstanding taxes.

Given the city's tight financial situation, Childs said it is important to collect as much delinquent tax money as possible.

"Collecting the delinquent money absolutely means more now than before," Childs said. He explained that delinquent tax money which is collected can lessen the amount of revenue the city has to borrow. The less money

Board Calls Restaurant Owner On Violations

By JANE ARENA

Peter Kelly, owner of Kelly's In The Square, 15 Cottage Ave., will be requested to appear before the Quincy License Board at its next meeting, Jan. 16, at 10 a.m., to "show just cause why his license should not be permanently revoked," said Board Chairman John Gillis.

The hearing is in relation to alleged violations of the city's closing violation and fire regulations on the night of Dec. 23, 1989.

According to reports issued by Deputy Fire Chief Tom Gorman, and Police Officer Paul Keenan, customers and the bartender were discovered drinking in the restaurant, after the regulated 1:15 a.m. deadline.

The violation was discovered after a dry powder fire extinguisher had been discharged, causing smoke detectors to activate and the fire alarm to sound, the report said. According to City Fire Regulations, all customers must be evacuated from a building when a fire alarm sounds.

The board will send Kelly a letter informing him that he must attend the Jan. 16 meeting.

MacRitchie Counsel To Police Sheets Names 4 To Law Department

Mayor James Sheets has appointed four to the city's law department, appointments he says are "tailored-made to meet the environmental challenges that we face in the 1990s."

On Tuesday, Sheets announced the following appointments effective Feb. 2:

- Present City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie will become the new legal counsel to the Quincy Police Department. The position carries a $35,000 annual salary.

- James Timmons and Thomas Largey have been appointed assistant city solicitors. The annual salary for that post is $39,000.

- Jeff Brids will become the department's special counsel and receive $35,000 annually.

Sheets had already appointed former city councillor Stephen McGrath as the new city solicitor.

In making the announcements, the mayor said the law department will "vigorously pursue" environmental issues, notably the MWRA and Clean Harbors.

Sheets said the city will file a lawsuit against the MWRA by Feb. 12 in an attempt to prevent the authority from operating a permanent sludge facility at the former General Dynamics shipyard in Quincy Point.

The city will also consider joining the Town of Weymouth in a legal battle against a proposal by Clean Harbors, Inc., for a hazardous waste rotary kiln incinerator in the For River industrial basin.

In particular, Quincy will consider filing litigation relating to the rules and regulations of the Site Safety Council which determines what areas are feasible for hazardous waste.

McGrath said the law department will be spending a "substantial" amount of time dealing with environmental issues, particularly the MWRA and Clean Harbors. Sheets said he was satisfied with the appointments while McGrath said the additions will create "a very strong law office."

McGrath also noted that he will be meeting with existing and new personnel to familiarize them with cases so that there is a "smooth takeover."

The appointments are not full-time positions. McGrath explained that that has never been a requirement. "It's safe to say it has never been a problem," he said.

McGrath said the city will definitely file a lawsuit against the MWRA by Feb. 12. Concerning Clean Harbors, he said the city is considering joining Weymouth in litigation against the firm.

McGrath has contacted Weymouth officials regarding the issue but has not discussed

Quincy Police Redefining Media Relations Policy

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

In an attempt to maintain a relationship with news media representatives based on trust, cooperation and mutual interest, the Quincy Police Department is redefining its media relations policy regarding the release of information to the media.

The new policy, which has been drafted but not finalized, will set guidelines concerning the media's request for information and protect the legitimate interests of affected parties from prejudicial publicity.

Once the policy is finalized, police officers will be trained in the new procedures, Chief Francis X. Finn said.

The new guidelines are being formulated in response to the department's handling of a series of sexual assaults which occurred in Wollaston last year.

Last month, former Mayor Francis McCauley faulted the police for failing to alert residents about the incidents.

Four women have been sexually assaulted in Wollaston since last April but it was not until early December that police acknowledged the rapes had taken place.

Finn said the local media were not notified immediately "in order to enhance our opportunity to apprehend the suspects." Finn noted that administrators at Eastern Nazarene College, where all but one of the rapes occurred, have been kept informed of the investigation.

On Monday, Finn met with police officers, a representative from the Norfolk County District Attorney's office and local media representatives and outlined the new policy. He emphasized that this is the department's policy, adding his was not trying to tell the media how to gather their information.

"This is a policy of the Quincy Police Department in cooperation with the press. We are bound by it," Finn said.

In instances involving one or more agencies such as the Norfolk County District Attorney's office, the agency having primary jurisdiction shall be responsible for releasing or coordinating the release of information, the chief emphasized.

He also stressed that members of the department must exercise care, common sense and discretion to avoid releasing statements or information which, if later quoted, may create a misunderstanding or compromise the effectiveness of an investigation.

The three-page policy outlines administrative and operational procedures while listing information that may and may not be released to the media. It also explains the duties of the public information officer and who the proper spokesperson is in a particular situation or circumstance.

The chief of police or his designee is the official spokesperson of the department regarding administrative affairs. The public information officer is the administrative assistant to the chief. In his absence, the chief will designate a superior officer to act in his place.

The public information officer's duties include:

- Assisting news personnel in covering routine news stories.
- Being available for on-call responses to the news media.
- Preparing and distributing news releases.
- Arranging for and assisting at news conferences.
- Coordinating and authorizing the release of information for all major incidents.
- Assisting in crisis situations.
- Coordinating and authorizing the release of information concerning departmental policies, procedures and operations.

If there is any doubt as to whether such information should be divulged, inquiries will be referred to the chief's office. Any information released to an officer in charge shall be reported to the public information officer as soon as possible.

Because the department is regularly involved in events at which members of the news media are present and performing their task of gathering information, Finn said his department has a three-fold responsibility:

- To cooperate with media efforts to obtain and disseminate factual information.
- To protect the constitutional rights of accused persons.
- To bring the police operation at hand to a successful conclusion.

To accomplish this, the department, when requested, will provide complete and accurate information within legal limits to all accredited media reps, Finn noted.

Regarding operational procedures, the present draft states that media reps "may be admitted within police lines but not within the actual crime scene during an active investigation."

In the case of a major disaster or other public emergency, representatives may be permitted within police lines but they should be notified of any present or potential danger and that under such conditions the police department is not responsible for their physical safety.

The officer in charge of any incident may also deny access to the media if, in his opinion, their presence may inhibit, threaten or compromise legitimate police activity or objectives.

In addition, police may allow photographers to photograph persons in police custody except in instances where an identification has not been completed and the possibility of a line-up exists. "Officers will not pose prisoners for photographers nor will they allow prisoners to be photographed by news media inside police headquarters," the policy states.

The draft policy also breaks down what information may be released and what may not be released.

Information that presently may be released includes

- Fact that a crime has been committed.
- Technical name of the crime by statute, ordinance,

Authorities Investigating Weekend Fight In Germantown

Local, state and federal authorities are investigating the cause of a weekend fight in Germantown which left six youths injured and questions whether the incident was racially motivated.

On Monday night, Sgt. Thomas Casey, the Quincy Police civil rights officer, said the fight involving between an estimated 40 and 80 black and white youths ages 17 to mid-20s was not racially motivated.

"At this point, we're not calling it a racially motivated incident. There was a lot of name calling on both sides here," he said.

Investigators from the Norfolk County District Attorney's office and U.S. Department of Justice along with local police are investigating to determine the exact cause of the brawl which began at 1:30 a.m. Saturday at the rear of 144 Taffrail Rd.

According to Chief Francis Finn, the incident apparently originated from a fight between a black youth and a white youth. He said they were playing pool and tempers flared over a girl.

Finn said the two went outside for a fight. At this time, a nearby get-together was disbanding and the youths leaving this party were attracted to the fight, the chief explained.

According to Casey, the incident spilled out onto the street and other youths in the area "flocked to the area after the fight started."

Police arriving on the scene found blacks and whites fighting with their fists and a baseball bat was recovered at the scene.

The first officer on the scene found a black youth and white youth on the ground unconscious. He then called for assistance. In all, eight cruisers, eight officers and a supervisor responded.

Six youths received minor injuries and were transported to local hospitals. Five were taken to Quincy Hospital and one to Carney Hospital.

Casey said all were treated and released.

Paul McDonough, 22, of 575 Sea St., and James Russell, 21, of 191 Taffrail Rd., were arrested for disorderly conduct.

Authorities are investigating to determine whether any civil rights were violated. Casey said District Attorney William Delahunt will determine what charges, if any, will be filed regarding those involved.

According to Casey, the brawl involved youths from Germantown and other sections of the city as well as some from outside Quincy, including Mattapan.

Morrissey Wants MWRA Charlestown Lease Probed

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) has requested that Inspector General Joseph Barresi investigate the legality of the 10-year lease signed by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

Morrissey estimates the cost of the lease at "over $2 million per year," or $20 million in total.

Citing that the cost of the 10 year lease is close to the cost of renovating the MWRA office building at the Quincy Shipyard, Morrissey questioned the wisdom of the agreement.

"To invest this much money in a 10 year lease demonstrates that the MWRA is not acting in the best interest of the ratepayers, for a couple of million dollars more they could be in an office building for life," said Morrissey.

Morrissey also questioned why the lease was not put out to public bid.

"It is no secret that there is a surplus of office space in the Boston area. How do we know that the MWRA could not have saved millions of dollars by going out to public bid. Whether they are required to by law or not, it makes good business sense to solicit bids before committing yourself to a 10 year lease at a cost of millions of dollars a year."

Morrissey said he and other legislators have refilled legislation that would require the MWRA to relocate to the Quincy Shipyard but he doesn't expect it to pass until a new governor is elected. The legislation was passed in 1989 and received the support of 100 state representatives and the majority of the Senate, but was vetoed by Governor Dukakis.

Board Approves Package Store License Transfer

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Robert D. Hosmer of the R & JH Corporation for a transfer of the retail all-alcoholic license as held by M.R.H.T. Corporation, 385 Hancock St., doing business as Murphy's Liquor Store.

Atty. Thomas Faust, representing Hosmer, told the board that Hosmer plans to operate the business in the same manner as it has been run, and to keep the part time employees already there. He said he would also keep the name. Hosmer will manage the store with his wife, Atty. Faust said.

Police Captain Paul Nestor told the board that Hosmer had spoken to him about his plans and that a police check showed Hosmer has no previous police record.

Although Hosmer has no prior experience in the liquor business, he told the board he had worked in management and in sales for many years.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey noted that the store has had past problems with selling to minors. Police Chief Francis Finn told Hosmer the City is "very strict" on this issue.

Finn also advised Hosmer to meet with City Liquor Inspector Sgt. Richard Laracy to go over the various city regulations.

Thanks McCauley, Staff For Assisting Farmers' Market

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the Quincy Farmers' Market I wish to thank Mayor McCauley and his administrative staff, Peter Kenney, Arthur Foley and Roberta Fitzgerald from the Planning and Community Development for the assistance they have given to the Quincy Farmers' Market during the past eight years.

Quincy Farmers' Market is an open-air market operating during the summer months at the John Hancock Parking Lot. Today's consumers are highly nutrition and health conscious customers, and they are looking for wholesome produce. Farmers' Market is a convenient place to buy directly from the grower, the best in fresh, locally-grown produce at a reasonable price without fancy packaging. Buying locally grown produce during the growing season makes good nutritional, as well as, economic sense.

During the past summer 9,380 dollars worth of Massachusetts Farmers' Market Coupons were distributed among the nutritionally-at-risk persons which were redeemed for fresh produce at the Quincy Farmers' Market.

For a farmer or a market gardener it provides a unique direct-to-the-buyer outlet for his fine produce, and helps farmers retain land for open space and on tax roles.

The City of Quincy provides space at the Hancock Parking Lot for the farmers market purpose. When the parking lot was modified and the meters removed, the Mayor's Office graciously made the arrangements with the Parking Garage Operators to validate the farmers' market customers' parking fee. This is a valuable contribution to the market.

Quincy Farmers' Market is looking forward to continuing its operation under our new administration and to bringing Massachusetts grown... and fresher produce to the citizens of Quincy.

His Favorite Mayor

You might say that City Clerk John Gillis is the man who officially put seven mayors in office.

When James Sheets raised his right hand Jan. 2 he was the seventh mayor to take his oath from Gillis.

The first -- Amelio Della Chiesa -- was sworn in by Gillis in 1960 -- 30 years ago.

After Della Chiesa in order came: James McIntyre, Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin and Francis McCauley. Gillis has been clerk since 1959 and was assistant clerk for two years before that. He succeeded the late Alan Cole.

Does Gillis have a personal favorite among the seven mayors he has sworn in? He does: McIntyre.

MCINTYRE

"He had compassion, intelligence and understood government," says Gillis. "He really understood government and what made it tick. He knew how to get things done -- when to stop, when to go. His timing was always good."

While a lot of political figures have great hindsight, Gillis says McIntyre had great foresight.

"It came natural with him," says Gillis.

He recalls when the original plans were put together for the Lincoln Hancock School, they did not include an indoor swimming pool.

"McIntyre said it should have a pool so that youngsters in that area could swim safely there instead of in dangerous water filled quarries."

And residents throughout the city could swim there, too.

Gillis also recalls the coming of the MBTA and how McIntyre in the triple role of mayor -- state senator -- and chairman of the Transportation Committee -- had the clout to get the best deal for Quincy.

"He virtually laid out the Red Line," smiles Gillis. McIntyre, among other things, was able to get the planned North Quincy station relocated by 350 feet which prevented a long-term construction snag and saved 22 North Quincy homes from demolition.

Gillis has another reason to be fond of McIntyre who was a close friend of his:

"He was a fairly wealthy man but he was for the little people. He wanted to do things for them. He was a fine human being."

Gillis does pretty well in the human being department himself.

He has quietly slipped a lot of money into the hands of those down on their luck who come to City Hall knowing that "Johnny Gillis is my friend."

And he has found jobs for some.

But today it is getting tougher to find those jobs.

"A lot of craftsmen -- plumbers and electricians -- are in looking for work," he says. "About four or five a day."

"Things are bad. And it looks like they will get a lot worse. I'm afraid we're going to see city layoffs before things get better."

Gillis, who is 63, has no plans for retirement. He doesn't have to retire until seven years from now when he reaches age 70.

And that will make a lot of people feel older. Especially those who remember him with a crew cut cut back in the 1950's.

"I feel good," he says. "I enjoy my work. I'll hang in there, the good Lord willing."

CITY HALL LONGEVITY honors also go to Assistant City Clerk Tom Burke who has been there with the same seven mayors. Burke succeeded Gillis as assistant clerk when Gillis became clerk.

BURKE

And, City Auditor Robert Foy has been around since 1972 and five mayors.

FOY

He came in with Hannon as city treasurer and tax collector.

Called "the great survivor," he was kept on by LaRaia who had been on the political warpath with Hannon. And Tobin who had his own battle royal with LaRaia reappointed Foy when he became mayor.

McCauley also reappointed him but after six months he became city auditor appointed by the City Council on three year terms.

Foy, who is popular and efficient probably can keep the job as long as he wants it.

The City Council also knows a good man when they see one.

SOMEONE OUT THERE has the heartfelt thanks of School Committeewoman Mary Collins. Collins was heartbroken over the weekend when Chelsea, her pet Collie, who had never strayed from the Lansdowne St., Squantum area, vanished.

COLLINS

Collins searched the neighborhood and the marshes where Chelsea usually plays. No sign of her.

Finally, she called the Quincy Police Department to ask the question dog owners dread to ask: "Have you had any reports of a dog being struck by a car?"

"No," the officer replied. "The only report we have had is from someone who reported a Collie that appeared to be lost at Squantum Marina."

Collins quickly drove to the Marina and there was Chelsea sitting on the boardwalk. Happy reunion.

"I don't know who called the police station to make that lost dog report but I would like to say 'thank you, from the bottom of my heart whoever you are.'" the city has to borrow, the more it saves on interest.

"If we don't have the money in our cash flow, we have to borrow and then pay interest. The money we pay in interest could be used for other things," Childs said.

In the three and a half years Childs has been in charge of the bills, this is the earliest the list has been compiled. He credits the continued efficiency of the department's computer system.

Between 1983 and 1985, it took the city 800 days to prepare the tax titles. This year, it took 236 days, Childs said, adding he wanted to get them out before the tax season.

"The sooner you take the action, the more you're going to have," he said, adding, "A lot of people will hang on until they absolutely have to pay."

The real estate payment notice procedure is a multi-step process.

First, the formal bill is mailed out. If left unpaid, a second notice, or demand, is sent out which adds a $5 charge and 14 percent accrued interest to the original bill.

Next, a final notice is mailed to delinquent taxpayers. This notice has no additional fee but includes the demand charge and additional interest.

Advertising delinquent taxpayers follows stating the official deadline for tax payment. After the deadline which this year is Jan. 25, foreclosure can begin.

Childs said taxpayers can avoid foreclosure by paying their bills as soon as possible. He said a fee would be assessed to those who pay after the Jan. 25th deadline.

Furthermore, interest on the tax bill increases after the deadline, from 14 percent before it goes into tax title and 16 percent after.

Childs said he hopes all delinquent taxpayers come forward with payment soon. He noted the frequent notices and advertising help the city's collection efforts.

"The sooner you send out a notice, the better the response. The sooner you can start the collection process, the better off you are," Childs said.

believe in."

And, she recalls:

"As a city kid (in Chelsea) I hardly saw a tree. When I was eight years old I got sick and spent the summer on a farm in Groton.

"It was really the first green grass I saw and I just never got over it. I loved every blade of it. I guess I am some kind of a nut, but harmless and kind of useful."

Mrs. Yeomans was a charter member of the Quincy Conservation Commission established during the administration of Mayor Walter Hannon in the early 1970's.

She served 15 years on that commission, eight as a member and seven as executive secretary. The latter job became a casualty of Prop. 2½.

Bosworth also congratulated the other 36 nominees.

"Again this year we had many outstanding nominees," he said. "To be nominated is an honor in itself because the nominations are made by those from the community."

Mrs. Yeomans will be honored at a reception to be hosted by The Sun in March at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

A member of Save Our Shores for 29 years and president the past four, she says:

"We will be phasing S.O.S. out because its main goal was to preserve the Boston Harbor Islands for recreational purposes. That is now in the process. Our work is just about done."

Mrs. Yeoman's husband, Frank, died in 1982. Their two children are Frank Yeomans, a psychiatrist in New York and a daughter, Ann, a coordinator for affordable housing for the poor in Brooklyn.

In the 1970's Ann, a rabid baseball fan, arranged to have minority youth teams from Brooklyn visit and play Quincy youth teams, the players staying at Quincy homes. This was done with the aid of Mrs. Yeomans and the late Richard Koch, executive director of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

Shipyard Eyes Super Carrier Contract

A delegation from the Quincy Shipbuilding Committee returned from Washington optimistic that the Fore River Shipyard will receive a multi-million dollar contract to build the third Forrestal-class super attack carrier.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin (R-Mass) predicted that a "reasonable bid" would bring Quincy the contract and Cong. Richard B. Wigglesworth (R-Milton) said he believed the award would not be made on a "sheer dollars and cents basis."

Members of the delegation said they were heartened by a promise from Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams that a "fair decision" would be made in awarding the contract.

The delegation included City Manager William J. Deegan, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, George A. Daly Jr., chairman of the Quincy Shipbuilding Committee, and Donald Edmonston, president of Local 5 of the Shipbuilders Union.

Meanwhile, the Yard obtained a half million dollars contract to build two digesters for the Great Northern Paper Co. of East Millinocket, Maine.

STORM CONTROVERSY

A two-day snow storm, described as the worst in some time, deposited 12 inches of snow on Quincy and evoked a split on the City Council over the quality of snow removal.

"An extremely poor job," said Councillor Carl W. Anderson.

"A very good job," said Councillor Edna B. Austin. "I haven't had a single complaint."

Good or bad, Public Works Commissioner Charles R. Herbert estimated that the cost of snow removal might go over $40,000, including the cost of hiring extra equipment and labor.

MWRA, Quincy DPW Inspect Squantum Sewer System

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and the Quincy Department of Public Works have begun a sewer inspection program in the Squantum area of Quincy to help determine the impact of the tide on Squantum's sewer lines.

MWRA Executive Director Paul F. Levy said, "We are very pleased to be working with the Quincy DPW to solve this problem. Clean water discharges to the sewer system are an unnecessary expense for the community and the entire MWRA sewer system. By making the necessary repairs now, the City can avoid costly problems later."

The MWRA has completed metering of the sewer line during both high and low tides. Approximately 2,000 feet of local sewer line will now be inspected with a special television camera designed to detect breaks and cracks in the system.

The MWRA has used this camera as part of its program to reduce the volume of clean water discharges into the sewer system and will help member communities inspect their pipes for similar problems.

David Colten, Quincy's DPW Commissioner said, "I am happy to have been involved in a project where the city and the MWRA have been able to work together cooperatively. The study is an important step towards resolving the significant problem of inflow and infiltration that the city would not have been able to undertake on its own at this point in time."

'The Amistad Affair' Sermon Topic At Bethany

The worship service at Bethany Congregational Church on Sunday will focus on the continuing worldwide struggle for human rights and justice, in recognition of Martin Luther King Day.

The sermon by Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will deal with "The Amistad Affair," a most difficult event in which justice was achieved and worked out in practical terms.

Bethany, a congregation of the United Church of Christ, is located at the corner of Coddington and Spear Sts., in Quincy Center. There are two services, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

Lay scripture readers will be Jeanette Carnathan at the early service and Jean Ross at the sanctuary service. Rev. Elizabeth M. Upton, associate minister, will be the liturgist at both hours.

At the sanctuary service the Chancel Choir, under the direction of organist Charles J. Blue, Sr., will sing as the anthem, "The Last Words of David" by Randall Thompson, and as the offertory Dawson's arrangement of "There is a Balm in Gilead."

The service will be broadcast live direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 a.m. over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday School will also be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through 9th grade. Child care is also provided for babies and toddlers.

Beginning at 11 a.m. immediately following the late service, a fellowship time with light refreshments will be held in the Allen Parlor.

Individuals and families from the area are welcome to attend the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

Mary Smith Associates Receives Landscaping Award

Mary Smith Associates Landscape Architects of Quincy was recently honored with a Gold First Place Commercial Development Award for its work with Vazza Associates and Edward A. Fish Associates.

The company provided landscape design services for several buildings, the main entry, ponds and roadways for Crown Colony Office Park in Quincy. The PRISM award was presented at a black tie gala at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston.

The awards were given to a select group of building industry professionals whose projects met the stringent criteria for design excellence set by the Sales and Marketing Council (SMC) of the Builders Association of Greater Boston (BAGB), sponsors of the award competition.

Massachusetts developments, including new construction and remodeling, residential and commercial projects, were eligible to enter. Judging was conducted by a panel of recognized development, design and marketing experts.

The Crown Colony Office Park is built within a 175-acre site. When completed, this development will accommodate two million square feet of office space in more than 22 buildings. A park-like atmosphere for the complex has been established using tree-lined boulevards, ponds, fountains and walkways.

Mary Smith Associates has designed a distinctive main entry to Crown Colony incorporating tall evergreen hedging, flowering shrubs and shade trees. The roadway within the site has been planted with Kwanzan cherries in the central islands and sycamores bordering the sides of the streets.

Park areas adjacent to several ponds on the property incorporate decorative pavements, furniture, lighting and boardwalks. In addition, the company has coordinated with project architects and designed landscapes for three of the new office buildings.

Designs are currently in progress for the Day Care Center.

The second annual PRISM awards, a celebration of the industry's best, recognized the exceptional results achieved by builder members of BAGB and their associates.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We all know that an alphabet is a system of using certain marks which we call "letters" to stand for certain sounds. The origin of the alphabet is lost in the receding centuries of the past. But the fact that a sound made by the human voice could be represented by a symbol is unquestionably man's greatest invention. Without the invention of the alphabet many of the other inventions and discoveries of early man might have been lost to future generations. The world depends upon, and has long depended upon, the records of the past. Writing has made these records available.

Let us forget, however, the use of words is no assurance of thought behind them. Our ideas may be vague or not clearly expressed. We are prone to repeat what we hear, or read, with but small understanding of what it is all about. Too often we confuse fluency of words with fluency of thought...

Language provides an efficient kit of tools for the thinker in all of his jobs of thinking. But, isn't it true, we must know how to use these tools if we are to get the most out of them?

Quincy Holds Favored North To 4-4 Tie

By TOM SULLIVAN

The winless Quincy hockey team turned in its best performance in several years and held heavily favored North Quincy to a 4-4 tie in the rivals' first meeting last Saturday night.

North Quincy's record is 5-2-1 and Quincy is 0-5-2.

North Quincy played at Newton North last night (Wednesday) and next Wednesday will be at Waltham at 8 p.m.

Quincy played Brockton last night, will be at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday at 5:30 and will host Brookline next Wednesday at 5:30.

"This was just a great showing by our kids and I couldn't be more delighted," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia, "they were really psyched up for this one and the game should be a real morale booster. We are very young and most people expected North to be much too strong for us. We had been beaten badly in our previous game and another bad beating by North would have really hurt us."

"Quincy played an excellent game and was ready to face us," said North coach Dave Peters. "But I am satisfied with our performances so far and was pleased with our 5-2 record against Greater Boston League teams."

North took the lead in the opening period as Sal Manganaro scored his 17th goal of the season with Duane Keegan assisting.

Each team scored twice in the second period as Joe Fasano scored two unassisted goals for North and Jim Marini and Scott Curtin scored for Quincy with assists for Dave Mellyn, Steve McInnis and Fred Regan.

In the third session Manganaro scored his 18th goal unassisted and Scott MacPherson scored for North with Mellyn assisting and Regan scored the tying goal with MacPherson and Sean McArdle assisting.

The rival goalies, Craig Galligan of Quincy and Pat O'Donoghue of North, played strong games and each made several spectacular saves.

Earlier in the week Peters' fears were realized as Arlington, always one of the top teams in the state, rolled over the Raiders, 9-1.

"They were just as strong as I figured and were far the better team," Peters said. "They are the best team we will face all year and I am proud of the way we staged in the game and played hard until the end."

Manganaro scored on North's first shot of the game to put the Raiders ahead for the time being. Mike DesRoche and Brian Zimmerman assisted.

Arlington, coached by 42-year veteran Ed Burns, exploded for seven goals in the second quarter.

"North Quincy was a good skating, hard playing team and we scored a lot of lucky goals in the second period," said Burns. "They played a good, clean game."

Quincy was walkover by Everett, 10-3, with McArdle scoring two goals and Paul Shine one.

George Peachey's Quincy freshman team defeated North Quincy, 2-0, another good sign for the presidents' future.

Roman, Flibbotte Tie

Roman Gardens and Flibbotte's Auto battled to a 4-4 tie in Executive Hockey League action Monday night at the Youth Arena.

Ed Mullen had a hat trick and two assists for Roman Gardens. Stan Lisowski had the other goal and John Farren had two assists and Mike Owings one. Kevin Lewis, Mark Paolucci, Mike Manganaro and Jim Cooney had Flibbotte's goals and Paolucci, Jack Erickson, Kevin Lewis and Steve Lewis had assists.

Grumpy's Pub topped South Shore Bearing, 4-2, on goals by Paul Veneziano, Rick Joyce, Marty Tolson and Mark Boulter. Ed Dwyer, Dave Perdios, Boulter, Dick McCabe, Veneziano, Joyce and Tolson had assists. South Shore goals were scored by Jay Powers and Chip Linscott with assists for John Mitchell, Frankie Guest and Powers.

Adams Sports edged Beacon Sports, 4-3, as Billy Hanson scored twice and Paul O'Brien and Mike Flaherty once each. Dennis O'Connell had three assists, Dave Lewis two and Seip Manganaro and Fred Cobban one each. Dennis Bertoni had two goals and Bob Boyle one for Beacon. Jim DePietro had two assists and Boyle, Fred Cashman and Peter DiBona one each.

TWINS Gayle, left, and Patti Morrell of Quincy are key members of the Plymouth State College Women's basketball team. The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morrell and former Quincy High players are front court standouts for coach Suzan Rowe's Panthers.

Presidents Still Looking For First Victory

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy boys' basketball team is finding the going rough with an 0-8 record, but coach John Franceschini, although naturally disappointed, is not disheartened and is still looking forward to an interesting season.

The Presidents, following a good showing against Brockton, played a lethargic game against Suburban League power Cambridge Rindge and Latin and were throttled, 78-28, last Friday.

Quincy will play at Newton North Friday night at 7:30 and will be idle next Tuesday.

Except for the Cambridge game, we have been in most games until late in the game and I expect we will regroup and start turning things around against North Quincy (last Tuesday night)," said Franceschini. "We have only one returning starter and the other teams, especially teams like Cambridge and Brockton, are bigger, deeper and more experienced."

"We played well against Brockton and I thought that our strong showing would carry over into the Cambridge game. But we didn't play well at all in that game. I don't really think any team is 50 points better than we are. But we had a fine practice the next day, the boys were upbeat and I know they would be ready to face North Quincy."

Franceschini is using six or seven players who will be back next year most of the playing time.

"Joey Russell, our only returning starter, is playing well and Mike Scolari has been outstanding on defense," Franceschini said. "He did a great job against Brockton's high scoring Curt Bostic. E.J. Nordstrom is another who has been playing good ball."

Against Cambridge (7-1), Russell led the Presidents with 14 points.

Earlier in the week Quincy held Brockton to its lowest score of the year in losing, 55-39.

"We held Brockton to its lowest total and also held Bostic to his lowest total," Franceschini said. "Brockton had only 22 points, a new low for them, in the first half. Brockton is again one of the top teams in the league and I was pleased with our effort in that game."

Nordstrom led the Presidents in that game with 17 points and Russell scored 12.

Rindge Too Much For North

The North Quincy boys' basketball team found Cambridge Rindge and Latin, a perennial Suburban League power, too much last week as the Raiders lost, 74-55, dropping their record to 2-5.

Ted Stevenson's North

team will host Waltham Friday night at 7:30 and will be at Brookline next Tuesday night.

North shut down Cambridge's vaunted back court duo of Omo Moses and Colin Lawson for three quarters but in the fourth quarter Moses scored eight of his 12 points to spark the winners. Bob Mickie led Cambridge with 18 points and Lawson scored seven.

Erik DeBoer and sophomore Desmond Bellot played the Raiders with 13 points each.

it with any Braintree officials. Specifically, the city is questioning whether the Site Safety Council is acting properly in regard to possible hazardous waste areas. "I think Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth will be looking very closely at the site selection process," McGrath said.

The deadline to file a suit against Clean Harbors is in March or April, he noted.

Sheets said he is confident that the city can defeat the MWRA in court.

"I think we're aggressively pursuing an objective that's obtainable. Our strategy is to prevent the MWRA from obtaining a permanent sludge operation."

"I think we have a chance of stopping the treatment plant. When you deal with the judicial process, there's always a chance of winning. (The lawsuits) are worth pursuing."

The mayor also said he thinks Clean Harbors is more vulnerable than the MWRA, essentially because the hazardous waste firm does not have any "built-in protection" like the state agency.

"Clean Harbors is a totally different creature than the MWRA."

Sheets noted that MacRitchie's appointment gives the law department some continuity. He will handle a number of cases he was involved in under former Mayor Francis X. McCauley, including the Woodward School lawsuit.

"With Jay MacRitchie, I think we get continuity, not just on cases he's been involved in but other cases where we'll be doing additional work."

Quincy Soldier Says Invasion 'Was I Panama Delayed Their Christmas

By JANE ARENA
Christmas came a little late this year for Stephen and Nancy (Johnston) Mallory, a former Quincy couple now living in Fayetteville, North Carolina.

But late or not, it was certainly welcome.

Mallory, 25, a member of the 82nd Airborne Division attached to Fort Bragg, N.C., returned Friday after combat in the US invasion of Panama. He had been there since Dec. 20, among the first to be sent in.

On Monday of this week, Mallory, his wife, and their two young sons, Kevin and Patrick, were celebrating Christmas in their North Carolina home. He took time out to speak with The Quincy Sun.

Mallory is the son of Raymond and Carrie Mallory of Wollaston and a 1983 graduate of North Quincy High School. He will be coming home to Quincy for two weeks furlough with his family. He said Monday that he could be back in Quincy by the end of this week, and he's looking forward to it.

So are his family and friends, who have been planning a homecoming for him.

Now that he's back, Mallory speaks freely of the day he was sent to Panama.

"We were locked in (at Fort Bragg) on that Monday (Dec. 18), and our families were totally cut off," he says of the days just prior to the mission.

"Tuesday night we boarded planes at Pope Airforce Base and at 4 a.m. on Wednesday, the 20th, we jumped to Tocumen-Torrijos Airfield (east of Panama City)."

His family, Mallory says, did not know he had been sent to Panama until later that Wednesday.

"I just didn't come home from work," he says. "Nobody knew anything until we actually jumped in. We had no connections to the outside world when we were locked in. The whole thing was kept completely secret... which is a good thing."

"There was some firing going on when we dropped (by parachute)," he continues. "We assembled at first daylight, that's when we were in most of our firefight."

The target objective for Stephen's unit was "El Tigre," a barracks where 190 of General Manuel Noriega's special forces were living, he explains.

"That was our main objective... we were under fire the whole time we were away from the bird," he said.

In his battalion, he said, a total of 17 men were wounded in action and two men were killed.

There is no hesitation when you ask him how he felt in Panama: "I was scared," he says, "You bet I was scared."

But neither does he (Cont'd on Page 11)

Teen Age Dances May Be Banned

The Quincy License Board is considering permanently cancelling Friday night teenage dance parties at the Quincy Bay Inn due to two incidents there which involved police and one of which involved a youth with a gun.

The board did cancel a dance scheduled there for this Friday.

The board has requested that the management of the Quincy Bay Inn appear at its next regular meeting,

Tuesday, Jan. 23 at 10 a.m., to "show just cause why the teenage dances should not be permanently cancelled," said Board Chairman John Gillis. Quincy Liquor Inspector, Sgt. Richard Laracy,

3 To 13.7% Budget Cuts Ride On Sewer User Fee

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
The city's clouded fiscal future should become a little clearer this week since the City Council was preparing to debate a sewer user fee proposed by Mayor James A. Sheets.

The proposal was to be discussed at a City Council Ordinance meeting Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

Sheets has proposed the fee because the city faces an estimated $15 million deficit in fiscal 1991 which begins July 1. If adopted, the fee would raise approximately $9.5 million next year to help offset that deficit.

On Tuesday, Sheets received figures from the Auditor's Office showing the scenarios connected with the fee. If adopted, Sheets will order all department heads to cut their budgets by three percent across-the-board.

However, if the fee fails, the mayor said there will be 13.7 percent across-the-board cuts in all city departments.

For example, with the fee, the school system's $38 million budget would be reduced by $862,000. The $11 million police budget would be cut by $244,000, Sheets said.

But if the fee is not approved, the school budget will be slashed by $5.2 million and the police budget by $1.5 million, the mayor said.

There were no figures available for the fire department since it is unclear whether a recently approved five percent raise has been tabulated. The hike will add $300,000 to next year's budget.

As proposed, all sewer users including major industrial, tax exempt as well as small commercial and residential users would pay a fee based on each user's contribution to wastewater flows in Quincy.

If adopted, a family of four would pay $281.19 between this July 1 and June 30, 1991.

A family of five would pay $307.15, family of nine $497.49 while a senior citizen living alone would pay $64.88.

The bill for a 64-unit apartment building would be $5,204 while the cost for a small business such as a convenience store would be $270.39.

Quincy is the only community in the MWRA servicing district without a sewer user fee. There are 43 communities in the district including neighboring Braintree, Milton and Weymouth.

According to Public Works Commissioner David Colton, two thirds of the money generated by the fee would go to the MWRA to cover assessments. This year, the assessment increased by $2 million, from $4.8 million to $6.8 million.

Included in the assessment is Quincy's share of the cost to build the new sewage treatment plant on Deer

Bringing Chips Home To Friends

Quincy Attorney Helps Tear Down Berlin Wall

Quincy Atty. George G. Burke is in East Germany this week helping to tear down the Berlin Wall.

Burke made sure he had a hammer and chisel packed with his socks, shorts and shirts when he left Quincy.

He has about 100 chips of the wall—maybe eight to ten pounds of it—to bring home to Quincy he reported in a telephone call to The Quincy Sun Monday from Checkpoint

Charlie in East Germany. He said he will give them to friends and his staff at his Hancock St. North Quincy law office. One, he said is for The Sun.

"We saw everything that was happening on the Berlin Wall and we wanted to get over here and cut down a piece for freedom," Burke said.

"And it's really exciting," he added. "Oh, is it ever exciting."

The former Norfolk

County District Attorney and City Councillor, and now a prominent Quincy lawyer, Burke made the trip to Berlin with his wife Sandra Jan. 11. Also with him are his brother, John Burke, a professor of economics at Cleveland State University, and his wife, Nancy, a Cleveland lawyer.

The four chipped down about 100 pieces of the Wall, Burke said, while East German guards watched them.

The guards, all armed, Burke said, did not interfere in any way.

"In fact, they even talked to us," he said. According to Burke, the Berlin Wall is nearly as difficult to take down physically as it is politically.

"It's made out of the hardest concrete you can imagine," he said.

While in Germany, the four also took the opportunity to tour all around East Germany, something which, only months ago, would have been impossible.

Burke said he was genuinely impressed with the conditions of the country.

"East Germany has been greatly restored from the bombings that took place during World War II," he said. "West Berlin is wonderful." The Keiser

Officials Call For Contract Evaluation After 12 School Buses Found Unsafe

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Responding to a recent safety check which found nearly half of the city's school buses unsafe, several Quincy school officials are calling for an evaluation of the city's contract with the bus transportation firm.

On Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets, Supt. Dr. Robert

Ricci and School Committee member Steve Durkin said the city should examine its $337,000 a year contract with Ryder Student Bus Transportation.

Last Wednesday, the Registry of Motor Vehicles ordered 12 out of Ryder's 27 buses off the road because of safety defects that included emergency brake that didn't work and emergency door handles that were stuck or too difficult for children to open.

By Thursday, all of the buses were repaired and back on the road. The registry check the remaining buses Tuesday, but details were unavailable at press time.

Sheets, who is chairman of the School Committee, said the city should figure out a way to supervise the maintenance and repair work of all buses. He noted that Ryder has a mechanic who is supposed to make sure the buses are up to standards.

However, the mayor noted this situation is like letting "the fox take care of the chickens." Instead, Sheets said he favors having someone other than a Ryder employee examine and check the buses.

Asked whether he thinks the safety failure is grounds for not renewing Ryder's contract next year, Sheets said "I think it's questionable whether it should be renewed." He said he would ask City Solicitor Stephen McGrath for an opinion.

In a letter to Ricci dated Jan. 15, Durkin said "it seems that safety violations on the part of Ryder have been taken altogether too lightly, not only by Ryder, but by the School Department as well."

Continuing, Durkin said, "While Ryder is responsible for maintaining the vehicles, the school system is ultimately responsible for the safety of those school children being transported to and from school. Parents have the right to expect their children will be transported safely, and their safety must not be compromised in any way."

The issue was scheduled to be discussed at Wednesday's School Committee hearing at the Quincy High Methods Center. Ricci said representatives from Ryder were expected to address the committee at 8:30 p.m.

Durkin said the city could take several courses of action against Ryder, including:

- Withholding payment under the contract for lack of performance on the part of Ryder.

- Including a penalty clause calling for payment to the school for violations if the existing contract does not already have such a condition.
- Seriously considering non-renewal of Ryder's contract.

Beyond contractual issues, Durkin said the school system should conduct spot checks of the vehicles on a regular basis to ensure that safety requirements are met.

"The casual attitude displayed by Ryder in maintaining its buses cannot be tolerated, and this issue should be resolved immediately," Durkin told Ricci.

In response, the superintendent said Ryder has made some improvements in repairs but "there's a lot to be desired. We've tried to patch things up."

Ricci also said that the problems discovered by the Registry are not "major safety issues." He also said that most of the buses are more than three years old.

As far as renewing Ryder's contract, Ricci said "We should look at it."

Ricci noted that the city has difficulty supervising the safety of the buses because Ryder's maintenance facility is in Brockton.

"The problem is the maintenance facility is not here in Quincy. It's in Brockton. Ryder has a mechanic at the Quincy bus yard (located behind the former Miles Standish School) but he can't do major repairs."

The superintendent also noted that Ryder is a large school bus transportation company and services many area communities. "I think they are just too extended to do the proper job."

According to Ricci, approximately 1,500 to 1,800 students take the bus to school daily. Most of these children are in elementary school. One middle school uses bus transportation.

West Quincy Blaze Under Investigation

One firefighter was injured when he slipped on ice during a five-alarm blaze on Arthur St. in West Quincy early Tuesday morning that caused damage estimated at between $250,000 and $350,000.

The three story wooden frame building opposite 75 Arthur St., the former site of the Finnish Temperance Hall and now a storage facility used by the Globe Vending Machine Co. and as storage and rehearsal space for area bands, was totally destroyed.

Damage to the building was estimated at between $250,000 and $350,000, according to Fire Captain George McGunagle.

McGunagle said the origin of the fire is under investigation by the Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau and the State Fire Marshall's office.

McGunagle said the contents of the building (vending machines and musical equipment) were totally destroyed as well, but had no dollar amount of the loss on Tuesday afternoon.

The initial alarm was sounded at 1:59 a.m. Tuesday, McGunagle said. When firefighters arrived on the scene, almost all of the building was involved in flames.

Subsequent alarms followed within minutes and the Quincy Fire Department received aid from Boston, Braintree, Weymouth, Milton and from Needham and Dedham on the fifth alarm.

Deputy Fire Chief Tom Gorman was in charge of the blaze until Fire Chief Paul O'Connell arrived at the second alarm, McGunagle said.

Apartment houses on Nelson and Arthur Sts. were evacuated at the height of the blaze.

Firefighter James Wong was injured when he slipped on the ice at the scene and was sent to Quincy Hospital complaining of back pain. McGunagle said that Wong was expected to be released from the hospital on Tuesday.

As of Tuesday afternoon at approximately 1:20, the all-out had not been sounded on the blaze, McGunagle said. Two companies, Engine 5 and Ladder 3, remained at the scene to control smoldering material. A crane was also at the scene to remove debris, he said.

QUINCY FIREFIGHTERS set up a ladder pipe as a five-alarm fire rages through the former meeting house on Arthur St. in West Quincy early Tuesday. Boston, Braintree, Milton, Weymouth, Needham and Dedham Fire Department assisted at the scene.

The proclamation points out the Citywide Human Rights Awareness Committee acknowledges the ongoing work and activities of organizations and individuals throughout the city concerning human rights issues and providing services to newcomers of different cultural backgrounds.

It also notes that several events are being held this month to observe Human Rights Awareness Month in QuinCY.

On Jan. 7, many churches throughout the city focused their sermons on human rights issues. On Jan. 4, a Martin Luther King birthday celebration was held at the United First Parish Church.

A Chinese New Year's banquet will be held Sunday Jan. 7 at North QuinCY High School.

In addition, groups throughout QuinCY are holding activities in connection with human rights this month.

A calendar of events is being maintained in City Hall and publicized in local newspapers and cable television.

Layoffs Dreaded Word

Layoffs is becoming a dreaded word around City Hall.

The enormous questions it raises: How many? When? Who?

Speculation is that as many as 200 — maybe more — city employees will have to go because of the worst money problems in many years.

Even if Mayor James A. Sheets proposed a "voluntary" reduction of City Hall employees, the city's estimated $9.5 million deficit will go on to eliminate a lot of jobs.

Based on sewer budget, the city is expected to cut the average salary of $29,000 annually.

It would cut the projected budget deficit for fiscal year 1991 by some $4 million — from $15 million down to $1 million.

But Sheets' main concern is that the city will be forced to balance the budget for fiscal 1991.

Present preliminary figures indicate he says, 15 workers would be dismissed to save $1 million that has to be obtained from the budget.

Speculation around City Hall is that the layoffs will number between 200 and 250. Or maybe more.

"Who will be let go?"

"It would probably be in a somewhat haphazard way," says one veteran City Hall source.

"Those with the shortest time in their jobs would be the first to go."

Hardest to let go, would be the rank and file.

It has been a long time since the word layoffs has been a topic of daily speculation around City Hall.

"This is the worst I've seen in 1930's Depression," says one source.

And he can remember the 1930's Depression although he was too young to be around City Hall.

Well, wasn't the depression worse?

Not as he remembers.

"Instead of layoffs, they cut wages to a third and a half day work week," he says.

Readers Forum Puzzling Statements On Baltic Republics

Editor, The QuinCY Sun:

President Bush and Secretary of State Jim Baker have issued very puzzling and quite frankly disturbing statements regarding the Baltic republics.

They are aware of the Baltic peoples' demands for freedom and independence from the Soviet Union, but turning a blind eye is their only response. Are they also turning a blind eye to the official U.S. position in effect since WWII, that is, that the U.S. has never recognized the Baltic republics as being part of the Soviet Union?

President Bush should not repeat the mistakes of President Wilson's attempt to save "Mother Russia" from disintegration and instead let the curse that the USSR has been inflicting on the European people for most of the 20th century and to end them free.

The President should never preserve good relations with a superpower nation at the expense of the freedom of other nations because human rights are a universal right and should never be so trivialized as to be used as a mere bargaining chip.

Fabrizio's Council Priorities:

- Curb Overdevelopment
- Go Slow On Fee Hikes
- Improve School System
- Take Active Rezoning Roll

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Curb unwanted and overdevelopment, improving the city's school system and taking an active role in the rezoning of West and South Quincy are among the top priorities of new Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio.

Fabrizio, 34, of 36 Reardon St., West Quincy, also says he would like to see a community center serving the needs of South and West Quincy residents by the end of his first term in 1991.

Regarding city finances, the freshman councillor is undecided on a sewer user fee and opposes a rubbish hauling fee. Most of all, he said he doesn't want Quincy to start imposing fees for "every service we provide."

A life-long Ward 4 resident, Fabrizio attended Quincy High School and Northeastern University. He is employed as a social worker-investigator for the state Department of Social Services.

He is married to the former Kathy Graham and they have two daughters: Nicole, age 5, and Michelle, 18 months.

Here is the text of a recent interview with The Quincy Sun:

Sun: What issue or concern is your top priority as Ward 4 councillor?

Fabrizio: My top priority as Ward 4 councillor is to preserve the character of the neighborhoods. There has been, historically, a lot of development that has interfered with the character of the neighborhoods and I believe we have to set an agenda to curb this type of unwanted developments.

Homeowners and working men and women need to have their investment of a home and property protected and I feel (curbing overdevelopment) needs to become a top priority to protect their investment.

Another top priority will be to be very active in rezoning the ward to protect neighborhoods from unwanted and overdevelopment. Mayor (James) Sheets has indicated that he will start a rezoning of the city and when it comes to Ward 4 I intend to take an active role in that and I hope to get a lot of input from the residents.

I would like to have, by the end of February, my own plan to present to the Rezoning Board and Council President

THOMAS FABRIZIO

Ted DeCristofaro with regards to the rezoning of Ward 4.

Sun: Do you have a specific goal that you would like to look back on in two years as something you have accomplished?

Fabrizio: I would like to see a community center to serve South and West Quincy. I feel it's important for our area; other parts of the city have a community center. I see a lot of good that can come out of it. I feel, for too long, we've been fragmented here which is one of the reasons why I think we have historically at times had difficulty with issues.

A community center would be a way for us to meet together as a group, as a community, and to act more as a community. I would like to see, hopefully before the end of my two years, a community center built or the Lincoln-Hancock School refurbished for that purpose.

Sun: Do you have any ideas on how this project could be funded?

Fabrizio: I would like to see, and it's already begun, (the project funded) through privatization. Presently I am working with the South West Quincy Community Relations Committee and have been, as then-councillor and now Mayor James Sheets had for quite some time, with them and people in the community interested in this.

I'd like to expand the role of local businessmen and developers into helping fund this project. There has already been a large amount of funding for this project and this needs to be continued and I'll work diligently with this committee to see that it's done.

Sun: Away from Ward 4, what other important issues do you plan to take an active role in?

Fabrizio: I think city-wide a top priority is education. I said while campaigning and I believe it's true that the reputation of a community rests on the reputation and quality of its school system.

Families who invest in property and move into a city buy more than just a piece of land and a home. They want to buy a future for their children; they want to be assured that they're getting the best that can be provided in education and therefore I think that is a top priority.

I think it affects all of us whether we have children or not. I certainly know when I was campaigning that older people, whose children have grown up and a lot of them moved out of the city understood the importance of education and what it meant to the community, what it meant to the future and what it means even in regard to the value of their own property long after their children are out of the system so I think education has to be a top priority for any elected official.

Sun: How will you make yourself accessible to your constituents?

Fabrizio: Earlier this month I had my first meeting at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School and we had between 18 and 20 people show up. I'll be advertising shortly (to hold regular meetings) the first Thursday of each month from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Lincoln-Hancock School. People can come by and attend an open forum-type meeting. It's their agenda; I'm there to listen.

I want to share ideas with people; talk about problems and concerns and I intend to do that on a regular basis throughout my term.

Sun: Are you bringing any particular legislative style to City Hall?

Fabrizio: Well I prefer to stick with my ideology as I did throughout the campaign that this is a community first and foremost where people work. I want to protect the investment of working men and women and that includes curbing over or unwanted development, that includes raising the reputation of our school system, that includes being fiscally responsible.

I believe I would rather work out some long-term plans on issues than just react to a particular problem when it happens. I think we do better when we plan ahead and we set some goals for ourselves rather than reacting to problems that come up.

Sun: As you know, the city faces a $15 million deficit in fiscal 1990-91 which begins July 1. Mayor James Sheets has proposed a sewer user fee to help balance the budget. Is this the right approach?

Fabrizio: It appears at this time, based on the information I have been given, that we have two choices: to face a $15 million deficit (without the fee) or a $6 million deficit (with the fee). Either way it calls for hard work by elected officials to go through the departments to see that people get the services they are entitled to and that they want and at the same time, be fiscally responsible.

I believe the mayor is intent on accomplishing those criteria. Sewer usage fee isn't something that is easily to be supportive of. On the other hand, it does appear at this time that a fee of some form is necessary.

Sun: Since some residents might find the sewer user fee too expensive, do you have any other ideas on how the city can raise additional revenue?

Fabrizio: It concerns me that those least able to pay for it are hurt the most. A working family with children obviously is going to consume much more than just a couple and that's why I am concerned about it.

With regards to raising revenue, I think we have to take a close look at fees we charge. I would imagine that some of the prices the city charges for particular services are somewhat outdated and need to be raised.

The administration needs to look very hard at attracting a type of industry which will produce some real revenue for this city.

However, what I don't want to see is that I don't want us to become a city where we charge for every particular service. I'm opposed to the disposal fee which charges people extra for picking up rubbish. I don't believe the city should be in the business of imposing separate fees for every service we provide.

Quincy's Yesterdays Democratic Committee, QTA Skirmish

Chairman Leo J. Halloran of the Democratic City Committee branded the Quincy Taxpayers Association "a straight-out Republican Organization" and named a committee to investigate it.

54 Years Ago

"This is a party issue now and we must combat it," said George Leary, who was named chairman of the committee along with William McDonald and Arthur St. John.

Meanwhile, the 4-year-old QTA voted to move its office out of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce headquarters in the Munroe Building, 1245 Hancock St., and break its association with the chamber.

QTA members cited the possibility of conflict of interest, saying:

"The job of the Quincy Taxpayers Association is not to sell ideas calling for increasing expenditures or try to explain to its members why we should make exceptions.

"Its job is to recognize the right of all taxpayers to benefit through equitable distribution of appropriations of their money to be expended by the city."

FIRST STORM COSTLY

The first big storm of the season brought out 1,200 men, including 700 WPA workers, and 50 trucks to combat the snow at an estimated cost of $20,000, according to Mayor Thomas S. Burgin.

The heavy snow caused postponement of the annual St. Moritz Winter Carnival and hampered firefighters who battled a blaze that destroyed the Bonin Sea Grill on Sea St.

GHG WOMEN SHOCKED

Cong. Christian A. Herter (R-Boston) shocked the Republican women of Quincy when he disclosed that the federal Public Works Administration was financing a fan dancer in a mid-western state.

Teen Age Dances May Be Banned After Fighting

submitted a letter to the Board Jan. 15 which included police reports from two separate incidents at the Quincy Bay Inn during teenage dances.

According to the police report issued by Officer C. Middendorf, last Friday, Jan. 12, a fight broke out in the parking lot of the Quincy Bay Inn, involving "approximately 20 to 30 youths."

After trying to break up the fight, the officer was forced to use mace. There were no arrests made, the report states, although one "night stick was taken from a white male during the fight." The fight broke up and all parties dispersed, the report said.

In another incident at a teenage dance held last Nov. 24, Officer Middendorf submitted a police report detailing "several fights inside involving blacks and whites," during which one black youth was seen by police with a gun and another black youth was reported as having a gun.

When police and the management of the establishment shut down the dance at 11 p.m. more fights broke out outside the club and assistance was called.

When Officer Middendorf witnessed a black youth point a gun at another youth, he was forced to draw his own weapon at which point the suspect ran off with the weapon, the report states.

According to Laracy's letter to the Board, during the November incident "we had almost all our on duty officers and assistance from over 10 Metro Police Officers to disperse the crowd outside the Quincy Bay Inn." The crowd was estimated at "approximately 100," in the police report.

In his letter, Laracy told the Board that the matter of Friday night teenage dances is a "situation that must be addressed immediately before a serious problem arises." He noted the recent violence at Vincent's in Randolph during a teenage dance held there. Vincent's has since cancelled teenage dances, Laracy noted, "so next Friday night could be a big night at the Quincy Bay Inn."

Laracy told the board on Tuesday that the management at the Quincy Bay Inn is "excellent."

"They've done everything they can do." He said that it is "the number of kids attending" (some 400) which presents the problem.

While Board Chairman John Gillis said Tuesday he is in favor of permanently cancelling all teenage dances at the club, Police Chief Francis Finn maintained that the management of Quincy Bay Inn should be allowed to discuss the matter before the board.

City Seeks Permit For Quincy Bay Outfall

The City of Quincy is seeking permission from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to connect a 90-foot extension to a 24-inch reinforced concrete storm-water outfall in Quincy Bay.

The application for the federal permit was filed with the Engineers in accordance with Section 10 of the Rivers and Harbors Act which provides for federal regulation of any work in, under or over navigable waters of the United States and Section 404 of the Clean Water Act which regulates the discharge of dredged or fill material in United States waters, including wetlands.

To assist in evaluating the proposed work, the Engineers are soliciting public comments. Written statements should be forwarded to their office no later than Monday, Feb. 12. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Peter Kube at the New England Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 424 Trapelo Rd., Waltham, MA 02254-9149.

The License Board Tuesday continued until Jan. 23 at 10 a.m., a hearing concerning closing regulation and fire code violations which were reported at Kelly's in The Square, 15 Cottage Ave., on the night of last Dec. 23.

Atty. Richard Barry, representing Kelly, was before the board and requested the continuation so that the official report, submitted by fire and police officials, can be further investigated.

The board was also told that owner Peter Kelly was in the hospital on Tuesday and could not appear before the board.

According to reports by Deputy Fire Chief Tom Gorman and Police Officer Paul Keenan, customers and a bartender were seen drinking in the restaurant after the regulated 1:15 a.m. closing regulation.

The alleged violation was discovered after a dry powder fire extinguisher had been discharged, causing smoke detectors to activate and the fire alarm to sound, the report said.

According to City Fire codes, all customers must be evacuated from a building when a fire alarm sounds.

According to the report, there were customers in the building after the alarm sounded and fire personnel arrived.

Kelly has been instructed to appear before the Board to "show just cause why his license should not be permanently revoked."

hesitate when asked how he feels now.

"I'm proud," he says. "I am happy for what we did for the people of Panama. The people there were very appreciative too, they were happy that we went in to take (Noriega) out of power...most of the people there were happy with what we did, and it was just something that had to be done."

"We weren't happy that we had to sacrifice brothers in arms," he continues, "but we're happy with what we've done."

This, he explains, was not the first time he had been to Panama. He was in the country in 1987 for JOTC (jungle training), and he likes the country and its people.

Mallory was also in Ranger School in 1987 and trained in Fort Benning, Ga., Utah, and Florida. He graduated first in his class and was decorated by the Secretary of the Army.

He also took part in the 45th Anniversary of the Invasion of Normandy in France, and re-enacted the whole battle on the beach.

Besides his parents, Stephen also has a sister, Debbie living in Wollaston. Two older brothers, Ray and Paul Mallory, live in Virginia.

Nancy Mallory's parents, Philip and Jo Anne Johnston, formerly of Wollaston, now live in Ontario, Canada. They spent time with their daughter in North Carolina while Stephen was at war. A sister, Patty Garofalo, lives in Revere.

Now Mallory and Nancy are looking forward to a reunion with family and friends in Quincy.

"And you can tell all my friends to meet me at Dee Dee's when I get there," Stephen says, "and they can all buy me a beer."

It sounds like he's earned it.

Wilhelm Church, which was bombed by the US during World War II, was left (in that condition) as a symbol of war," he said.

Burke said he also had the chance to talk to both East and West Germans and reported a lasting feeling of "jubilation," even among armed East German guards.

"Everyone is very happy," he said. "Everyone we talked to was still real excited and seemed generally excited about (the prospect of) reunification."

Burke also said that the attitude toward Americans in East Germany is one of "extreme friendliness."

"We got a great reception here," he said.

After chipping at the wall, Burke took some time to sample the beer in Germany, which, he said, is "very good."

Before returning home Saturday, Burke and his party will travel 600 miles by train from Berlin to Paris.

Bishop Hart To Officiate

Rev. Charles Logue To Be Installed Blessed Sacrament Pastor

The Rev. Charles Logue will be officially installed as pastor of Most Blessed Sacrament Parish Sunday, Jan. 21, at the 10:30 a.m. Mass with Bishop Daniel Hart officiating.

A reception will be held immediately following in St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

Fr. Logue has been pastor of the church since Jan. 4, 1990, following the resignation of the Rev. Denis O'Driscoll for health reasons.

A chaplain with the Army since 1959, Fr. Logue studied for the priesthood at St.

John's Seminary, Brighton, and was ordained on May 6, 1948 by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing at Holy Cross Cathedral.

His first assignment was to St. Rita Parish, Lowell. In late 1948 he was released for lend-lease service in the Diocese of Fargo, ND, where he served until 1953 when he returned to Boston and was assigned to St. Peter Parish, Cambridge.

After six years in Cambridge, Fr. Logue joined the Army and served as a chaplain in Texas. In 1961 he returned to Boston and went to St. Mary Parish, Waltham. In 1965, he reentered the Army and served since then in Alabama, California, at Camp Zama, Japan, at Fort Leonard Wood, MO, and in Stuttgart, Germany before returning in 1981 to Fort Devens, MA, later serving in Livorno, Italy.

Most Blessed Sacrament, his first parish, was established in 1915. Plans are underway for a 75th anniversary celebration in April.

At the 10:45 a.m. worship Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., Rev. Kathleen Graves, co-pastor with Rev. Kirk Johnson, will preach. Her theme will be the calling of the disciples and our need to respond to God.

The choir will be directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music.

Sunday School, with classes for ages nursery through adult, will begin at 9:30 a.m. During the service a nursery is available for children age five and under.

The attendant will be Ida Taylor. For children up to age twelve, there is junior church, led by Arlene Morse during the month of January.

Immediately following the worship service, coffee will be served in the fellowship hall downstairs. Nancy and Don Johnson will be serving for the month of January.

Activities for the week are: Saturday, Jan. 20 at 8 a.m. the men's prayer breakfast, at 9 a.m. an all-church work day. Workers are asked to bring buckets, sponges and rags and wear old clothes. Specific areas will be assigned to specific groups.

On Sunday, Jan. 21 at 6:30 p.m. the family night program will be "Favorite Music." Everyone should bring their favorite piece of music to tape or record or ready to perform.

The annual meeting on Sunday, Jan. 28 and coming events include a Lenten lecture series by F. Burton Nelson of Chicago, a Bonhoeffer scholar. An Ash Wednesday service will be held Feb. 28.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

Rev. Timothy Ashton To Speak At United First Parish

This Sunday, the Rev. Timothy Ashton will lead the 10:30 a.m. service and deliver the sermon at United First Parish Church Unitarian in Quincy Center. Dr. Ashton has served Unitarian Universalist Churches in Brockton, Mass., and Roanoke, Virginia. He currently serves as executive director of the Massachusetts Bay District of the Unitarian Universalist Association.

The Church Choir, under the direction of Norman

Corey, will sing anthems by Zingarelli and Haydn. Mr. Corey will also play organ works by Gibbons, Walcha and Regier.

Visitors are welcome and are invited to attend the social hour following the service. Joe and Ginny McDermott and Bob and Carol Brainerd will host the social hour. Richard and Edna Allen will usher, and Ruth Keating will be greeter.

In the Church School, the Level 1 class will hear the story "The Little Red Lighthouse" and discuss ways even the smallest can make important contributions. Teacher Joyce Sullivan will lead the children in making their own model lighthouses to bring home.

Historic First Parish, "Church of the Presidents," is located at 1306 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, opposite City Hall. There is a church school for children and youth, and child care is provided. Call 773-1290 for information.

'The Amistad Affair' Sermon Topic At Bethany

The continuing struggle for human rights and justice in the light of the Christian Faith, will be the theme of the worship at Bethany Congregational Church this Sunday. Due to the illness of the senior minister, Rev. J. William Arnold, the sermon intended for last Sunday was postponed to this Sunday.

"The Amistad Affair" deals with the events following the mutiny of slaves on a Spanish ship, who seized the vessel, gained their freedom, and touched land off Long Island. The subsequent court trials focused national attention on the issue of slavery and racism, making possible beginning strides toward justice and human rights the effects of which are still significant in present American life and law.

Bethany, a congregation of the United Church of Christ, is located at the corner of Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center. There are two services, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

Lay scripture readers will be William F. Greene at the early service and Shirley Pyne at the sanctuary service. Rev. Elizabeth M. Upton, associate minister, will be the liturgist at both hours.

At the sanctuary service the Chancel Choir, under the direction of organist Charles J. Blue, Sr. will sing as the anthem, "How Lovely Are the Messengers that Preach Us the Gospel of Peace" by Mendelssohn and as the offertory "Send Out Thy Light and Thy Truth" by Gounod.

The service will be broadcast live direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 a.m. over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday School will also be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through 9th grade. Child care is also provided for babies and toddlers.

Beginning at 11 a.m. immediately following the late service, a fellowship time with light refreshments will be held in the Allen Parlor.

Individuals and families from the area are welcome to attend the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

Tuesday evening, January 23, 7:30 to 9:00 p.m., Pastor Arnold will lead a Bible Study on "Peter: A Journey in Faith." The study is open to everyone and will take place in room 3 at the Church.

Lower Mortgage Rates Increase Home Buyers' Purchasing Power

On a national scale, home buying conditions improved slightly in November, due to steady declines in mortgage interest rates, according to a National Association of Realtors report early this month.

NAR's housing affordability index, which tracks monthly changes in home buyers' purchasing power, measured 105.8 in November, up from 105.5 in October. At 105.8, the index shows that a family earning the national median income of $33,482 for November had 105.8 percent of the income needed to qualify for conventional financing covering 80 percent of a home priced at $93,000, the median existing-home price for that month.

Half the families in the United States earn more than the median income and half earn less. Likewise, half the existing single-family homes sell for more than the median price and half sell for less.

NAR recorded an increase in the national housing affordability index in November because the interest rate used to calculate the index declined from 10.16 percent in October to 10.12 percent in November, and because the median family income rose, from $33,365 to $33,482. These two factors offset a slight increase in the national median price, which rose from $92,600 to $93,000.

The changes in the national median home price, mortgage rate, and median income between October and November resulted in an increase of only $1 in the monthly mortgage payment, which was $660 in November. The November index was the highest since February, when the index measured 106.7. One year ago, it measured 112.5. Since late summer, home buyers have regained some purchasing power lost earlier this year, when mortgage rates were at a higher level, noted NAR President Norman D. Flynn.

"We continue to see buyers taking advantage of favorable financing. The drop in rates generally is having the most impact in areas where housing is affordable for moderate-income buyers," Flynn said. When NAR's monthly housing affordability index measures 100.0, the median family income equals exactly the amount needed to qualify to purchase a median-price home, using conventional financing and making a 20 percent down payment. Because the national median income in November exceeded the qualifying income, a family earning the $33,482 median income could purchase a home priced at $98,400, $5,400 higher than the median price for November.

Under November's affordability conditions, a family earning $20,000 would have sufficient income to qualify for a $58,800 home using a $47,000 loan. A family earning $30,000 would qualify for an $88,100 home with a $70,500 loan. A family earning $40,000 would have sufficient income to qualify for a $117,500 home with a $94,000 loan; and a family with a $50,000 income would qualify for a $146,900 home using a $117,500 loan.

Although home buying conditions have eased overall, wide gaps in housing affordability still separate local markets, said NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo. "In many cases, the slow markets tend to be high-cost areas out of reach for the middle-income buyer," Tuccillo said. "Rate declines haven't been sufficient to turn those markets around."

In expensive markets, people trying to make the transition from renting to homeownership continue to face much greater purchasing obstacles than repeat buyers, he added.

NAR's monthly index measures the home buying ability of buyers of all incomes. The association publishes a separate quarterly index, which measures the home buying ability of first-time buyers. The most recent first-time home buyer affordability index, for the third quarter of 1989, showed that on a national basis, first-time buyers had only 71.0 percent of the income needed to buy a typical starter home.

The mortgage rate used to calculate the November housing affordability index is a composite of closing rates offered for both fixed-rate mortgages and adjustable-rate mortgages for existing homes as reported by the Federal Housing Finance Board.

When calculated with the Federal Housing Finance Board's effective fixed-rate mortgage interest rate of 10.34 percent for November, the housing affordability index was 103.8. When calculated with the effective adjustable-rate mortgage interest rate of 9.32 percent for November, the index was 113.3.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for real estate, representing more than 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Homeowner's Insurance: Protecting Your Castle

Homeowner's insurance protects the roof over your head and the possessions under that roof against a variety of losses and claims.

And of all the forms of insurance you can get, homeowner's insurance is the most comprehensive and economical. Since your home is most likely your single largest investment, that's good news in these days of spiraling insurance costs.

While homeowner's insurance is generally broad, it's important that your policy be tailored to your personal needs. Different policies and coverage options can extend your protection to claims ranging from million dollar libel suits, to earthquake and flood damage.

Types of Coverage: Generally, homeowner's insurance combines into a single policy coverages for your home, its contents and your liability for harm to others. Coverage for floods, earthquakes and certain other perils usually come in separate policies.

You can obtain homeowner's either through an independent agent who represents several companies, or directly from an agent for one of the major insurance carriers. In either case, this agent may be the same person who provides your car and life insurance. Agents are listed in the Yellow Pages under both the carrier's name and "insurance agents."

The two standard homeowner's insurance policies are known as HO-1 and HO-2. HO-1 is a basic policy which may provide coverage against 11 specified perils: fire or lightning, windstorms or hail, explosion, riots or civil commotion, aircraft, vehicles, theft, smoke, damage to glass or safety glazing material that is part of the building, volcanic eruption and vandalism.

HO-2 is a broad policy which costs 5 to 10 percent more than HO-1, and may cover the same perils as well as others: falling objects; weight of ice, snow or sleet; accidental discharges from utilities or household appliances; sudden damage from artificially-generated electrical current; sudden and accidental damage of a steam or hot water heating system or air conditioner; collapse of any building or part of a building; and freezing of household plumbing, air conditioning, a heating system, household appliances or automatic fire protective sprinkler system.

HO-3, called a "Special Policy" covers any and all possible perils except flood, earthquake, war and nuclear accident and others specified in certain individual policies. It costs 5 to 10 percent more than HO-2 and has become the most commonly purchased type of homeowner's insurance.

The premiums you pay for homeowner's insurance are determined by the coverages, limits and deductibles you select; the construction of the house you want to insure; and other factors companies use to assess risk, including the neighborhood's fire-protection class, the replacement costs for labor and materials in the region and the age of the house.

The Insurance Information Institute (I.I.I.) says homeowners seeking insurance should comparison shop. You should obtain estimates from at least three reputable carriers and review the coverages and policy limits offered.

Homeowners also should look into ways of cutting their insurance bills by raising their cash deductibles; inquiring about discounts for which they may qualify; and by installing burglar alarms and smoke detectors.

No. 2 League Scorer

DeBoer Sparkles In 2 Raider Wins

By TOM SULLIVAN
Erik DeBoer, 6-5 co-captain of the North Quincy boys' basketball team, is having an outstanding season and is the number two scorer in the Suburban League with an average of over 19 points a game.

Last Friday night DeBoer came up with one of the shots of the year when he hit on a three-pointer from three-quarter court at the buzzer to give the Raiders a 64-61 victory over Waltham.

With its second win of the week, North improved to 4-5.

Ted Stevenson's Raiders played at Brookline Tuesday, will host Brockton Friday night at 7:30 and will be at Newton North Tuesday afternoon at 3:30.

"That shot was unbelievable," said Stevenson. "I got to see it on tape and it was even better the second time around. DeBoer has been outstanding all season and is one of the top players in the league."

"This was a great win for us. We should have a better record, our first three losses being by two (twice) and three points, games we should have won. We were having trouble in the second half and making too many mistakes. I'm looking forward to getting even for those losses over the second half of our schedule."

DeBoer, who has scored 20 or more points in nearly every game, scored 21 against Waltham as North battled back from a 15-point deficit in the third quarter. He took a feed from co-captain Jeff Calvert on the end line, turned and fired.

Freshman Sean Donovan, who has been having an excellent season, added 16 points and tied the game at 51 with two free throws with 41 seconds left. Angelo Kyranis contributed eight points and eight rebounds. Another who has been playing well all season is sophomore Desmond Bellot, a great jumper who has been a big help on the boards.

Earlier in the week North had a big second half to defeat Quincy, 78-67, in the cross-town rivals' first meeting of the year.

The Raiders, employing a swarming, full-court press, pulled away from the Presidents in the second half after holding only a two-point lead at the half.

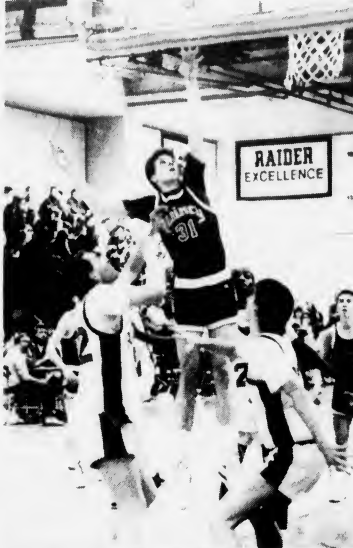

Bellot scored all 12 of his points in the second half, complementing DeBoer, who had 20 points and seven rebounds.

"We didn't play a good first half," said Stevenson. "We made some adjustments at halftime and used our press well. Pressure defense is our trademark and we live and die by our pressure."

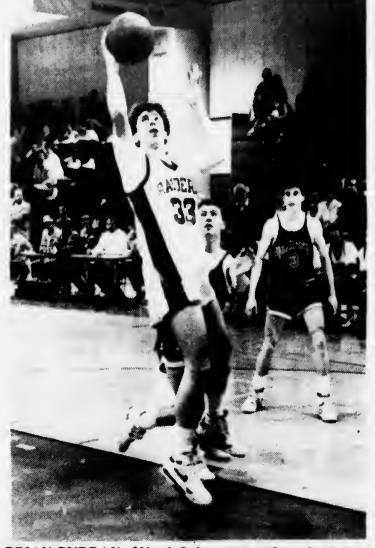

North had a 13-10 first quarter lead and a 29-27 edge at the half.

The Raiders outscored Quincy, 29-21, in the third quarter to take a 58-48 lead into the final session.

DeBoer had 20 points, Bellot 12, Dan McLean 10, Dave Cawthorne nine and Calvert eight.

Quincy Trying To Put It All Together

The Quincy boys' basketball team is still fighting hard but cannot put it all together for a victory and two losses last week dropped the Presidents' record to 0-10.

John Franceschini's Quincy team will play at Waltham Friday night at 7:30 and will be home to Brookline, the Suburban League's top team, Tuesday at 5 o'clock.

Last Friday Quincy, as usual, stayed in the game most of the way but dropped a 66-57 decision to another league power, Newton North (8-1).

Mike Scolaro had a big night for the Presidents with 19 points and 10 rebounds and Ralph Bevilacqua had 13 points and four assists.

Earlier in the week Quincy had a fine first half but let down in the second half and lost to North Quincy, 78-67, in the rivals' first meeting of the season.

The Presidents played well in the first half and trailed by only 29-27 at the half.

However, they were bothered by North's full-court press in the second half as the Raiders outscored them, 49-40.

"We were lousy," said Franceschini. "Bad shooting and breakdowns on the press hurt us. We are inexperienced and North reacted well."

E.J. Nordstrom had another good game and led the attack with 18 points, Joey Russell continued his fine play with 16. Scolaro added 11 and Bevilacqua had the only three-point goal of the game.

2 Advance To State Hoop Shoot Finals

Two Quincy youngsters have advanced to the state championship in the Elk's National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Contest. Eric Zimmerman, a grade 7 student at Atlantic Middle School, and Carolyn Williams, a grade 6 student at Broad Meadows, were crowned champion of the Elk's Circle District in a competition held at Bentley college.

Other Quincy competitors scored well at the regional competition featuring winners from approximately 20 Elk's lodges in greater Boston. Matthew McLoughlin was a 2nd place winner in the 8/9 age group making 18 of the 25 free throws. He was edged by a champion making 19. Kate Lavery in the 8/9 age group Quincy champion was tied for third in her category, while Todd Sullivan was 4th in his 10/11 age category.

Each youngster had qualified to advance to Bentley College after capturing the City of Quincy Championship in a contest supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department and sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks, there are more than 3.4 million contestants nation wide in this activity which concludes with a National Championship being crowned in Market Square Arena, Indianapolis, Indiana.

Over 250 Quincy youngsters took part in the competition in three age groups for boys and girls.

Zimmerman is in the 12/13 age category, while Williams is in the 10/11 age category.

Locally Ed Miller, former North Quincy High School and current Marshfield High School coach, is the Hoop Shoot director for the Quincy Lodge of Elks. Barry J. Welch, the Director of Recreation for the City of Quincy, coordinated the city championship and 1st round competitions which are conducted free of charge to participants in the Quincy Recreation's after school and Saturday winter recreation programs.

Trophies were presented to champions and runners up at the district championship. The state championship will be held February 17.

Quincy Still Winless But Gets 3rd Tie

Quincy's hockey team has yet to win its first game of the season, but the Presidents did get their third tie, 4-4, against Cambridge Rindge and Latin last Friday to make their record 0-6-3. Quincy already has one more point than it had all last season when it finished at 1-18.

The Presidents met Brookline last night (Wednesday), will be idle Saturday and will be at Waltham next Wednesday at 6 o'clock.

"A tie is better than a loss, but the disappointing part is that we lost good leads in two of our ties," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "In our opening game we had a 5-2 lead late in the game but were tied by Malden and against Cambridge we got off to a 4-0 lead."

The Presidents held a 3-0 lead after a period and made it 4-0 in the second before Cambridge battled back and scored the tying goal on a power play with 1:06 left to play.

Craig Galligan had 15 saves in the Quincy goal.

Earlier in the week Quincy was bombed by Brockton, 9-1, with McPherson scoring the goal and Fred Reagan assisting. Galligan had 26 saves as Brockton had 35 shots on goal.

John Peterson, one of the Suburban League's top players, had a big night for Brockton with four goals and two assists.

Slumping Raiders Bow To Newton North

The North Quincy hockey team, which won its first five games, has been in a slump and in its last four games tied one and lost three to drop its record to 5-3-1 (0-1-1 in the Suburban League).

Idle last Saturday, the Raiders dropped a 5-2 decision to Newton North earlier in the week.

North played Waltham last night (Wednesday) at Watertown, will host Brookline Saturday at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will be home to Brockton next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

The Raiders had one of the top scoring lines in the state in Sal Manganaro, Joe Fasano and Brian Zimmerman, but coach Dave Peters has split them up to give the team more scoring balance.

The three had combined for an impressive 65 points going into last night's Waltham game. Manganaro had 18 goals and nine assists, Fasano 13 goals and nine assists and Zimmerman eight goals and eight assists.

"There is no doubt this would be one of the highest scoring lines, but I think we need more scoring balance rather than have that first line do the bulk of the scoring," Peters said.

"I feel one of the reasons for our slump has been the absence of two of our top players. With them back, I think we will get rolling for the rest of the season."

Fasano scored both goals against Newton North with Manganaro having an assist.

"We were only behind, 3-2, late in the game but Newton added an insurance goal and scored the fifth goal into an open net," Peters said.

The four-game win streak started with a 53-42 win over B.C. High, led by Matt Dwyer's 13 points.

The young Presidents then defeated North Quincy, 61-45, with Erik MacFarlane scoring 18 points. Also playing well were Capt. Robbie Kane, Mike Kavanaugh, Noel DiBona and Dwyer. Draicchio was able to use all its players in this game.

Quincy topped Newton North, 48-38, having to go to the bench early because of foul trouble. Kenny Downey had eight points to spark a second quarter spurt that put Quincy ahead to stay. Dwyer led the attack with 16 points.

In its latest game Quincy avenged its earlier loss to Braintree with a 49-46 victory, featuring strong defense and an impressive offense led by Kane with 20 points. DiBona had 12 points.

"It was nice to defeat a tough B.C. High team and undefeated Braintree," said Draicchio. "The team has worked hard every day at practice and the results are showing."

The roster includes Chris Bistany, Jason Crosby, DiBona, Downey, Dwyer, David Flaherty, Kane, Kavanaugh, Kenney, MacFarlane, Mark Miner, Shaheen, Pat Shea, Mike Sugrue, Rob Wilbosky and Mike Wilson.

The Quincy freshmen will be at Waltham Friday.

North Tops Quincy, Bows To Waltham

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, after defeating Quincy for the second time, turned the ball over 10 times in the second quarter and lost to Waltham, 44-28, last Friday, dropping its record to 6-3.

The North girls played at Brookline Tuesday, will play at undefeated Brockton Friday night at 7:30 and will host Newton North Tuesday at 5 o'clock.

The 10 second quarter turnovers led to an 18-7 run for Waltham and the North girls were unable to make up the deficit.

Kerry Tolson led the North offensive with 10 points.

Earlier in the week Quincy edged a spirited Quincy club, 34-30, in a defensive battle which saw the North girls holding Quincy to one point in the second quarter as they took a 14-7 halftime lead.

Tara Miles led the North with 13 points, including two three-pointers and scored nine of her points in the second half. Kerry Tolson chipped in with eight points.

The North girls widened its halftime lead to 21-9 when Tricia Hughes converted an offensive rebound and Miles added a basket.

Miles' second three-pointer gave North a 29-18 lead with 5:07 to play. Quincy cut the gap to 32-27 with 3:05 remaining and North needed free throws by Miles and Kara Sullivan to clinch the win.

This was the first Suburban League game between the cross-town rivals. The North girls had defeated Quincy in the consolation game of the Christmas Tournament at Weymouth South.

Quincy Snaps Losing Streak

The Quincy girls' basketball team snapped a six-game losing streak last Friday night when it exploded for a 58-41 victory over Newton North, improving its record to 2-8.

Doug MacFarlane's Quincy team will be home to Waltham Friday at 5 o'clock and will play at Brookline Tuesday, also at 5.

"We have been playing better than our record indicates and were due for a game like this," said MacFarlane, whose team has been in most games most of the way. "Our full-court zone press worked well in this game and we built up a big early lead, something we haven't been able to do in the past."

Quincy rolled to a 17-1 lead in the first quarter and never looked back.

Junior Amy Baker paced the Quincy girls with 14 points, six steals and seven rebounds. Melanie Sullivan had eight points and eight rebounds.

Newton North cut Quincy's lead to 27-17 before Quincy went on a 20-10 run in the third quarter.

Earlier in the week Quincy suffered a nightmarish second quarter when it scored only one point as it lost for the second time to North Quincy, 34-30.

It was the first Suburban League meeting between the rivals. North had defeated Quincy in the consolation game of the Christmas Tournament at Weymouth South.

Quincy trailed North, 14-7, at the half after its awful second quarter. Quincy was behind, 23-17, after three quarters as it outscored North, 23-20, in the last two quarters.

In the third quarter Quincy went on an 8-2 run to move within six points as Baker and Julie McCloskey had key baskets.

With North leading, 29-18 and 5:07 left to play, Baker hit on a three-pointer, one of her two, and Erin Doherty added a free throw to make it 32-27. Foul shots by North's Tara Miles and Kara Sullivan clinched the win.

The Presidents last weekend won the Westside Invitational.

Quincy also defeated Malden, 34-31, and Brookline, 45-20, to improve to 8-1 overall and 4-0 in the Suburban League.

The Malden meet came down to the heavyweight match as Quincy was trailing, 31-30. Tom Burton faced Malden's unbeaten Dan Ford, who outweighed him by 40 pounds. Burton, a junior, dominated the third period to win, 14-5, and improve his record to 5-1.

In the Brookline meet sophomore Greg Souza (6-1), senior Al Souza, who won his 25th straight dual meet match, senior Tom Fratolillo (5-2), Bob Stanton (4-1) and Ally Sleiman (5-4) won their matches and Dave Cahill (6-2-1) tied his opponent.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Many people have a problem which keeps them from being effective in their daily lives.

What is it? It is simply that they have difficulty in taking and living life one day at a time.

How many people do you know who are constantly worrying and anxious about tomorrow? They spend a lot of time planning what they are going to do tomorrow and when that day comes, they seem to be in the same predicament. Worrying about tomorrow.

How many people do you know who live in the past? They reminisce about the good old days. They comment, "The past is best." Then there are those who forget the good old days and only recall the past hurts, guilts and wrongs. For them the past seems to hang over them, casting a pall over each day.

Perhaps the saddest thing about not living in the present is that one could live a whole lifetime and completely miss life. In Psalms 118:24, the Psalmist wrote, "This is the day which the Lord has made; let us rejoice and be glad in it."

There are enough troubles to be concerned about today without worrying about yesterday or tomorrow. Live today and take care of today's problems today. It can have a profound effect upon your life.

Mystery Comedy Dinner Theatre At Raffael's

Raffael's restaurant, 1 Monarch Drive in the State Street South Towers will host a limited premiere engagement beginning Jan. 19 of the new audience participation mystery-comedy "Death Dines Out."

Co-authors are playwrights John Chatterton, and Jim Bright who also directs the play and staged by Comedy Showcase Productions.

"We always have heard from our childhood that crime doesn't pay," observes Elio Ricci, owner of Raffael's, "but in terms of dinner-theatre, the comedy-mystery in the past several years have been a major box office hit throughout the country. However, it's not the dinner per se, nor the play that has excited theatregoers as much as it is audience participation."

Such is the case of "Death Dines Out," with a restaurant setting where diners are invited guests to a party being held for Henrietta Lowell

Cabot Quincy Stone by her daughter to cheer the Brahmin dowager who has been saddened by the demise of her father and husband in a plane crash. Mrs. Stone, also a victim of the crash, was the only survivor.

Unique to this dinner-theatre production at Raffael's is the extensive use of theatrical effects within the audience dining area where the play takes place (no stage) including special lighting, sound effects and surprise events.

As the evening begins with a 1/2 hour cocktail reception, and throughout the two-hour dinner to follow, the play's actors remain virtually incognito among diners with the exception, perhaps of the show's moderator portrayed by author/producer John Chatterton, and a slightly offbeat undercover policeman in attendance on a separate investigation. The masquerade of identity is sustained throughout the show because innocent diners - not always cast members - are swept into the plot as interrogated suspects of crimes which occur during the party.

Diners will receive ballots in their show programs which are used at the conclusion of the mystery-comedy to decide who committed the crimes and the reason why. When the special investigator has announced his conclusions, prizes will be awarded to audience members for both the best and worst "indictments."

"Death Dines Out" plays Friday and Sunday, Jan. 19 and 21, 26 and 28; and Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 2, 3 and 4; and 9, 10 and 11.

Performances begin on Fridays and Saturdays with cocktails at 7:30, dinner and show at 8 and on Sunday with cocktails at 6:30 and dinner and show at 7.

3 To 13.7% Budget Cuts Ride On Sewer User Fee

Island and other improvements to the MWRA sewer system.
In addition, the fee would help pay half of the city's Sewer, Water and Drain Department; 25 percent of the sewer salary line for employee benefits; seven percent of sewer budget for overhead and $214,000 for debt service, Colton said.

The commissioner emphasized the city needs the fee to offset a $3.4 million reduction in state aid and soaring sewer assessments. He noted that in previous years, multi-million dollar surpluses covered those costs.

However, this year there will not be any major surplus. This fiscal year is expected to end with a $10 million deficit but a surplus should cover that shortfall.

"The city should be congratulated for being able to absorb those costs. But when state aid is cut and assessments jump, it's a double whammy."

"We don't have control over assessments and we don't have control over state aid," Colton said.

Sheets decided to propose the plan early to give the Council enough time to discuss it. He noted that he has until April 2 to submit next year's budget.

Before drafting it, Sheets said he wants to know the fate of his plan. Either way, the mayor admitted there will be cuts.

"Obviously, I want cuts to be made which will least affect the level of services. We'll try to make the cuts in those areas which least affect the delivery of services."

"I think the department heads know where these cuts can best be made," Sheets said.

"I think it comes down to the level of city services. If we don't have a sewer user fee, you're going to see many cuts in all departments and that will reduce the level of services."

"I don't think anyone wants a sewer user fee but the question is, at what level are you going to continue to fund the services Quincy has? The only revenue we can use is the sewer user fee. If the decision is no, we'll make the cuts," Sheets said.

Asked whether he thinks the public supports his plan, the mayor replied, "I think the public is aware the city is in a deficit situation."

He pointed out that he discussed the city's financial future at a press conference in December with former Mayor Francis McCauley and again during his Inaugural Address two weeks ago.

Sheets added, "Do the people want to pay a sewer user fee. No. Do I want to pay a sewer user fee? No. No one wants to pay additional fees but we're in a deficit because of what the state has done."

The fee proposal is expected to spark some spirited debate among councilors. There appears to be the necessary support for passage (five out of nine councilors) but several are still undecided.

One councilor who supports the measure is Peter Kolson who represents Ward 1. Kolson, one of two freshmen councilors, said the city "will come to a grinding halt" without the fee.

"We all understand the predicament we're in," he said, noting the state's red ink and reductions in state aid. "The state has done a lousy, lousy job. The tail is wagging the dog. There's absolutely no leadership. It seems each representative has his or her own agenda."

Continuing, Kolson said, "We're going to have to vote for this. There's no way out. I know everyone is overburdened with taxes but I just don't see any other way, at least not for the near future anyway."

"The city is going to come to a grinding halt if we don't pass it. We will cease to exist," he added.

One councilor who is opposed to the fee is Thomas Nutley from Ward 6. Nutley, who estimated his water and sewer bill would escalate to $2,000 by 1996 if the fee is adopted, said, "I don't know how people can pay it."

Nutley, who met with Sheets Tuesday morning, said, "I want to see all of the current numbers in writing. I want to see all the projected numbers showing cuts in writing," he said.

During their meeting, Nutley suggested several alternatives to the sewer user fee. Among them were no pay increases for city employees next year as well as a $10 million Proposition 2 and a half override. He noted that an override would allow homeowners to deduct the sewer bill from their federal income taxes.

Nutley also said he is "strongly opposed to any political patronizing that some might be apt to do" in light of the sewer user fee proposal such as allowing some groups to be exempt.

Furthermore, Nutley has suggested more consolidation and joining Quincy and North Quincy High School.

"My recommendations are less regressive. They're not painful to the working class. The sewer bill is more regressive."

In addition, Nutley suggested raising revenue by charging each family $50 for each household car over two. This plan would raise nearly $2 million, Nutley estimated.

The councilor also said the city is adopting state policies by raising taxes when times are fiscally tight.

"We're all too busy wiping up the flood (current deficit), no one remembered to turn off the faucet (future deficit). We can't go on like the state spending more than we take in," he said.

Closes After 42 Years

Montclair Men's Club Slips Into History

The Montclair Men's Club, a civic-social institution for more than four decades, has passed quietly into Quincy's history.

The 42-year-old club closed its doors at the end of December and the familiar green shingled single story wooden building on Holbrook Rd. has been sold.

It has been purchased by Richard Mulcahy of Hanover and is now undergoing interior and exterior renovations for its new role as a day care center. Purchase price was reported as $150,000.

"It was a sad thing to do but there was little choice," says Joseph Gildea of Division St., a charter member and second president of the club.

Gildea, himself a club institution, was chairman of the popular annual Sports Nights which brought some of the biggest names in professional sports to the club to be honored for their achievements.

The club became a victim of the times.

Gildea attributes its demise to a lack of new members and to rising taxes and costs to operate the club and maintain the building.

"The young people just did not want to join or could not," he says. "They simply did not have the interest or the time."

"A lot of them are now working two jobs trying to buy a house. They don't have the time to join or take part in the club."

Gildea estimates the club had 110 members of record at the end but, he says, "very few were active." Dues were only $20 a year.

Another problem was vandalism to the clubhouse, Gildea says.

Taxes, he says, were continually rising and some of the members were kicking in to help pay them.

The club was a voice of the people in the Montclair section of North Quincy and an effective one in many instances.

Members, for example, strongly opposed a proposal to build condominiums on the Wollaston Golf Course off West Squantum St. when that club pulled up stakes and moved to Milton.

Instead of condos, or other development, the course remained open space and became the Presidents Golf Course operated by Norfolk County.

Club members also successfully fought plans for an incinerator on the Montclair marshes and speeding traffic in the area. They also got improved street lighting.

"We had a nice group of members," says Gildea. "It was sad for us to have to end it."

Among the members were many political figures including Lt. Gov. Francis Bellotti, Mayors James McIntyre, Joseph LaRaia and Arthur Tobin, Senator Paul Harold, Rep. Joseph Brett and others. Politically, the club endorsed only members running for office.

Sixty one persons were honored by the club at its Sports Nights which began in 1949 at the North Quincy High School auditorium and moved to the clubhouse in 1951. Among them, most of them sports figures, were:

Sheets Names Fishman New Personnel Director

Kathleen D. Fishman of 37 Hayden St., Quincy, has been appointed the city's new Personnel Director by Mayor James A. Sheets.

Fishman, 30, is currently Quincy's Benefits Coordinator, responsible for all aspects of employee health, dental and life insurance plans.

Her appointment is effective Monday, Jan. 29. The term expires the first Monday of February, 1991.

In her new $43,481 a year position, Fishman will process all personnel in Quincy. Her responsibilities include handling applications, retirements, grievances, retirements and employee compensation.

Fishman is also in charge of making sure all Civil Service requirements are met and a person's Civil Service rights are protected.

Sheets said he has not yet defined her role in the city's negotiations with municipal employees.

"Some directors have become more involved in negotiations with unions and I'll be looking at her role in negotiations in the next week or two and define what that role will be in my administration," the mayor said Tuesday.

Most municipal contracts are up for negotiations in June.

In announcing the appointment, Sheets spoke very highly of his newest department head. He also praised the work of outgoing Personnel Director David Smith.

"We considered several people for that position. I was not dissatisfied with the job

Action Expected Feb. 5

Council Indicates Sewer User Fee Will Be Passed

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A sewer user fee proposed by Mayor James A. Sheets will likely be approved by the City Council Monday, Feb. 5 and therefore apply to the last quarter of fiscal 1990.

The fee, proposed by Mayor James A. Sheets, would raise approximately $9.5 million in FY 1991 to help offset a projected $14.6 shortfall.

With or without the fee, Sheets explained the city faces reductions in city services. If the fee is approved, there will probably be three percent cuts in all departments "across the board."

If not supported, there will likely be 13.7 percent cuts in all departments.

Based on discussions at two recent meetings of the City Council Ordinance Committee, which is composed of all councillors, amended the fee to allow a 25 percent abatement for those eligible for a $500 real estate property tax abatement.

The discount would only apply to property owners age 70 and over who, if single, have an income of not more than $13,000 and have assets less than $28,000. For couples age 70 or over, the reduction would apply only to twosomes making less than $15,000 with assets less than $30,000.

According to Tax Collector Dana Childs, about 650 of the city's 23,000 property taxpayers would be eligible for the abatement.

The abatements would not apply to renters.

Ward 3 Councillor suggested the abatement. He also recommended funding a water conservation program which the council endorsed. Councillors also suggested the School Committee initiate a water conservation program as part of the curriculum.

Besides Nutley, Councillor-at-Large Tim Cahill voted against the abatement. They remarked that all citizens should share the burden of the new fee. Cahill also stated that those who receive a discount may be less apt to conserve water.

The fee would be based on consumption; the more water used, the more people would pay and vice versa.

The consumption rate of the water used in a particular household. In other words, 70 percent of the water used by a household would be charged as sewer water.

The MWRA estimates that 80 to 85 percent of household water flows into the sewer system.

The fee is being advertised and councillors are seeking public comment.

The Ordinance Committee will discuss the fee again next Monday at 7 p.m.

According to City Clerk John Gillis, councillors can approve the fee by a simple majority vote at their next meeting Feb. 5. If approved Feb. 5, the fee will apply to the last three months of fiscal 1990: April, May and June.

As a result, a family of four would owe $62.25 for the last

Board Suspends Restaurant On Fire Code Violations

By JANE ARENA

Kelly's In The Square restaurant, 15 Cottage Ave., owned and operated by Peter Kelly, will have its license suspended for a period of five days because of fire code violations on the night of last Dec. 23, which jeopardized the public safety, according to License Board Chairman John Gillis.

The five-day suspension will not be established until after a three-day appeals option period has passed, the board said.

The hearing was called by the board after police and fire department reports cited alleged violations of both fire code and closing regulations. Fire Chief Paul O'Connell requested the hearing in a letter to the board Dec. 29.

According to a report by Deputy Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, fire alarms were sounded when dry powder fire extinguishers caused smoke detectors to activate in the building.

When fire personnel arrived on the scene, the report stated, they found doors locked and an elevator locked in the basement position. They also found two female patrons drinking at the bar along with a bartender. The bartender, according to the police report, was drinking a bottle of beer.

According to City fire regulations, all persons, not employed by the establishment, should be evacuated from the premises when a fire alarm sounds.

According to city closing violations, all drinks must be off the bar by 1:15 a.m. and all customers must be out of the establishment by 1:30 a.m. Quincy Liquor Inspector told the Board that the city's closing agreement had been signed by Mrs. Rosemary Kelly on Nov. 1, 1988.

One of the patrons seen at the bar, Gigi Prete, spoke before the board Tuesday and explained she was sitting at the bar, at the invitation of the bartender, because she had hurt her knee while dancing. She also told the board that she was drinking grapefruit juice at the point in question. The second female, a friend of Prete's, was not drinking at the time either, she said. The woman asked not to be identified by the press.

Mrs. Kelly, appearing before the board with her Atty., Richard Barry, told the Board that she was acting manager at Kelly's on the night in question because her husband was at home ill. Peter Kelly did not appear before the Board on Tuesday.

She told the Board that fire extinguishers were set off by patrons of a party held in the basement of the establishment as a prank after the party.

She said that at that time, about 1:30 a.m., employees were cleaning up the basement area after a party and that there were people employed by the band packing up equipment near the elevator.

Kelly said she then went to the lobby area to speak with Deputy Fire Chief Gorman. She told the Board that, at that time, she was unaware that there were two customers still at the basement area bar.

Board members, including Police Chief Francis Finn and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell, told Kelly that, as manager, it was her responsibility to get all customers off the premises when an alarm sounded.

Chief O'Connell also questioned Prete about her remaining at the bar during the alarm. She said she had explained to Gorman she

License Board Rules:

Teenage Dances Can Continue With Conditions

By JANE ARENA

The Aquarius Lounge at Quincy Bay Inn will be able to continue Friday night teenage dance parties as long as they follow conditions set Tuesday by the License Board, Board Chairman John Gillis said.

The dances have been held there since November of 1989, 1989.

From now on the establishment must sell advance tickets to events likely to draw a larger crowd, including holidays, school vacations, and any event where there is to be live entertainment. The Board hopes that this will give the police department advance notice on when more detail officers should be assigned to the dances.

The board had considered cancelling the teenage dances at Quincy Bay Inn after reports on two incidents there which involved police, one of which involved a youth seen with a gun.

According to a report issued by Police Officer C.

Middendorf, a fight broke out outside the establishment on the night of Jan. 13, which involved "approximately 20 to 30 youths." The report states that the officer used mace to break up the fight and that no arrests were made.

The incident also involved youths running and jumping on the roofs of cars in the parking lot, according to a letter by Sgt. Richard Laracy, City Liquor Inspector, which accompanied the police report.

The other detail officer on duty Jan. 13, William Lannergan, was before the board Tuesday and told the board that police assistance had been called for, but that the youths dispersed as soon as they heard police sirens. Further assistance was cancelled after the first cruiser arrived on the scene, he said.

Officer Middendorf also wrote the report on an incident Nov. 24, 1989, which involved a black youth seen with a gun and another black youth reported as having a gun. No arrests were made on this night either, the report stated.

Both Sgt. Laracy and Officer Lannergan told the board that the fights were "not racially motivated."

Kevin Nacar, Vice President of Operations for the Quincy Bay Inn, spoke to the Board on Tuesday.

He explained that for Friday night teenage dances, his staff is comprised of three managers, ten male floor people, three female floor people, three bartenders for the soda and juice bar, and two to three detail police officers, depending on the size of the crowd. He also outlined procedures implemented after the November incident.

He told the board that, as they enter, each patron is checked by a metal detector. The metal detector has not caught anything, he said. The group is split into two lines and undergoes a "pat down search" by either a male or female door person before being admitted to the club.

Nacar told the board that the youths have no objections to the procedure.

He also told the board that there are sometimes small lines outside the establishment before a dance, but that they are never oversold.

Although the legal capacity for the establishment is 500, Nacar, by choice, has limited the number to 400 for all teenage dances. He said he has only reached that limit once.

Nacar also told the board that the incidents in question were not racially motivated.

"Sometimes, with 300 or 400 people, there are three or four trouble-makers," he said.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell noted that recent violence at a teenage dance at Vincents in Randolph erupted because a line of some 800 youths were turned away at the door.

Teenage dances at Vincents have since been cancelled.

O'Connell suggested that Nacar sell advance tickets to the dances so that there will be no reason for kids to wait in line before the dance.

Nacar said that there is never a line outside the Quincy Bay Inn because there is no fear that they will not be admitted.

The problems, Nacar said, occur after the dances when kids go outside to wait for rides or cabs home.

Nacar said that the management has already implemented methods for filtering customers out slowly after the dance. He said a dance contest is held at 11 p.m. and some leave at that point, and that slower music is played toward the end of the night and some customers leave then.

He added the club also has a strict no re-admittance policy. Once someone leaves, they are not allowed back inside, he said.

Police Chief Francis Finn told Nacar that he does not want the dances advertised outside the Quincy area.

"I am not saying that Quincy kids are any better than Boston kids," Chief Finn said, adding that there may be less inclination for youths to fight when everyone in attendance is from Quincy.

Although Nacar said he does not advertise the dances, Sgt. Laracy noted that they are mentioned on a Boston radio station. Nacar explained that this is because a radio D.J. appears at the dances. He said he does not want to advertise.

Both Sgt. Laracy and Officer Lannergan suggested that more police presence should be at the dances when larger crowds attend.

In an effort to monitor the crowd size in advance, the board asked that advanced ticket sales be conducted for those events expected to attract more kids, including holidays, school vacation time, and any time there is live entertainment. When a crowd of over 300 people is expected, Gillis said, a third detail police officer will be hired for inside

Fund Established For Houghs Neck Family Left Homeless By Fire

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The Mellyn family of Houghs Neck, left homeless after a three-alarm fire gutted their home last Friday, has found temporary housing and will rebuild on site, a family friend said Monday.

The fire at 26 Bay View Ave. started at 10:15 a.m. after a clothes dryer located on the first floor apparently malfunctioned. The blaze spread quickly into the second floor and attic, gutting most of the two-and-one-half story structure.

To help the family, a Mellyn Family Relief Fund has been established at Quincy Savings Bank. Anyone wishing to contribute can by visiting the main office at 1200 Hancock St., Quincy. Donations can also be sent through the mail.

Deputy Fire Chief Joseph Walsh estimated damage in the fire at $175,000.

Norma Mellyn, who lived in the two-story seaside home with her husband, Arthur, and five of their seven children was at home with an elderly relative with the fire started. She telephoned firefighters and left the house, Walsh said.

Arthur Mellyn had lived in the house all his life. His father bought the house in 1929. It was insured.

The Mellyns and five of their seven children lived in the house; Suzanne, 32, Kevin, 31, Nancy, 23, Peter, 21, and David, 17. Daughter Debbie Vecchione, 24, lives in Quincy and another daughter, Kathy Mitchell, 29, lives in Bridgewater.

Nancy Mellyn is a full-time teller at Quincy Savings Bank. The fund was set up by co-workers.

On Monday, a family friend said the Mellyns had found temporary housing over the weekend. The family was expected to move into a mobile home on their property at 26 Bay View Ave. later this week.

The Mellyns are also planning to rebuild a home on their property, the friend said.

For now, the family is trying to overcome their loss and plan their future.

"I think they are still in shock. It is devastating to lose everything in the matter of an hour or two," the friend said.

Captain David Usher and 10 firefighters received minor injuries and were treated at Quincy Hospital and later released. Usher experienced chest pains.

The first alarm sounded at 10:17 a.m. and second and third alarms were struck shortly after firefighters arrived. Some 15 pieces of equipment, including seven engines, five ladder trucks and one tower responded.

The all clear was sounded at 12:26 p.m.

The first firefighters to arrive found little smoke or fire showing, but it suddenly "flashed" and spread rapidly, Walsh said. At one point, firefighters were ordered off the roof when it showed signs of weakening.

Strong winds and the steep grade leading to Quincy Bay at the rear of the house made fighting the fire more difficult. Because of the steep grade and drop, firefighters could attack the blaze on only three sides.

Fire hoses were placed between the burning building and nearby homes located within 30 feet of the building as a precaution.

The blaze was under control in about 90 minutes.

In addition to Usher, these firefighters were injured, treated and released: Russell Patton, Ted Johnson, Edward Nardone, Steve Shaw, Donald Reddington, William Barron, John Jackson, Theodore Rouillard, Michael Davis and Gerald McCourt.

DEPUTY FIRE CHIEF Joseph Jackson, left, and Capt. Frank Sullivan, confer during a three-alarm fire which gutted a two-and-a-half story family home at 26 Bayview Ave., Houghs Neck, last Friday. The blaze, which started in a clothes dryer, left seven people homeless and injured 11 firefighters including Jackson's son, John, who suffered facial burns when he was caught in a flashback.

Regulations Issued Against Employee Intoxication In Liquor Places

The Quincy License Board Tuesday adopted a formal regulation against employees of a liquor establishment being intoxicated while on duty.

The action came after a recommendation by Quincy Liquor Inspector Richard Laracy in a letter to the Board Jan. 23.

In his letter, Laracy pointed out that no state statute exists making it a violation for bartenders or waitresses to be intoxicated while on duty.

Laracy also noted that "licensing boards may promulgate regulations regarding conduct of licensed businesses, including drinking by employees."

Laracy based his recommendation on an action taken last year by the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (A.B.C.C.). The action overturned a three-day suspension of a license of a bar in Winchendon, MA because the bartender on duty was intoxicated.

Although the decision said that individual licensing boards may adopt regulations against bartenders and other employees being intoxicated while on duty, the suspension was overturned because the town of Winchendon does not have such a regulation.

In his letter, Laracy said that "there has been one occasion in Quincy where I have warned a bartender that if I catch him intoxicated on duty again I will take the establishment before the Licensing Board." The letter did not name the establishment.

"I would like to recommend to the Board," the letter continues, "that any employee of a licensed liquor establishment who is actively involved in serving alcohol to the public and is intoxicated while on duty is in violation of License Board regulations."

The Board adopted the regulation and will issue a memorandum to that effect, said Board Chairman John Gillis.

This feature focuses on questions most frequently asked by callers and will be answered by curious members of the Norfolk County Bar Assn.

- Q. If I am arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol do I automatically lose my license?
- A. After being arrested for O.I.I. if you take a breath test and score a reading of .10 or above, then the court will take your license for a period of 90 days at your arraignment. If you refuse to take the breath test, the arresting police department will notify the Registry of Motor Vehicles of your refusal to take the test. The Registry will then suspend your license for 120 days for refusing the breath test.
- Q. What is P.I.P. in auto insurance and what is the recent change in P.I.P. benefits?
- A. P.I.P. stands for personal injury protection. These are no-fault benefits paid to you and those injured or killed in auto accidents. There are three kinds of benefits which are compensated:

1. Medical Expenses
2. Lost Wages (Up to 75%)
3. Replacement services (i.e. Household)

The benefit has been increased from $2,000 to $8,000

Quincy's 'Ward 7'

Dedham may be the Norfolk County seat but sometimes you can't help thinking of it as Quincy's Ward 7.

Politically speaking, that is. Most of the top county offices are now held by Quincy residents. Like:

Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Commissioner Mary Collins, Treasurer Daniel Raymond, Register of Probate Thomas Hughes and Clerk of Courts Nicholas Barbadoro.

All are Democrats.

So, young man, move to Quincy and become a Democrat if you're thinking of running for a Norfolk County office.

QUICK NOW, WHO was Quincy's all-time top municipal vote getter?

If you said Amelio Della Chiesa you would be wrong. But if you said James McIntyre you would be right.

Della Chiesa actually ranks sixth among candidates for Quincy municipal office who polled over 20,000 votes.

McIntyre led the parade with 22,034 votes he piled up in 1965 running for mayor against Joseph LaRaia who got 7,713.

That was the year Della Chiesa retired after serving as mayor for 12 years — eight under Plan A and four under Plan E.

Runnerup to McIntyre in the vote-getting department was Dr. Charles Djurf who twice rang up over 21,000 votes running for School Committee.

In 1965 he hit 21,852. In 1961 he had 21,686.

Third place honors go to Paul Harold who as a city councillor at-large candidate in 1977 polled 21,243 votes.

In fourth place is George Burke with 20,741 running for councillor at-large in 1965.

Behind him is Arthur Tobin with 20,453 votes as a councillor at-large candidate in 1975.

Della Chiesa is the only other 20,000 Vote Club member with 20,131 when he defeated Joseph Brett for mayor in 1961. Brett had 8,619.

The spoked wheel, historians estimate, was invented around 2000 B.C.

ONLY AN INSURANCE PROFESSIONAL SHOULD PLAN YOUR INSURANCE NEEDS

With the cost of homes and personal belongings escalating at such a tremendous rate today, the average person may find it almost impossible to ensure that his worldly assets are adequately protected in the event disaster strikes.

For example, homeowners should consider all options. Do you need or want standard insurance which provides broad coverage for your home and its contents against a wide range of specified exposures? Or would you be more confident with a comprehensive, all-risk policy which protects against all physical damage except for specific exclusions? And what about special options? Extended coverages? Or home or contents replacement guarantees?

We suggest that you sit down with a professional who can give you precisely the right type and amount of insurance protection you need to fit your budget.

If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Please visit our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy or give us a call at 471-6200.

BARBARA FONTAINE, wife of WJDA news editor, Herb Fontaine, faces a long rehabilitation period and possible surgery for injuries suffered last week when she and the family poodle, Pierre, were struck by a speeding car while crossing at a light on Quincy Shore Drive near Caddy Park.

Barbara suffered six fractures under her right knee and other injuries. Pierre was killed instantly.

"If Barbara had been in the exact spot that Pierre was in, she would have been the one killed," Fontaine said.

He and Barbara are heartbroken over Pierre's death.

"He was like a member of the family," Fontaine says.

Barbara, Fontaine says, lay 10 minutes alongside the road, calling for help after the 6:30 a.m. accident, before someone came to her aid.

Fontaine was broadcasting the news at WJDA when he heard about the accident on a police scanner. He put it on the air not realizing the woman hit was his wife.

He learned a half-hour later when he received a telephone call from Quincy Hospital where Barbara had been taken by ambulance.

The driver, a 22-year-old Lawrence man was cited for excessive speeding, operating to endanger, failing to stop for a pedestrian and disregard of a traffic control signal.

He has an appearance coming up in Quincy District Court.

ERNEST ARISTIDE of the Quincy Tourism Council and his wife, Peg, like to go to Cambridge now and then to attend Mass at St. Paul's Church in Harvard Sq.

The church's huge stained glass windows and the interior with its columns of marble take on the appearance of a cathedral, they note.

But most impressive, they say, is the fact that those in the last row of pews receive Holy Communion first and those in the front row receive last.

And those familiar words, they say, come to mind: "He who is last shall be first."

MDC Hopes To Reopen Caddy Park Gates

The Metropolitan District Commission is hoping to reopen the gates to Caddy Memorial Park at the Wollaston Beach Reservation in the spring but the state's fiscal troubles may prevent it, an MDC spokesperson said Tuesday.

The gates have been closed and locked this winter because of budget cuts. Because the MDC was unable to hire skating rink employees, the agency transferred its reservation officers to the rinks. As a result, all gates leading to MDC parks were closed and locked earlier this winter.

According to MDC

Spokesperson Leanne DelVecchio, the agency could be cut by 18 percent in fiscal 1991 which begins this July 1. Therefore, the fate of the gates is unknown.

"We're hopeful to open (the gates) in the spring but we can't make that promise because our budget could be cut by 18 percent," she said.

Although the gates are locked, DelVecchio said the parks are still open for recreational purposes. "People are still welcome to walk on the reservations."

Last week, Quincy State Representative Michael Morrissey contacted MDC Commissioner Illyas Bhatti inquiring why the gates to Caddy Memorial Park have been closed and locked this winter.

"While the closing may be due to budget cuts, there are other parks under the MDC jurisdiction that have not been closed," Morrissey said.

However, DelVecchio refuted this claim, saying the gates to every MDC park have been locked while the areas have been kept open.

In his letter to Bhatti, Morrissey asked the commissioner to open the gates at least on a part-time basis during the day and weekends for the residents of Quincy and the surrounding areas to enjoy.

The representative stated

many area residents enjoy the park and the walk way in the Wollaston area. "I have been a supporter of the M.D.C. over the years because they have provided valuable services to my constituents," Morrissey wrote.

"Caddy Park will give local residents access to Black's Creek and the jogging path between Fenno St. and Furnace Brook Parkway. If it proves to be a safety hazard, this should be the only reason that the park should be closed," he added.

DelVecchio said the commissioner may grant this request. At press time, Bhatti was drafting his response to Morrissey.

The Montclair Men's Club Slips Quietly Into History

Did the honor mean much to them? Well, of the 61 honorees, only three were unable to attend.

The Montclair Men's Club began with men playing baseball at Bishops Field and as a baseball team in the Park League. Those associated with the team rented the Montclair Improvement Association building for meetings and decided to call their organization the Montclair Men's Club.

That organization started Sept. 12, 1946 and received its charter Sept. 24, 1947—almost a year later.

The latter date is the club's official beginning and Matthew Smith became the first official president, serving 1947-48. He was succeeded by Gildea in 1949.

The other presidents: Frederick Farrell, Daniel Haley, James Kelley, Sr., Richard Post, John White, Gordon Paige, George Hayes,

The charter members of the club were:

John LeRoy, honorary president; Matthew Smith, first official president; John Ardini, vice president; Thomas McPartlin, treasurer; Philip O'Donnell, recording secretary; William O'Donnell, financial secretary; Grover Clark, sergeant at-arms, Joseph Gildea, Edward Barton and Paul McIver, trustees.

The preamble of the club's charter said what the club was all about:

"Recognizing the need of a progressive group of men in our community and without regard to race or creed, we dedicate our organization to sponsoring interest in various social activities and to the promotion of civic interests.

"It is our intention to concern ourselves with recreational activities of the youngsters, to organize get-togethers and sports events and to take part in civic affairs and any other programs that will improve our community.

"Believing that our individual and joint purpose are one and the same, we have united ourselves into one representative group to promote our objectives."

And for 42 years, they did it well.

The club may be gone but their deeds will be remembered.

Board Suspends Restaurant On Fire Code Violations

remained at the bar because she had injured her knee.

O'Connell noted that there was no mention of this in Gorman's official report. He noted that, according to usual procedure, Gorman should have offered city services to her because she was injured. Prete said services were not offered.

Prete also told O'Connell she remained at the bar because the bartender told her, "don't worry," indicating that alarms were often set off and that there was no fire.

"It was poor judgement on my part (to stay)," she told the board, "but the bartender basically said 'don't worry.'"

O'Connell, noting that this attitude toward alarms is an all-too-common occurrence in the city, said, "I wish I could tell my men 'don't worry'...I've been to too many 'don't worry's'."

O'Connell maintained that during an alarm, all customers must be immediately removed from the establishment.

In relation to the closing violation, Police Chief Francis Finn noted that the practice of a bartender drinking after hours, "is certainly not condoned" but "happens traditionally."

He said the department is more concerned that bartenders are not drinking during the course of the evening as it could impair judgement about customer age and intoxication.

(Directly after the hearing on Kelly's, the board voted to adopt a regulation making it a license violation for an employee to be intoxicated while on duty.)

Sgt. Laracy said that he was mainly concerned with the two customers seen with drinks at the bar, and told the board that violations had been broken regardless of whether the drinks were alcoholic.

"I am not calling (Prete) a liar," he said, "but the regulation states that all drinks must be removed from the bar...and that would include grapefruit juice."

While Police Chief Finn said he would agree to only a reprimand concerning the liquor violations, O'Connell strongly urged a license suspension for the fire code violation. Finn agreed.

The board agreed to suspend Kelly's license for a period of five days.

Kelly will have the opportunity to appeal the decision before the five days are named.

Clay St. or the Wollaston parking area, Quarry Hill in West Quincy, Morrissey Boulevard and Sea St. land across the street from Central Junior High School, Pine Hill off Willard St. in West Quincy, and the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

Daniel D. Strohmeier, vice president in charge of the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s shipyard division, said changes are being planned at Fore River to increase production and cut costs to meet competition.

Strohmeier's disclosure came in the wake of comments by San. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass) that "Quincy Fore River Shipyard is pricing its bid too high in the competitive shipbuilding market."

NEWS OF NUTRITION

Guide Targets Healthy Food Choices

For today's nutrition-conscious consumers, a trip to the supermarket is more like a pop quiz than a shopping spree. For example:

Which fruits and vegetables are poor choices for vitamin and mineral content?

It all peanut butter is alike, how should they be compared?

When are turkey or chicken frankfurters no better than those made with other meats?

Mineral waters, flavored soft-zers, sugar-free soda pop. Which low-calorie drinks are best?

What's recommended in cooking oils and vegetable fats?

According to Pocket Supermarket Guide, a new booklet from The American Dietetic Association, under the "Vegetable Oils and Cooking Fats" section, shoppers are told to look for polyunsaturated safflower, sunflower and corn oils for monounsaturated olive and canola oils, and for non stick cooking sprays. Just as important, they learn the tricky meanings behind such label claims as "light," "no cholesterol," "hydrogenated." And they're reminded to limit saturated fats, coconut and palm oils, lard, salt pork and butter.

And the really pressing question: How does the consumer decide what are the best choices while standing in mid-aisle with a half-full cart and miles to go before checking out?

The American Dietetic Association's Pocket Supermarket Guide offers well-informed, convenient help. In this booklet, dietitian Mary Abbott Hess, MS, RD, and Anne Elise Hunt lead shoppers from deli to dairy with succinct, specific tips about commonly purchased types of food (brand names are not included).

In each of 24 categories, information is arranged in two columns—one with general nutrition guidelines, the other with money-saving, diet-friendly hints.

Similar help covers everything from salad dressing to frozen dinners to snack foods in the Pocket Supermarket Guide, an illustrated, 12-page booklet that fits easily into pocket or purse. To order the Pocket Supermarket Guide, send $2.50 and a self-addressed, stamped (45 cents) envelope to Department T2, The American Dietetic Association, c/o Anderson Secretarial Service, 1132 S. Jefferson St., Chicago, IL 60607.

How To Deal With Chronic Pain

By DANIEL S. KARP

There are millions of people who suffer with chronic pain. They are veterans injured in wars, cancer patients, paraplegics, neuralgics, amputees, arthritics; patients suffering with migraine, disc diseases, tendonitis, muscle spasm, psychogenic pain and others.

Numerous methods are available to deal with pain. They encompass drug therapy, biofeedback, behavioral therapy, neurosurgery, nerve block, and electrical stimulation. All of these play an important role in pain management, but none is a universal remedy.

Evidence reveals that acupuncture relieves chronic pain. Research shows that it has significant therapeutic potential. It is also free of side effects and toxic burdens which accompany the use of many modern drugs.

In a long-term study conducted by Prof. C.W. Waylonis at Ohio State University, it was concluded that "acupuncture appears to be of significant value in the symptomatic control of pain. From the standpoint of physical medicine it appears to be a modality which may be more effective than any other single method (i.e., drugs, injections, and physical agents) in the treatment of fibrositis syndrome. It was more successful by a 3:1 ratio than any other method of treatment. The duration of acupuncture's effectiveness was best and exceeded all other methods by a 6:1 ratio."

Another report from the University of Alabama

Medical School Pain Clinic concluded that acupuncture worked in more than 55 percent of the 300 patients in the study. The various types of pain problems treated had been present from one to thirty years and the duration of significant pain relief was as long as six months in some 41 percent of those treated.

Acupuncture has been a valuable part of Chinese medicine for 4,000 years. It is taught in the medical faculties of universities, is included in the medical curriculum, and is practiced by one million doctors in China.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE SHOVELING SNOW

The storm that blew several inches of snow in our direction recently provides an appropriate time to offer a few suggestions on proper shoveling techniques. At the risk of sounding "like a wiseguy" the best way to prevent problems shoveling snow is to avoid doing it altogether by using a snowblower or by paying someone to do it for you. Most importantly, any person with a history of heart problems or any person at risk of heart problems should ask their doctor for approval. If you absolutely must shovel snow, the following guidelines may be helpful:

1. Warm up prior to shoveling as you would do before exercising.
2. Pace yourself depending on the conditions. Shoveling heavy wet snow takes a heck of a lot more energy than shoveling fluffy white snow.
3. Use the proper shovel. Using a short, wide, flat bladed shovel may be perfect for pushing light snow, but could be disastrous in trying to shovel (the heavier wet snow). Generally speaking a long handled shovel, or better yet, a "back saver" shovel with a bent shaft, reduces the strain on your back.
4. Keep your back straight, bend with your knees and turn your feet and legs when "throwing the snow." This is crucial because it is usually the quick twist of your back while you are bent over slightly that causes most injuries.
5. Switch sides when shoveling so that you're not always throwing the snow in the same direction.

NAILING DOWN THE TRUTH ABOUT MANICURES: A recent spate of nail problems, including infections and allergies, has alarmed dermatologists who link these outbreaks to the boom of nail care salons, some of which may not follow proper sanitary procedures.

Among the infections that are being seen are varieties of fungal problems; the yeast infection is the most prevalent and can cause the nails to deteriorate or become deformed. Another fungus is ringworm, in which the nail turns white, gets thick, and breaks off. Antifungal solutions are used to treat the infections, but progress is slow, often taking months. Viral infections (warts, etc.) are also difficult to treat. Bacterial infections cause the nail to turn black or green. Antibiotics are used to treat bacterial infections.

Is Now A Good Time To Refinance Your Mortgage?

With interest rates dropping, many homeowners who purchased their homes when rates were higher are considering refinancing.

But is refinancing worth it? "Refinancing can be worthwhile, but it does not make good financial sense for everyone," says Patricia Downing, president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

A general rule of thumb is that refinancing is worth your while if the current interest rate on your mortgage is at least two percentage points higher than the prevailing market rate. This figure is considered a safe margin when balancing the costs of refinancing a mortgage against the savings.

"There are other factors to consider, however," advises Downing. "For instance, how long you plan to stay in your home is an important factor. It generally takes at least three years to realize fully the saving from a lower interest rate."

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors advises that refinancing should be considered for homeowners who meet one or more of the following criterion:

- Want out of a high interest rate loan to take advantage of lower rates and plan to stay in their homes for at least three years.
- Have an adjustable-rate mortgage (ARM) and want a fixed rate loan to have the certainty of knowing exactly what the mortgage payment will be for the life of the loan.
- Want to build up equity more quickly by converting to a loan with a shorter term.
- Want to convert to an ARM with a lower interest rate or more protective features, such as a better rate or payment cap.
- Want to draw on the equity built up in their home to get cash for major expenses.

If you are deciding whether to refinance an adjustable-rate mortgage, consider whether the next interest rate adjustment on your existing loan is likely to increase your monthly payments substantially, and whether the interest rate will two or three percentage points higher than the prevailing rates being offered for either fixed-rate or other ARMs.

Also, if there is a cap on your current monthly payments, are those payments large enough to pay off your loan by the end of the original term? Will refinancing a new ARM or a fixed-rate mortgage enable you to pay your loan in full by the end of the term?

"These are questions that are important to consider before proceeding with refinancing an adjustable-rate mortgage," says Downing.

"Homeowners who decide to refinance should be aware of the costs involved," advises Downing. Much like a first mortgage, refinancing includes fees for the application, the title search and title insurance, and the lender's attorney's review. In addition, there are loan origination fees (charged for lender's work in evaluating and preparing the loan) and discount points (prepaid finance charges imposed by the lender at closing), an appraisal fee and other miscellaneous fees.

Homeowners should plan on paying an average of three to six percent of the outstanding principal in refinancing costs, plus any cost of paying off a second mortgage that may exist. Costs may vary significantly, however, from lender to lender, so it's important to shop around.

"You may want to first check with the lender who holds your current mortgage," suggests Downing. "The lender may be willing to waive some of the fees, especially if the work relating to the mortgage closing is still current."

If you are interested in refinancing, the Members of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors recommend that you meet with a lender to discuss the process, expenses and potential benefits in detail. "A fully informed homeowner will be in the best position to make a sound decision regarding the refinancing of his or her home," says Downing.

The Quincy and South Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 boards nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association and the voice of real estate.

House Hunting Hints

A good thing to remember after you've found the right house and before you close is to see if it has a warranty and if so, does this warranty transfer.

So far, more than two million homes are protected with a ten-year HOW warranty.

Most builders will use their warranty as a basis for the walk-through, pointing out areas of coverage and attempting to alleviate any confusion over coverage responsibilities. Get a copy of the warranty prior to the walk-through and be prepared to ask questions.

Most warranties will transfer from one owner to another during their life cycle, but it's always best to ask.

Tips for looking your best on your wedding day

There are more weddings than ever before, according to the Association of Bridal Consultants. Approximately 2.5 million couples were married in 1988.

Preparing for your wedding day takes months of planning—from the ceremony and reception to the long-awaited honeymoon. This also holds true for looking your best on your wedding day.

"If brides want to look their best on this special day, they will need to plan ahead, from taking care of their skin to testing their makeup," explains Linda Harris, vice president of product development for L'Oreal Cosmetics.

The experts at L'Oreal offer the following skincare regimen and makeup tips to ensure that every bride will look her best on her wedding day.

The first step to looking your best begins with radiant, healthy skin, which does not happen overnight. The months leading up to your wedding day are a good time to start taking care of your skin for the big day and for the rest of your life.

Skincare regimen

When you wake up in the morning, cleanse your skin thoroughly with a gentle, but effective cleanser to remove any dirt particles that have accumulated during the night.

If you have oily skin, use a cleansing gel; for dry skin, use a cleansing cream. Brides with normal skin can use either. Bar soaps, Harris explains, can be harsh and strip the skin of its natural oils, leaving the skin very dry.

Then, apply a good moisturizer under your foundation. For winter, use a heavier, more emollient moisturizer to combat dryness. In the spring and summer months, you may prefer a lighter or oil-free moisturizer.

If your honeymoon plans call for a warm climate, be sure to use a lighter moisturizer with sunscreens. You'll also want to take moisturizer on the plane with you to replenish your skin.

Harris suggests using the high performance and affordably-priced Plenitude line of cleansing, moisturizing and special care products, available in tubes, which are great for honeymoon travel, and jars, for at-home use.

France's number one skincare collection, Plenitude, was recently introduced into the U.S. at drugstores nationwide, conveniently located for the bride to be.

Makeup tips

Now that the skin is cleansed and moisturized, your face is properly prepared for makeup application. L'Oreal suggests practice makeup sessions months before the wedding day and experimentation with different makeup colors depending on the season of your wedding.

One easy and cost-free way is by using the "testers" at your local drugstore.

An Unusual Gift For The Bride

In this twentieth century, porringers are becoming favorite silver gifts at weddings. But the first porringers were made in the 17th century for eating porridge, which was not oatmeal but a kind of stew with meat and vegetables.

In England, the porringer had two handles, in America, it only had one handle and was used for all sorts of food items, including sugar, before the advent of sugar bowls.

Now you will find the porringer used for everything from an ash tray to a nut dish—but rarely for "porridge."

This will guarantee that on your special day, and for the cherished everlasting wedding photographs and/or video, your makeup will look perfect.

First, apply a foundation under your makeup that is the same shade as your natural skin tone. L'Oreal's Matique Illuminating Matte Makeup offers a less "made up" look while allowing the natural glow of your skin to show through.

To help your makeup appear fresh all day and stay on longer, apply a light dusting of loose powder to your face. Then, apply a blush to your cheekbones in an upward, sweeping motion, and to your forehead, chin and to the tip of your nose.

For those emotional, teary-eyed moments, waterproof mascara will come in handy. For eye shadow, select colors that will define your eyes, but will appear soft-looking in photographs. Apply a soft, smudgeable, and easy-to-use eyeliner pencil. Then, blend the eye shadow and pencil together with your finger for a subtle look.

Finally, the lips. Apply a light powder under your lipstick to prevent cracking and to ensure the lipstick lasts longer. Then apply your lipstick. For an extra shine, add a light coat of gloss to your lips.

Beautiful nails

For the bride to have strong, beautiful nails, she will have to plan ahead. One product, Grow Strong!, builds stronger and longer nails in just 10 days, allowing every bride to have well-manicured nails.

Now that you've prepared your skin and tested your makeup, you're ready to be a beautiful, radiant bride. Most of all, have fun and enjoy your very special day.

A new decade of weddings: Style and

As the times change, so do the styles for the brides of the '90s

ⓂThe brides of the '90s are not as traditional as those of the past. Because more women are getting married after they have established careers and independence, their ideas about their weddings are very different from those of brides of past decades.

Today's bride and groom are more apt to pay for their own wedding than before. The days of the mother of the bride making all the arrangements, the father of the bride paying all the bills, and the groom representing only the figure on top of the wedding cake, are long gone.

Modern brides are professional women, marrying at an older age, after they have established their careers and therefore, they are more able to afford the high prices that a wedding can incur. Today, decisions, expenses and choices are shared between the bride and groom.

A personal touch

Another difference between the brides of yesterday and those of today is in their choices of ceremony. Fewer brides choose the traditional ceremony; instead, they opt for a more personal touch. Many brides and grooms write their own vows or choose a different type of ceremony, such as the candle lighting ceremony which represents the union of the two families.

The modern wedding may also differ in its music. The traditional choice of "Here Comes the Bride" is no longer the popular favorite; many brides have chosen softer melodies from current music or Broadway themes for use as their entrance song. The use of a singer before the start of the ceremony has also become very popular, adding a more personal touch to the joyous event.

Colorful difference

The styles and colors that today's brides choose reflect the most obvious change from previous years. Gone are the pastel and earthy tones and flowing styles that were the craze during the '80s—the '90s bring form-fitting gowns with more vibrant colors onto the scene and into today's wedding party.

More shades of iridescent blue, red and purple can be seen in the current collections by the designers. One recent addition to the color of bridesmaid's gowns is black. Black-and-white weddings, as well as all white (or "snowball") weddings, have become very popular in the past year.

The look of accessories is also changing as we head into the '90s. Glamour and detail have taken over where dainty and delicate left off. The modern bride can look forward to plenty of lace and pearls adorning her stockings and veil as well as sequins and rhinestones in her jewelry.

The new designs in wedding bands hold more gems and detail than the unadorned traditional solid band that has been worn in the past. The latest trend in wedding bands for women is the ring guard that wraps around the engagement ring and usually holds clusters of diamonds or other precious gems. This new style is becoming increasingly popular with the modern bride and is even being purchased as a wedding gift from the groom to the bride.

Grooms get involved

More grooms are becoming involved in all aspects of wedding planning, including the selection of the bride's gown. Many brides are now asking their fiances to accompany them when they go to choose their gown—the age-old superstition of bad luck coming upon a bride who has been seen in her gown by her groom is no longer a worry for the bride of the '90s.

IMPECCABLY DESIGNED DETAILS, such as the this shantung-weave gown from the After Six Bridal for After Six Formal, European styling incorporating closure. It's worn here with pleated trousers—a la After Six Accessories.

Lasting marriage in an age of divorce

ⓂThe baby boom generation, unique in many ways, also claims this distinction: It is the first to have come of age at a time when one out of two marriages in this country ended in divorce—an all-time high. Today, the children of the "Age of Divorce" are themselves of marrying age. Surprisingly, they are traditional, optimistic, and marrying in record numbers, according to Bride's magazine.

It's no longer chic to bad-mouth marriage. Today, people speak approvingly about commitment and fidelity.

Characteristic of many of the couples marrying today is their renewed sense of commitment and determination to make their marriages work because the memory and possibility of divorce is never far away. Children of divorce are more aware of the problems of marriage, and they often try harder to avoid these problems.

Of course, some scars remain. "Divorce has colored our attitude toward marriage," says Art Carey, author of the Bride's article. "Some of us have embraced marriage too impetuously, hoping to escape our pasts by creating the kind of 'perfect' relationship our parents never had. Others, frightened by the fragility of marriage, and skeptical about the possibility of a lasting, happy marriage, have avoided marriage, and anything approaching it."

Need for intimacy

Still, nine out of ten young adults will marry at least once during their lifetime, predicts Andrew Cherlin, author of Mar- riage, Divorce, Remarriage. "People have a deep-seated need for the kind of secure, long-term, intimate relationship that marriage promises."

A time of adjustment

Finally, as a by-product of the age of divorce, marriage today has become much more flexible. The modern definition of marriage embraces not only the traditional husband/wife roles, but also marriages in which both partners work, marriages in which there are no children, and marriages in which the father stays home to care for the children. Couples today feel free to form creative partnerships, based on love and friendship, that can be molded and shaped to meet their needs. BR905187

Night To Remember North Upsets Brockton

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last Friday night was one to remember for the North Quincy boys' basketball team.

Led by Erik DeBoer, who continued his phenomenal performances, Ted Stevenson's Raiders upset Brockton, 55-50, after having little success against the Boxers in recent years. The win improved North's record to 5-6.

North has two of its most important games this week, playing two of the three top Suburban League teams. The Raiders played at Newton North Tuesday and will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday afternoon at 3:30. They will be idle next Tuesday.

DeBoer, averaging nearly 20 points a game and the number three scorer in the league, scored 25 points and took down 17 rebounds and clinched the win with a three-pointer from the side with 47 seconds left and North leading only 50-48.

"I wouldn't have let anyone else shoot that shot in that circumstance," said a happy Stevenson, who earned his first win over Brockton in 10 tries. "He's a great player and to think he is an even better baseball player."

DeBoer, a co-captain, earlier had beaten Waltham with a shot from three-quarter court at the buzzer. "I never saw anything like that, it must have traveled about 75 feet," Stevenson said.

Last spring DeBoer was one of the top pitchers in the Suburban League and led North to the league title and Morrisette Legion to second place in Zone 6. He should have another brilliant season this spring.

"DeBoer is a great shooter both inside and outside," Stevenson said. "He was hitting from inside against Brockton and when they shifted their defense, he hit from outside. You just can't stop him."

"He was tough both from the inside and outside," said Brockton coach Vic Ortiz. "When he hit that three-pointer, it nailed it down for them."

Brockton received a tough break when its top scorer, Curt Bostic (22 points a game) went out of the game late in the first quarter with a sprained ankle and did not return.

"It was a big factor as he is one of the best in Eastern Mass. and we missed his scoring, rebounding, size and experience. But I don't want to take anything away from the outstanding job that Ted did in preparing his team for us," said Ortiz.

Brockton had a 15-14 edge after a quarter when Andre Garner hit a three-pointer with three seconds left. North's stifling pressure took its toll in the second and third quarters as the Raiders held the Boxers to 11 points in the second and seven in the third.

DeBoer led the way with 18 of his team's 30 points in the first half, including a super 25-foot turnaround three-pointer at the halftime buzzer, giving North a 30-26 lead.

North opened up a 12-point lead (40-28) in the third on a Dan McLean jumper and held Brockton to just two field goals until the Boxers' Paul Brewer hit a half-court three-pointer with two seconds left in the quarter.

Brockton closed to within two, 50-48, and DeBoer came through with his three-pointer to ice it.

Freshman Sean Donovan had 10 points, including two crucial three-pointers.

"We should have a better record as two of our first three games were lost by two points and one by three," Stevenson said. "We just made too many mistakes in those games."

"Jeff Calvert, our other co-captain, has been superb on defense as have Dave Cawthorne and Billy Warren. Cawthorne has been a very pleasant surprise. Donovan has been playing well and Angelo Kyranis has been improving and has been scoring well."

Earlier last week North lost to Brookline, unbeaten league leaders at the time (Newton North upset them Friday), 65-52.

The difference in the game was Brookline outscoring the Raiders, 24-13, in the second quarter.

Brookline's Victor Koytisky scored 10 of his 21 points in that quarter.

DeBoer again was North's leading scorer with 22 points and Kvransis added 13.

Rice Hits 1000

Mark At ENC

Senior Jonathan Rice, a former Patriot Ledger and Brockton Enterprise all-scholastic, recently scored his 1000th career point for the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team.

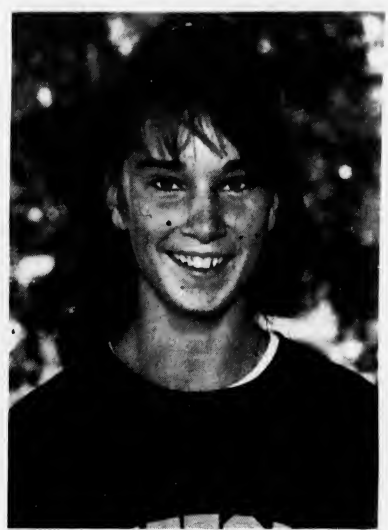

A 1986 graduate of Whitman-Hanson Regional High School, Rice is ENC's leading scorer with an average of 18.6 points a game.

A physical education major, he plans to teach and coach both basketball and baseball after graduating in May.

COLLEEN TOLAND, left and her sister, Bridget of Quincy were members of the Suffolk University women's cross country team. Colleen graduated from North Quincy High in 1988 and Bridget in 1989. They are daughters of Robert and Patricia Toland.

Victory Eludes Quincy

The winless Quincy boys' basketball team turned in another good performance but again failed to enter the win column as it lost to Waltham, 50-44, last Friday, dropping its record to 0-11.

The Presidents played

Brookline Tuesday, will host Brockton Friday night at 7:30 and will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Tuesday afternoon at 3:30.

John Franceschini's

Quincy team has been in nearly every game this year but has faded in the second half in most games. Poor shooting has been a major factor in its failure to win but the team has continued to give 100 percent in every game.

Mike Sclaro had a good night for the Presidents with 13 points and six rebounds and Joe Russell had nine points and six assists. Mark Bogan turned in an excellent defensive effort.

Brockton Girls Too Much For North

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, following a 50-45 victory over Brookline, found Brockton's undefeated Suburban League leaders too much last Friday and suffered one of its worst defeats in some time, 73-32, dropping its record to 7-4.

The North girls will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday at 5 o'clock and will be home to Canton in a non-league game Tuesday at 6:30.

The Brockton girls (11-0) had too much size and experience for North, which scored only 12 first half points.

Kerry Tolson led North with 12 points and Tara Miles added eight.

North trailed Brookline, 14-13, after a quarter and still trailed, 22-19, at the half.

North came out in the second half with a full court pressure defense and outscored Brookline, 15-9, in the third quarter to take a 34-31 lead into the final session. During the third quarter Tricia Hughes scored seven points. In the final quarter North had a 16-14 edge.

Leading the way for North was Miles with 14 points.

Hughes scored 13, Tolson 10 and Kara Sullivan seven. Christine Salton had two points and Kristen Haddigan one. Joanna Rugnetta had three points, seven rebounds and seven blocked shots.

During the second half Sullivan drew the assignment of shadowing Brookline's top scorer, Terry Gomez, and held her to only four points.

Quincy Girls Lose To Waltham

The Quincy girls' basketball team fell behind, 22-5, in the opening quarter and couldn't make up the deficit as it lost to Waltham, 56-45, last Friday, dropping its record to 2-9.

Quincy closed the gap to six points, 39-33, but Waltham scored the last four points of the third quarter.

Amy Baker had 12 points and Erin Doherty added 10 for the Quincy girls.

Waltham had a decided advantage at the free throw line, hitting on 17 of 22 shots while Quincy was six for 12, accounting for the difference in the score.

Auerbach Track Meet Saturday, Sunday

The annual Red Auerbach freshman-sophomore developmental track meet will be held Saturday, Jan. 27, and Sunday, Jan. 28, at MIT.

The large schools will compete on Saturday and the small schools on Sunday.

The meet is again directed by former North Quincy track and cross country coach Lou Tozzi.

Last year 1636 athletes from 181 schools competed and it is expected this year's meet will attract even more.

Among those competing will be a large number of North Quincy girls.

• Track North Girls Shine At Coaches Meet

The North Quincy girls' track team split a pair of Suburban League meets, then turned in some outstanding performances in the Girls' State Coaches Invitational Meet at Harvard.

The Raiderettes lost to powerful Cambridge Rindge and Latin, always a league power, 56-30, despite most of them turning in their best performances of the year.

Sherrin Quintiliani won the mile and Janet Corrigan won the two-mile. Taking seconds were Triston Mastrogiacono in the hurdles, Amy Wong in the dash, Suzanne Lewis in the 1000 and Joan Moriarty in the two-mile. Placing third were Kelli Gott in the hurdles, Cindy Walsh in the mile, Ilana Cobban in the 1000, Jenn Flynn in the 600, Suzanne Hamilton in the 300 and high jump. Danielle Lewis in the two-mile and Mastrogiacono in the shot put.

The North girls evened their record at 2-2 with a controversial 44-42 victory over Brookline.

An unexpected sweep of the high jump by Brookline took the meet down to the final event, the mile relay. When Brookline's leadoff runner switched lanes too soon the team was disqualified, giving the Raiderettes the win.

Mastrogiacono won the hurdles and shot put, Wong won the dash, Suzanne Lewis won the two-mile and the relay team of Wong, Hamilton, Cobban and Quintiliani also won.

Placing second were Quintiliani in the mile, Cindy Walsh in the 1000, Jennifer Nutley in the 300 and Alana Crehan in the shot put.

Taking third places were Gott in the hurdles, Hamilton in the dash, Moriarty in the mile, Claire Walsh in the 1000, Amanda Young in the 600, Janet Corrigan in the two-mile and Voula Regas in the shot put.

Several girls qualified for the state championships and a number of personal bests were turned in at the coaches meet.

The highlight for North was Quintiliani finishing fourth in the two-mile in 11:58.5. "This was by far her best performance to date," said coach Jeff Hennessy. "We've brought her along slowly after her injury in the fall. She is still only running 25 minutes a day and doing one easy track workout a week. But this proves she is back. She settled a lot of scores in this meet."

Freshman Suzanne Lewis was eighth in the mile in 5:31.3; Nutley, another freshman, qualified for the states with a 42.1 in the 300 and Young, who missed three months of action with various health problems, appears to be back at full strength with a 1:39.0 in the 600 to qualify for the states.

The mile relay team of Wong, Nutley, Hamilton and Lewis ran a 4:38.3 to qualify for the states.

The North girls faced Newton North Tuesday and will wind up the league schedule next Tuesday against Quincy.

They will have 30 of their many talented freshmen and sophomores in the annual Red Auerbach Development Meet Saturday, Jan. 27 at MIT. The meet is directed by former North coach Lou Tozzi.

North Knocks Brookline Out Of First Place

The North Quincy hockey team rebounded from its toughest loss of the season to tie Brookline, 3-3, knocking Brookline out of first place in the Suburban League, last Saturday and making its record 5-4-2.

Dave Peters' Raiders faced first-place Brookline last night (Wednesday), will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Saturday at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will meet Quincy for the second time next Wednesday at 5:30 at the Youth Arena.

"This was a big game for us, tying Brookline after a very hard-to-take loss to Waltham," said Peters.

"Brookline was in first place and the boys played an excellent game. Our two games against Brookline and Waltham were our two best of the year and I think we do well over the second half of the season."

Sal Manganaro, one of the highest scorers in the state, scored all three North Quincy goals, tying the game with his third with 2:24 left in the game. Manganaro has 21 goals and nine assists.

Joe Fasano, another high scorer, had two assists and Armando Mancini one. Fasano has 15 goals and 11 assists.

"Pat O'Donoghue played a fine game in goal and all four defensemen, Jim McCarthy, Matt Swierk, Mancini and Duane Keegan, played strong games," Peters said. "The shots were even, 21 apiece, and we played them evenly throughout the game."

Earlier in the week North had a 3-2 lead over Waltham with 68 seconds left, but Waltham came back with two goals to defeat the Raiders, 4-3.

"We should have had seven or eight goals but their goalie (Brian Bolio) was superb and stole the game from us," Peters said. "We outshot them, 44-14, but we just couldn't beat him. This was a really frustrating loss and it was good to see the boys come back like they did against Brookline."

Fasano had two goals and Swierk one. Mancini, Brian Zimmerman, Jamie Tapper and Chris McCallum had assists. Mancini played an outstanding two-way game.

McCarthy Nominated For Hockey Award

North Quincy hockey coach Dave Peters has nominated senior defenseman Jim McCarthy for the John Carlton award, given annually in memory of the late Boston Bruins scout to the outstanding scholar and hockey player.

McCarthy is an A student and in the top five of his class. He is a member of the National Honor Society, the Pride Committee, SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving), the Calculus team and the Spanish Club. He has received the Scholastic Achievement Award from the Boston Globe three times and is captain of the school team.

He has applied to Boston College, Boston University, Holy Cross and Northeastern among other colleges and universities.

"Jim is an excellent scholar and an outstanding hockey player," Peters said. "He is an excellent penalty killer and is a stand-out on power plays. He plays 25 or more minutes of every game. I feel he would be a very worthy choice for the Carlton Award."

Quincy Bows To Brookline

Quincy's young hockey team continues to find the going rough and last week lost to Brookline, in first place in the Suburban League at the time, 6-2, dropping its record to 0-7-3. The Presidents played at Waltham last night (Wednesday), will host Newton North Friday at 4:20 at the Youth Arena and will face North Quincy next Wednesday at 5:30 at the Youth Arena.

Scott MacGregor scored both Quincy goals in the third period against Brookline, and Steve McInnis, Jim Schatzl and Mark Gilmore had assists.

Brookline was led by Eric Choi with a goal and two assists.

Youth Teams Win 5 Of 6 Games

The South Shore Youth Basketball League for boys in grades six, seven and eight, has been formed and has opened the season, commissioner Ken Iulesza of Hingham announced.

Quincy has three teams in the league which includes teams from Quincy, Braintree, Hingham, Duxbury, Sharon, Marshfield and Canton.

Each team will play 12 games during January and February and conclude with a playoff tournament in early March.

Quincy coaches are Bob Cochrane, sixth grade; Mike Draicchio, seventh grade; and Ron Mariano, eighth grade.

The Presidents Youth teams won five of six games in the first week of action. The sixth and eighth grade teams won two games while the short-handed seventh graders broke even.

The sixth graders defeated Canton, 39-35, overcoming a five-point deficit in the last quarter. The team combined strong defense and an outstanding shooting performance by Jeff Russell, who scored 26 points. Matt Boston had seven points and Dave Gunther, Todd Sullivan, Joe Mariano, Jeff Feiner, Kevin Norton and Mike Sheffer had fine games.

Sunday at home on the V-Tech court, the sixth graders walloped Hingham, 44-20.

Russell had 15 points in two quarters. Boston had nine points. Gurnier eight, Sean Joyce five, Sullivan four, Feiner two and Anthony Chella one. Mariano, Sheffer, Norton, Joe McCarthy and Jim Rendle all played well.

The seventh graders edged Canton, 51-48, in overtime as Jason Downey had 20 points, Chris White 12 and Keith Martinson 11. Brian Littlewood had two big steals in the fourth quarter for four points, Kevin Nichols and Martin Cloonan had two points and Jason Beauvais, Sam Brown and Billy Mitchell played strong defense.

The seventh graders, down by only four points at the half, ran into foul trouble and lost to Hingham, 39-24. Downey had seven points, Cloonan five, Littlewood four and Jim Smith, Mitchell, Nichols and Martinson two each.

The eighth grade team led all the way in walloping Canton, 69-40. Brian Raftery swept the boards at both ends and Quincy's team speed was too much for Canton. Joe Kelly, Brian McPartlin, Harold Mortel, Jason Fennessy and Raftery all scored in double figures and Jim Cipriano, Mike Bartlett, George Wirtz and Mike Kane all scored.

Quincy defeated Hingham, 34-27, as McPartlin scored 20 points, Raftery had 18 rebounds and Mike Kane, Mortel, Bartlett, Fennessy and Kelly played strong defense.

Quincy's Mite A hockey team lost to Westwood, 6-5, at the Skating Club of Boston.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Ever ask yourself the question, "Am I really as happy as I can be and am I giving the best I can in this life?" Perhaps there really isn't any clear-cut answer to this question... Yet perhaps there is... Through the years, we all have made mistakes. We all have had certain habits, moods, fears and feelings of guilt which have kept us restless and unhappy at certain times. Yet it is possible to turn from the inadequate and unhappy things of life and begin living a new life. This can be done by deciding we are through with unhappiness... we are going to cast unhappiness behind us... True... there is some unhappiness that can never be cast aside, but most of it can... True... we need constantly to remind ourselves that we can be about as happy as we make up our minds to be... True... circumstances play a part in our lives... but isn't it also true that WILLPOWER and FAITH also play an important part?... True... it is never too late to change. This has become a truth so often repeated that it is a truism.

Couldn't it be said that happiness can be ours when we are supported by this hope and confidence?

Councillors Indicate Sewer User Fee Will Be Passed

quarter and $281.19 for the 1st quarter.

Other charges, based on actual water bills, would be:

- Family of five: $68.09 last quarter, $307.15 for year.
- Family of nine: $110.29 last quarter, $497.49 for year.
- Two elderly people, without abatement, $24.45 last quarter, $110.32 for year.
- Two elderly people, with abatement, $18.34 last quarter, $82.74 for year.
- Senior citizen living alone, without abatement, $14.39 last quarter, $64.88 for year.
- Senior citizen, with abatement, $10.80 last quarter, $48.66 for year.

However, the rates will likely triple in five years as ratepayers share the cost of cleaning up Boston Harbor.

The fee will also apply to major industrial users and small businesses.

Reacting to the abatement amendment, Sheets said he supports such a measure. He noted that while drafting his fee proposal, he considered putting an abatement clause in it. In the end, he decided to leave it up to the council.

"We had talked extensively about some sort of provision to follow for an abatement under some circumstances.

We looked at a number of possibilities. In the end, it was my conclusion that I would leave that decision up to the City Council," Sheets said.

Continuing, the mayor said, "I certainly intend to support their amendment. I don't want a sewer user fee. (Councillors) don't want a sewer user fee and the people of Quincy don't want a sewer user fee."

"But we're at the point where we really don't have a choice," referring to the state's fiscal mismanagement which he said has created a "state of chaos" because of drastic cuts in local aid.

"The failure to make the necessary cuts on Beacon Hill means the fiscal problems are deepening and worsening at the state level," he said.

Compounding the problem are rising MWRA assessments and insurance costs. The assessments alone increased $2 million, from $4.8 million to $6.8 million.

Sheets is counting on the sewer user fee to help offset a

$2 million deficit at the end of this fiscal year in June. A deficit this year will be rolled over into next year's budget, the mayor noted.

The mayor also said that the weekend storm had wiped out the city's $300,000 snow and ice removal budget and put the account in the red by an estimated $100,000.

Additional money spent on snow removal will be rolled over into next year's budget as a deficit, he added.

1. MAJOR INDUSTRIAL USERS

Users who discharge more than 25,000 gallons per day into the sewerage system shall be classified as Major Industrial Users. These users shall pay their share of wastewater management costs in proportion to their actual use of the sewerage system. Users in this class shall be charged based on the actual metered discharge to the sewer system or actual water usage, whichever is deemed applicable by the Commissioner of Public Works.

2. TAX EXEMPT USERS

Users who are exempt from Real Estate taxes shall be classified as tax-exempt users. Users in this classification shall pay their share of wastewater management costs in proportion to their actual use of the sewerage system. ## Sheets Names Fishman New Personnel Director done by David Smith. In fact, I think David Smith has been a valuable asset for the city," Sheets said.

Besides being Personnel Director, Smith was chairman of the city's Environmental Task Force. Among the issues it is addressing is the proposed siting of a hazardous waste incinerator near Quincy Point.

Administrative Secretary Bernice Mader is now chairman of the Task Force.

"But," the mayor continued, "(Personnel Director) is a sensitive position and we'll be dealing with grievances and (contract) negotiations and I felt I should deal with my own appointment."

Sheets said he chose Fishman based on her experience and "comments made by professional people who work with her."

"After some inquiry, we were convinced without question that she was the one for the job," the mayor said.

As Benefits Coordinator, Fishman has dealt with "extremely complicated" insurance issues such as Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Sheets noted. "She has done an excellent job and has demonstrated professional skills."

A 1981 graduate of Syracuse University with a bachelor of science degree in management, Fishman has been Benefits Coordinator for approximately five years. In that capacity, she recommended and implemented cost-containment strategies resulting in excess of $1 million savings.

In addition, she reorganized an annual open enrollment formation program to provide better communication of alternate health plans and calculated an $8 million insurance budget annually.

Fishman also performed preliminary investigation of new alternate benefit plans, counseled retired employees regarding Medicare and Medicare-extension programs while handling a wide variety of employee benefit problems.

Sheets has not appointed a new Benefits Coordinator.

DeCristofaro Urges 15 Local Town Clerks To Join Fight Against Incinerator

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

City Council President Theodore DeCristofaro has written 15 local town clerks asking them to join the Council in its opposition against the siting of a hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree.

Clean Harbors, Inc. has proposed a rotary kiln hazardous waste incinerator in the Fore River industrial basin near the East Braintree-Quincy line. Already, elected officials and civic groups from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hingham are trying to stop the siting.

DeCristofaro, who represents Ward 2 which includes the area nearest the proposed site, wrote letters to town clerks in these towns: Milton, Avon, Boston, Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham, Randolph, Hull, Marshfield, Duxbury, Hanover, Norwell, Rockland, Abington and Whitman.

In his letter, the council president said, "We are all at risk" since "emissions know no boundaries."

TED DeCRISTOFARO

DeCristofaro continued, "Air studies indicate that the toxic emissions from this facility will travel a minimum of 10 miles and, depending on local winds, up to 40 miles. Not only could the air be contaminated, but also our surface water supplies and of course, the ground itself."

He also noted that transportation is another concern which surrounding communities should address.

"These hazardous waste and toxic chemicals will be coming to Braintree from the New England states and Canada. These trucks will travel over our roads and bridges; and in some areas, due to construction projects or simply the local network, the vehicles will pass through our neighborhoods threatening the local population," DeCristofaro said.

He also noted that no "substantial" evacuation plans for areas outside Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth exist.

"Can you imagine what would happen if there was a serious fire or spill? At the same time our fire department mutual assistance agreements would come into play."

In closing, DeCristofaro asked the town clerks to oppose "this threat to ourselves and our quality of life."

He also requested they forward letters to Gov. Michael Dukakis, Secretary of Environmental Affairs John DeVillars and Department of Environmental Protection Commissioner Daniel Greenbaum "stating our opposition."

Still Does House Chores

Hanna Olson Has Simple Formula For Reaching 100

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

For Hanna Olson, Quincy's newest centenarian, the secret of a long, healthy and happy life is simple: religion, proper diet and no smoking or drinking.

Olson, a native of Sweden and longtime Quincy resident, celebrated her 100th birthday Saturday with relatives and friends at her home located at 26 Carlson St.

"She's very religious, doesn't smoke or drink, and she reads the Bible everyday," said Doris Herbert, 60, her only granddaughter.

Hanna also eats fish regularly, doesn't wear any jewelry and make-up and has never cut her blonde hair. Instead, she braids her locks and puts the braids neatly in a bun. Relatives say her hair is several feet long.

Born in a small town outside Stockholm, Sweden on Jan. 27, 1890, Hanna came to the United States with her late husband, Martin, in 1914.

He worked at the Morgan Brothers Ice Cream shop in Boston where they lived for five years.

In 1919, they moved to Quincy after Martin joined the Bethlehem Steel Company at the Fore River shipyard. He worked there as a shipfitter for 36 years, retiring at the age of 65 in 1950.

Hanna has lived in Quincy 71 years. Today, she still does many household routines, such as cooking, by herself.

Layoffs Coming

All City Depts. Face 3-To-5 Percent Cuts

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With the City Council poised to approve a proposed sewer user fee, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday all city departments face between three to five percent cuts in the fiscal 1991 budget which begins July 1.

However, the mayor said the level of cuts "could change at any time," especially since the amount of local aid due to Quincy for the second half of fiscal 1990 is unknown. Furthermore, the mayor acknowledged there will be layoffs with or without the fee.

If approved, the fee would raise $9.5 million to help offset a $14.6 million deficit in fiscal 1991. The remaining $6 million in red ink would be wiped out by three to five percent cuts in all departments.

Without the fee, the mayor noted there would be 13.7 percent cuts in all departments across the board to balance the budget.

Since only Ward 6

Councillor Thomas Nutley has objected to the fee, the City Council will probably endorse it at its Feb. 20th meeting.

Once the proposal is passed, Sheets and his department heads will begin making reductions, including layoffs.

"If there are five percent cuts, we're looking at expense cuts plus layoffs. If we're talking three percent cuts, some departments would have just expense cuts and some departments would have both expense cuts and layoffs," the mayor said.

Presently, Sheets has projected a $2.6 million deficit for fiscal 1990 which ends June 30. That deficit would be "rolled over" into the fiscal 1991 budget which is expected to be short by $14.6 million. That figure includes the rollover.

Much of the city's financial future hinges on the fate of the sewer user fee and the next local aid payment which is due in June. A majority of councillors have expressed support for the fee at three recent Ordinance Committee meetings with only Nutley objecting.

The councillor has maintained that the fee, which would cost an average family of four $280 a year on top of its water bill, is too costly for homeowners. Instead, Nutley has made several cost-saving and revenue generating ideas

QUINCY COUNCIL ON AGING Chairman John Noonan, left, presents outgoing Executive Director Tom Koch with a compass as a small token of appreciation for his work with the council. # Counsel Asks Liquor Complaints In Double Fatality Be Sent To Court

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy Police Department will take its case against the Quincy Bay Inn to court, according to Police Chief Francis Finn, as requested by Counsel for the inn.

The case concerns allegations that the Aquarius Lounge at Quincy Bay Inn served alcohol to two intoxicated Quincy youths on the night they died in a car crash on Route 3A in Hingham last September.

The matter was due to come before the License Board Tuesday, but was continued indefinitely by the board on the request of Atty. Richard Barry, representing the Quincy Bay Inn.

In a letter to the board dated Jan. 29, Barry requested that the Police Department prosecute the case through criminal court so that Barry would be entitled to evidence which he might be denied if the case was brought before the License Board.

Finn said the Police Department would request a special Assistant District Attorney to prosecute the case. If found guilty, employees of the establishment could face $50 to $500 in fines and from one month to one year in jail.

The allegations concern the serving of alcohol to Shawn Clancy and Daniel Ward, both 19, of Quincy on the night of Sept. 25, 1989. The teenagers later died in a car crash in Hingham when they hit a tree and a utility pole. Police estimated that the car was traveling at over 100 miles per hour at the time of the crash.

In his letter, Atty. Barry said a central factor in the case would be the reports on the

Nutley Has 31 Ideas As User Fee Alternatives

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, who is opposed to a sewer user fee as a means to closing next year's budget gap, has made 31 suggestions to James A. Sheets as alternatives to the fee.

His ideas, which Sheets received Tuesday, include:

- Requiring city employees to pay 10 percent of their HMO payments.
- Zero pay increases for all city employees. With union compliance, no layoffs this year.
- Consolidate Quincy High and North Quincy High School at North. It is the newer of the two facilities and North is closer to the MBTA Red Line, Nutley reasoned. North still has bonded debt, he added.

THOMAS NUTLEY
Ward 6

- Reorganize Quincy Vocational-Technical High School with Blue Hills Regional School in Canton.
- Fifty dollar fee on third and successive cars in each family.

- One hundred percent hiring freeze.
- Liberalize downtown zoning to encourage development on both sides of Coddington St. from Quincy Junior College to Quincy Police Station. He suggests making the area Planned Unit Development (PUD) and allowing buildings up to eight stories.
- Increased mitigation monies from the MWRA up front for hosting interim sludge facility at the Fore River shipyard. The city will receive an estimated $2.2 each year from 1991 through 1995 from the MWRA for hosting

S. Quincy Restaurant Warned After Noise, Parking Complaints

By JANE ARENA

After hearing noise and parking complaints from several neighbors against the Varsity Club, 33 Independence Ave., the License Board Tuesday placed the matter on file.

However, Police Chief Francis Finn recommended that if the matter comes before the board again, the establishment should be made to show cause why its license should not be suspended. This is the second time neighbors have complained to the board about the club. The matter was before the board last Spring.

The complaints, by Barbara Elsayed of 38 Independence Ave., and supported by several other area residents, allege that patrons from the establishment make noise after 2 a.m. by slamming car doors, shouting obscenities, driving away and sounding horns, and playing car radios.

Elsayed also told the board that patrons park on Independence Ave. and area streets, blocking entrance to driveways. She said they also park illegally in the parking lot at CVS.

Elsayed told the board she has asked the employees, including the doorman, to have patrons move their cars from near her driveway several times. She said she was "abused and insulted" by Varsity Club employees and said they were uncooperative in carrying out her requests.

Other neighbors told the board that they are disturbed at night by the noise of employees rolling beer kegs to and from an outdoor cooler located in back of the property.

David Palmer of 70 Federal Ave. said that the cooler, which is fenced in and measures about 10-feet-by-10-feet, is used by employees during the night. He also questioned whether or not the cooler is legally permitted on the property. Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey said he will check to see if the cooler is permitted in the area.

Atty. Carl Johnson, representing Varsity Club owner Jon Perette, told the board the establishment operates on a "system" which ensures the cooler is not used at night.

Perette told the board no employees go into or out of the cooler after 6 p.m.

Neighbors also told the board they are disturbed by rubbish collectors at the Varsity Club between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. Perette said the rubbish disposal company, Waste Management, Inc., picks up the rubbish after 9 a.m.

Board Chairman John Gillis said trash collectors throughout the City have been causing a problem by picking up too early in the morning.

Atty. Johnson said the Varsity Club closes at midnight, earlier than the legal closing time of 1 a.m. He said the noise after 2 a.m. may be caused by patrons who leave the Varsity Club at midnight, go somewhere else, and then return to their cars after 2 a.m.

"I don't see how the owners (of the Varsity Club) can be held accountable for something that happens at 2 a.m.," he said.

Johnson also noted that the Varsity Club has installed an indoor public address system so that they can ask patrons to move cars if they are parked illegally.

Johnson said the Varsity Club is "sensitive" to the concerns of the neighbors and told the board that management is willing to take any measures to correct the problems.

The board suggested that Varsity Club erect a fence to the entrance of their parking lot to be locked after 12:30 a.m. A sign will be placed inside the establishment, advising patrons that any cars left after that time will be locked in for the night.

On the suggestion of Ward 4 councillor Thomas Fabrizio, present at the hearing, the club will also hire an extra police detail for outside the

Council Approves User Fee Management Plan

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The City Council Ordinance Committee has approved a sewer user fee management plan but postponed voting on the actual fee until its Feb. 20 meeting.

On Monday night, the committee delayed the vote out of courtesy to Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley. Nutley, who does not support the fee, said he wanted to meet with Mayor James Sheets, who proposed the fee, and discuss other cost-saving and money-raising measures.

It appears the fee will be approved at the Council's Feb. 20 meeting because a majority of councillors have said they support it.

The fee would raise about $9.5 million in fiscal 1991 which begins July 1. If approved Feb. 20, the fee would apply to homeowners as well as industrial and small business users for the last quarter of FY 1990: April, May and June.

The fee would cost an average family of four $280 in addition to its water bill. The fee is based on 70 percent water usage.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton estimated the charge will be $3.07 per 100 cubic feet, which equals about 750 gallons.

Once the sewer rate is finally set, Colton said it will likely be less than anticipated because of savings being passed on to Quincy by the MWRA. Last week, the authority saved millions of dollars when a bond issue for the Boston Harbor Cleanup cost less than expected.

Colton said the fee could be lower because the MWRA's assessment to Quincy will be $7.9 million instead of a projected $8.9 million next year.

The plan approved Monday night calls for:

- Fees to be set by the public works commissioner and the mayor.

- Surplus sewer money will go toward reducing the next year's rates or improving the sewer system.

- Meters be read at least twice a year to insure they are working properly and fees are correct.

- Spending $5,000 or more a year on educating residents on water conservation to reduce bills. Measures include installing water saving toilets, shorter showers and turning off the faucet while brushing teeth.

Ward 3 Councillor

Lawrence Chretien, who noted with the fee the city still faces a $6 to $7 million shortfall next year, said the council's work on next year's budget "is just beginning."

Chretien said he will address the School Committee and ask that board to adopt a water conservation program as part of the curriculum.

He also said the city should set a goal of "drastic reduction" in water consumption. "Water conservation, like recycling, kills two birds with one stone," he said.

A water conservation program could eventually lead to lower assessments and thus lower bills, he noted.

The plan also entitles homeowners age 70 and above to receive a 25 percent abatement if their income is $13,000 (single) or $15,000 (couple). The abatements would be reviewed by the city treasurer and auditor.

The committee was prepared to vote on the fee but Council President Ted DeCristofaro, as a courtesy to Nutley, asked for the motion to approve the fee be removed.

The Wrong Place

The head of Clean Harbors is threatening to take his company out of Massachusetts if he can't build his hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree.

He sounds a little like the little kid threatening to take his bat and ball home if he can't pitch.

Chairman Alan McKim is quoted in the Patriot Ledger as having told its editorial board: "We will probably phase out of the Massachusetts market" if the incinerator is not approved.

Without the controversial 45,000-ton-a-year incinerator the company would have difficulty serving its customers, he says.

No mention, however, that some of the people living in the surrounding area might have difficulty breathing if the incinerator is built on that 11.3-acre East Braintree site at the Quincy line in the densely populated Fore River basin.

There are an estimated 30,000 people living within a mile of the site and some 200,000 within five miles -- in Braintree, Quincy and Weymouth.

Not to mention people in Hingham who are also quite concerned over the health threats of a toxic waste incinerator.

Why should these people have to contend with an incinerator in their back yard and right under their nose that will burn 45,000 tons of toxic waste a year?

Including such waste goodies as cancer causing polychlorinated biphenyls -- more commonly known as PCBs.

There are enough fumes and air pollution in the area now without adding more by the tons.

And before long there will be another major problem: the sludge facility Paul Levy and the MWRA are forcing down Quincy's throat at the old Quincy Shipyard right next door to where Clean Harbors wants to build their incinerator.

McKim concedes that the site is not the best possible place for an incinerator.

"If we had the best of all possible worlds, we could be on a 1,000-acre site in Louisiana," he is quoted. And did somebody say: "So go already!"

McKim assures that the incinerator is safe and everything would be done to keep it safe. Nothing to worry about, folks. Anyone who is alarmed is getting excited over nothing. Etc.

A densely populated area, regardless of how you slice it, is not the right place for a toxic waste incinerator.

Regardless of all the guarantees, promises and good intentions that (a) pollution would be controlled and (b) the equipment would never become faulty and it would never cause cancer or other health hazards -- the area is still not the right place for the incinerator.

It belongs out in the boondocks somewhere. Far away from people who already have enough problems in life and don't need or want a toxic waste burning incinerator to add some more.

The area already has a soap factory, huge oil storage tanks, Clean Harbors' own hazardous waste treatment plant and the next big attraction, a sludge facility.

East Braintree might be the most convenient one for Clean Harbors, but it is not the right one for the people.

There's got to be a better place for it than here.

Like a 1000-acre site in Louisiana.

Sewer User's Fee Not The Way To Go

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Tonight (Monday) the Quincy City Council was scheduled to vote on a proposed Sewer User's Fee. The general public was not allowed to address the issue at the meeting. While most councilors stated that they would vote for the proposal on Feb. 20, nobody spoke on behalf of the many people opposed to the fee.

The Sewer User's Fee is being presented to the public as an attempt to prevent severe cuts in basic services such as police and fire protection as well as education. This scare tactic leads some people to believe that unless we have this fee, we can not afford to maintain necessary services during a time when cities and towns are suffering due to gross mismanagement at the state level.

What the public is not being told is that long after this fiscal crisis is behind us that the Sewer User's Fee will still remain and in fact will cost the Quincy taxpayer more than the proposed fiscal year 1991 rate. In addition, the money generated from the fee will not be used to pay for police, fire and educational services because that money is not placed in the general fund. The only impact that money can have on services is to free up money currently being used to fund the sewer system.

One way to help offset a budget deficit is to raise additional revenues. During the recent campaigns for political office, many of the candidates spoke about revitalizing Quincy Square by attracting new businesses to the area. This is quite a feat considering that a record number of businesses have left Massachusetts. If we are truly interested in attracting businesses to this area we must offer incentives for shop owners to invest in our community. Sewer User's Fees will do little to attract any new businesses.

The Sewer User's Fee is not the answer to our fiscal woes. While cities and towns are faced with tough budget decisions, so are the individual households throughout the state. We are paying more for licenses, insurance, food, fuel, taxes, fees and fines. To expect the residents of the City of Quincy to carry even more of a tax burden by imposing an additional fee is unfair and unacceptable.

Ricci Has 7-Goal School Blueprint For 1990s

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With the Quincy public school system facing a three to five percent cut over last year's $38 million budget, Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci has outlined his "educational goals" for next year.

Like other city departments, the School Department faces at least a three to five percent cut because of a projected $14.6 million shortfall next year. If a proposed sewer user fee is not approved by the City Council, the cuts could rise to 13.7 percent.

Ricci was expected to present his educational goals and budget priorities before the Quincy School Committee at its meeting Wednesday night. The committee was expected to begin its budget proceedings for FY 1991.

The Quincy Sun obtained a copy of Ricci's educational goals as it went to press Tuesday afternoon. Calling it a "blueprint for the 1990s," the superintendent noted that "fiscal resources are dwindling."

But, he continues, "It is the intention of this administration to, at the very least, maintain initiatives and programs currently in place while relying upon the development of new business and community partnerships to enhance current and future efforts."

Ricci's seven goals call for:

- Assuring the readiness of children to start school.
- Enhancing the performance of students on achievement tests, especially in reading, math and science, and an assessment test which focuses on problem-solving and critical thinking.
- Continue to reduce the dropout rate and improve basic literacy and academic performance, especially among at-risk students.
- Improving the functional literacy of out of school youth and adults.

• Preparing students with skills necessary for a competitive workforce.

• Enhancing staff development to ensure a qualified teaching force up-to-date in the technologies of the 90s and beyond.

• Ensuring safe, disciplined and drug-free schools. For each goal, Ricci listed rationale, a response and commitments.

For example, to assure the readiness of children to start school, he said he was committed to the continued use of the Early Childhood Education Center at Snug Harbor Community School.

As for the city's dropout rate which decreased from 19.6 percent in 1988 to 10.8 percent in 1989, Ricci has recommended continuing the Heritage Program, Director of Extended School Programs, Assistant to the Superintendent (part-time), Quincy Teen Mothers Program and the School GED and Summer Training and Educational Programs.

He also suggested seeking state and federal funds to keep in place the "Making It in High School" program with its mental health services for at-risk youth.

The national dropout rate is about 25 percent.

3 Fires At The Same House In One Night

Three fires in one night in her home at 400 Washington St., Quincy Point, failed to haze 85-year-old Mrs. Mary Fay.

Fire broke out in a stuffed easy chair in her living room at 9 p.m. She doused it with water and threw the smoldering cushion into a snow bank in the back yard.

Feb. 1-7

42 Years Ago

James Piccini, returning from a basketball game shortly before midnight, spotted the cushion in flames and threatening the back porch. He helped Mrs. Fay to put out the flames.

About 2:30 a.m., she was awakened by smoke and found the easy chair ablaze once again. She poured water on it until the fire was out and then sat up for an hour watching it.

"I'm glad I didn't have to bother the Fire Department," said Mrs. Fay.

SNOW PROBLEMS

City Councillor Carl W. Anderson asked for a quick approval of a $4,600 appropriation to buy a second hand snow removal truck that the city has been renting for the past few weeks.

"Our streets are in the deplorable condition they are because of the lack of equipment and not because of inefficiency in the Public Works Department," he said.

Meanwhile, officials at Squantum Naval Air Station entered a vigorous protest to the MDC over a pile of snow that had accumulated at the busy intersection of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Blvd.

Lt. Edward Goshorn, the public relations officer, said the pile of snow and ice was so high that it cut off the vision of drivers and resulted in many accidents at the spot.

NEW FIRE SCHEDULE

The new 48-hour week for the Quincy Fire Department got off to a smooth start, thanks to the addition of 59 men and the expenditure of $3,600 to equip them.

Under the new schedule, firefighters worked two 10-hour days, took 48 hours off, worked two 14-hour nights, and then had 48 hours off again.

Capt. James A. Daly, cousin of former Gov. Maurice Tobin, was appointed to the new post of deputy chief because of the new schedules.

Nutley Has 31 Ideas As User Fee Alternatives

the facility.

Nutley was unsure how much money could be saved or generated through his ideas. Even though some are long-range solutions, he believes they should still be considered.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he will consider Nutley's suggestions as well as any others that are made.

"Certainly, if there are any of those proposals that can give immediate (financial) relief I would work at adopting them. I will consider any option, any alternative plan for funding that anyone has.

"Any idea that is workable we will consider."

Last week, the council advertised the ordinance and asked for public comment. Monday night, Ordinance Committee Chairman Michael Cheney said he had received three letters: one in favor of the fee as a whole, one against it and a third which supported the fee idea but not an abatement clause for homeowners age 70 and over.

The committee amended the fee entitling citizens age 70 or over with a single income of $13,000 to a 25 percent reduction in their bill.

Meanwhile, Nutley said he had received a "slew" of phone calls from people opposed. About 10 residents attended Monday's meeting but since it was not a hearing, they were not allowed to speak. After the meeting, two residents thanked Nutley for standing up against the fee.

Sheets proposed the fee to raise $9.5 million to help offset a $14.6 million deficit in FY 1991. If the fee passes, there will be cuts in all departments between three and five percent.

If the fee doesn't pass, each department will have to make 13.7 percent cuts across the board.

The money generated by the fee would help pay Quincy's share for the cleanup of Boston Harbor and help run the city's sewer system.

Sewer service is now funded by the tax rate. Money freed up through the fee will go toward basic services such as police, fire and education.

The fee would also help offset increased sewer assessments which in the past were funded by free cash.

Snow Budget Clarification

Due to a reporting error, a news item in last week's Quincy Sun referring to the city's snow budget was incorrect.

The item stated that the Jan. 14th snowstorm had wiped out the city's $300,000 snow budget and left Quincy with an estimated $100,000 shortfall.

The story failed to mention the previous snowstorms which have hit Quincy and the South Shore area this winter.

Eggplant Casserole

The Speedy Way

When we think of eggplant, it's usually with parmesan cheese, and along with that, many of us don't always have the time. Today's recipe for eggplant is simple and when it is cooked, it looks as though you spent a lot more time on it than you did.

SPEEDY EGGPLANT CASSEROLE

1 med. sized eggplant, diced
(I leave the skin on, but you may remove it)

1 Tbsp. basil or oregano or both
(or the seasoning of your choice)

½ Lb. ground beef (or veal or turkey etc.)

¼ Cup white wine (optional)
salt and peper to taste

1 small onion
½ Cup grated Romano cheese

2 Cups tomato sauce
One 8 oz. package of either mozzarella or munster cheese (shredded)

In a frying pan, heat up about 2 tablespoons of oil. Saute the cut-up onion, eggplant, basil, onion, ground beef together until meat is browned. Add the wine, tomatoes, grated cheese and cook until eggplant is tender and the whole mixture is well-blended. If you need to add a little liquid, add a little water.

In a slightly greased casserole dish, layer alternately the eggplant mixture and the shredded cheese. Top with seasoned breadcrumbs and mozzarella cheese and bake in a 350 degree oven until done (about 25 minutes). Serve with rice, noodles or baked potato.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previte's Market, Summer St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield City Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Host Families Sought For Japanese College Students

Cultural Homestay Institute, a non-profit intercultural exchange program, is currently seeking Quincy families to host Japanese college students (age 18-23) who will be attending classes at Boston University this spring between March 4 and 31.

The students are visiting the area to improve their conversational English, and to learn about the American culture.

English as a Second Language will be taught at Boston University four mornings per week and afternoons and one weekday will be reserved for cultural activities in the Boston area.

In addition to the classroom and trips, students will have a Cultural Exchange Afternoon in which members of the community and the host families will be invited to share in crafts, songs and games with the students.

Some of the cultural activities include the Museum of Fine Arts, Newbury Street, and Quincy Marketplace. Host families and their children are welcome to come along with the students on these and many other activities.

Although most families in the area are recruited through Cultural Homestay Institute, there are still a few openings in the Quincy area.

Anyone interested is asked to call Denise Endow at 479-7054.

Home Resale Market Healthy, Steady Growth Expected In 1990

Sales of existing single-family homes remained steady last month, reaching a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.55 million units, down 1.1 percent from the previous month, and bringing the 1989 total to 3.43 million units, according to the National Association of Realtors.

Last year's total was down 4.6 percent from the 1988 total of 3.59 million units, which ranked as the strongest year of the decade and was one of the top four sales years on record.

"Although sales declined in 1989, the resale volume in 1988 was the highest since 1979. A healthy level of existing-home sales was sustained last year," said NAR President Norman D. Flynn.

"Last month's resale pace indicates a stable market. With plenty of homes available at good prices, and relatively low mortgage rates, it is really a 'buyer's paradise' right now," said Flynn, a Realtor from Madison, Wis.

The national median price for existing single-family homes in December was $92,500, which was 4.3 percent above the December 1988 median of $88,700. For the year, the median sales price for existing single-family homes was $93,100, also rising 4.3 percent from 1988, and matching the overall inflation rate.

The national resale volume decline in December was due, in part, to a drop in existing-home sales in the Northeast and South, where severe weather conditions prevailed. However, the largest regional decline occurred in the West, where resale activity dropped from an extremely high November level.

In the Northeast, the December 1989 resale pace of 570,000 units fell 3.4 percent from November's rate of 590,000 units. The December resale pace was 18.6 percent lower than the December 1988 rate. The 1989 resale pace for the Northeast was 585,000 units, 13.1 percent below the 1988 pace.

The Northeast median price of $143,000 last month was 0.1 percent higher than the December 1988 price of $143,000. The 1989 median price for the Northeast was $145,200, $1.5 percent higher than 1988 median.

"The essentially unchanged median home prices in the Northeast reflect a continuing slump in many of the large metropolitan areas," said NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo.

The decline in the West's existing-home sales rate reflected a market correction from an eight-month high in November, especially in California, Tuccillo noted. In the West, the resale pace of 600,000 units fell 6.3 percent from November's rate of 640,000 and 14.4 percent from December 1988. The 1989 home resale total for the West was 605,000 units, 5.8 percent below the 1988 total.

"Despite the decline in the West, the December level of resale activity is healthy overall, which demonstrates the underlying strength of the market," said Tuccillo.

The December median price recorded for the West was $135,300, 5.1 percent higher than the December 1988 price of $128,700. The 1989 median price for the West was $139,900, up 12.0 percent from the 1988 median price.

The existing home sales rate in the South slipped 3.5 percent in December to 1.38 million units, from November's pace of 1.43 million units. Last month's pace was down 8.0 percent from the December 1988 rate of 1.50 million units.

"Unusually severe weather dampened the market somewhat during the holiday season," Tuccillo said. "Despite this, though, the December level of activity was the second highest of the previous 12 months, indicating an overall healthy market," he added.

For 1989, single-family resales in the South totaled 1.31 million units, 2.9 percent below the 1988 total.

The median price in the South was $83,200 in December, 6.4 percent higher than the December 1988 price of $78,200. The 1989 median price was $84,500, 2.8 percent above the 1988 price.

In the Midwest, the only region posting an increase, the December resale pace of 990,000 units was 3.1 percent above the November pace of 960,000 units, but 2.0 percent below the December 1988 pace of 1.01 million. For the year, the Midwest total was 926,000 units, 0.3 percent below the 1988 total.

"The improvement in the Midwest, in the face of unusually severe weather, signals a market that has been slowly turning around, and one that is expected to continue growing in the 1990's," Tuccillo said.

The median price for existing-homes in the Midwest was $69,900 last month, rising $2,100 from January, and 3.9 percent from the February 1988 price of $67,300. The 1989 median price was $71,200, 4.1 percent above the 1988 price.

"Last year, existing-home sales totaled nearly 3.5 million units, which would be the fourth consecutive year in which home sales reached or exceeded that level," said Tuccillo. "With the gradual decline in interest rates expected in 1990, we should continue to see a healthy market this year," added Tuccillo.

More than half the homes sold in December cost $92,500 or more; the largest percentage by price class, 13.5 percent, were sold in the $120,000-$159,999 price range. Nine percent cost $250,000 or higher.

"The annual rate for a particular month represents what the total number of actual sales for a year would be if the relative resale pace for that month were maintained for 12 consecutive months."

Seasonally adjusted annual rates are used in reporting monthly data to factor out seasonal variations in resale activity. For example, home sales volume normally is higher in the summer and relatively light in the winter months, primarily because of differences in the weather.

Real Estate Answer Man

The Quincy Sun, in conjunction with the National Association of Real Estate Appraisers, the largest appraisal association in the nation with over 24,000 designated "CREA" — Certified Real Estate Appraisers members, will be publishing a regular column answering readers questions on real estate valuation, real estate finance, or questions of a general real estate nature.

If you have a question that you would like answered, send your question together with your name and address, to this newspaper. Mark your envelope attention, Real Estate Answer Man. Every letter will receive a reply and specially selected letters will be published in this column.

Q: I am buying a home which is being financed by an FHA loan. Should I get an appraisal on my property?

Ms. Jill Simons

A: The FHA (Federal Housing Authority) will assign one of their approved appraisers to appraise your home. These appraisers must meet stringent standards and have years of experience before they can be placed on an approved list for your lender to use. In addition to the actual appraisal itself, the report will probably be reviewed for accuracy, as well as to ensure it meets other industry standards, by a review appraiser at FHA and perhaps your Bank or Savings & Loan. To obtain another appraisal probably would not satisfy any meaningful purpose and would only be an extra added expense to your home purchase.

Q: I am thinking of selling my home. Does landscaping add anything to the value or should I spend the money on fixing the inside?

Mr. Jonathan Blair

A: Landscaping can be extremely important when selling your home. First, poor or unkempt yards are a turnoff to prospective purchasers. After seeing the yard they may not want to even look at the inside. Appraisers can be negatively influenced by poor maintenance landscaping. A little effort on your part such as trimming all bushes and shrubs, pruning trees, rereading bare areas of the lawn, replacing broken sidewalks, etc. will normally return their cost and add more value to the property.

THE LUKOW PICTURE

Saving The Mortgage Deduction

Perhaps the most important tax policy in America today is the mortgage interest deduction. The cornerstone of housing policy for most of this century, it helps promote homeownership—and make it more affordable—by allowing home owners to deduct from their taxes the interest they pay on their mortgage.

Reducing the mortgage deduction would hit the middle class the hardest.

This vital policy, say the experts at the National Association of Home Builders, may now be in jeopardy for some basic reasons:

- It is an inviting target for deficit reduction revenue. In fact, however, even if the deduction were capped at a level so low that it really hurt middle class home owners, the government wouldn't raise enough revenue to dent the massive federal deficit.
- An uncomfortable precedent was set in 1986 when the deduction was restricted to two homes and in 1987 when Congress, for the first time, set a cap on the amount of mortgage interest that is deductible.

For a free brochure on the mortgage interest deduction, write the Home Owners of America, Box NAIS, 15th and M Streets, N.W., Washington D.C. 20005.

What kind of bride are you? A little fantasizing helps you discover your bridal personality

Wedding bells are in the air...Congratulations! You're getting married! If you're like most prospective brides, you're already dreaming of a magnificent wedding, a breathtaking gown and an unforgettable honeymoon with the most luxurious lingerie.

To help, most bridal magazines offer monthly countdowns that organize all those pesky details and keep plans running smoothly. But the big question remains: How do you make your wedding uniquely your own? Brides-to-be should consider the type of gown, location of the ceremony, even honeymoon lingerie that truly reflects their own style.

According to Modern Bride's Fashion Editor, Linda Weichenrieder, "When choosing lingerie, you'll want to select something that reflects your own tastes. Traditional and conservative women may feel very uncomfortable wearing a sheer or revealing gown the night of their honeymoon."

She adds, "It's important to follow your instincts when making wedding arrangements so the day of the event you're comfortable and relaxed with the choices you've made." Here are five fantasy examples to spark your imagination.

Traditional

The traditional bride selects a long-sleeved, silk Empire gown, overlaid with Alençon or Chantilly lace and encrusted with tiny pearls. The length of her train hinges somewhat on the size of the room; a six-foot train looks silly in a private chapel. Her morning wedding takes place in a Gothic-style church or cathedral, or in a dramatic synagogue.

After the ceremony, stretch limousines convey the wedding party to the reception. The setting: A rambling, Tara-like country club, perfect for dancing on the terrace to a local ensemble. Here, lunch and champagne are followed by an all-white, tiered cake covered in white sugar flowers.

For her honeymoon, she looks to sun, sea and sand in Hawaii, Paradise Island or Cancun, destined for a memorable two weeks. A long stretch of beach decorated with palm trees gleaming in the sunset is her fantasy backdrop as she makes her entrance in a traditional peignoir set from Val Mode Lingerie. It is a delicate spaghetti strap gown with a jacquard bodice, and a jacquard coat featuring decorative lace trim on the sleeves. From the waist down the coat is sheer and tied with a ribbon belt, a honeymoon ensemble perfect for every traditional bride.

Sexy

How daring are you? Daring enough to hold your wedding and reception under an Arabian tent on a New York rooftop? If so, a hot and sexy style may be right for you.

Things begin to warm up around 10:00 p.m., with the bride making her entrance in a body-hugging strapless sheath. The reception features the music of Anita Baker for slow dancing, and an enticing menu that includes oysters, creamy pates, grapes and figs followed by a dense, semi-sweet chocolate cake, with mounds of fudge frosting.

For her honeymoon in Monte Carlo, the bride packs a sheer black lace teddy with a chiffon flounce and embroidered red roses.

Romantic

The romantic bride chooses an updated fairy tale wedding held on a yacht at sunset. Her gown recalls the bows and puffs of Lady Diana's white confection. Delicate pearls capture the glow of a thousand candles lighting the reception in the great room of the yacht.

Champagne flows throughout dinner, and dessert is a lacy, tiered white cake flavored with a hint of orange. After dancing until dawn to the music of Michael Feinstein, our heroine and her husband depart for Portugal, where they honeymoon in a 19th-century palace with a view of gently rolling hills leading down to the ocean. Her trousseau includes an ivory chausson gown covered with a flowing chiffon wrap detailed with sequins and pearls.

Sophisticated

Whether on Chestnut Street in Boston, or on Nob Hill in San Francisco, the sophisticated bride chooses a gracious townhouse for the setting of her wedding. Mixing the old and new, she wears a crystal-pleated Mary McFadden evening gown in spun silver or soft gold, offset by antique diamond teardrop earrings.

Her reception features dancing to the music of Peter D'Uch, the finest champagne, and an impressive menu including caviar in new potatoes, smoked salmon, tiny lamb chops, and vegetables stuffed with herbed cheese. Dessert is a hazelnut Genoise covered in rum icing.

For a sophisticated honeymoon, she and her husband have planned a theater week at the Savoy in London. Dining on the balcony with the Thames in the background creates the perfect setting for a romantic dinner in luxurious lingerie. The bride wears a dramatic black scroll patterned chausson gown featuring built up straps for a look of sophistication from the Jessica Lynn Collection. The matching full-length kimono robe with a rope tie is optional to cover the slit of the gown.

Playful

The playful bride is nothing if not spontaneous. She and her fiancé invite friends and family to a country party at a winery. When the guests arrive, they find the tasting room draped in white parachute silk. When they see the bride wearing a short, slinky white dress with layers and layers of ruffles, they suspect something is afoot.

After the brief surprise ceremony, everyone celebrates to Kentucky bluegrass music. The menu is down-home: southern fried chicken wings, cornbread, mini-tacos, sliced catfish on homemade biscuits, and the winery's finest wines and champagnes. As expected, the cake is unconventional: a replication of the bride's skirt, executed in spun sugar.

In keeping with her spontaneity, this bride has packed a smashing Val Mode Lingerie red coulette teddy with delicate spaghetti straps, button down front and a slightly flared and flirtatious bottom that she discovers can appear as a chemise or a pant for a secret surprise on her honeymoon down-under in the Australian outback!

Every bride-to-be dreams of a wedding that reflects her individual style. Concentrating on a single theme provides direction, and helps to organize all those details that keep your wedding running smoothly.

Once those elements are in place, a bride can enjoy putting together her trousseau, from a selection of delicate lingerie—like Val Mode or Jessica Lynn lingerie, available at major department and specialty stores nationwide—to her bridal gown and even her floral arrangements. Taking the time to plan carefully means the reward of sharing a wedding that truly has your signature. BR904939

Wedding Gift List Of Do's And Don't's

1. The bride should register only with one store of a kind.
2. The bride should quietly inform a relative about some larger expensive items that she would love to have.
3. No bride-to-be should allow the store at which she is registered to send out notices to her friends and wedding guest list that she is registered there.
4. It is improper to open gifts at the reception.
5. The bride should write a thank-you note as soon as possible, but not on cards that say "Thank You." When wives work full time, husbands should share the task of writing thank-you notes.
6. Gifts from the immediate family of either the bride or the groom should never be returned to a store in exchange for something else, as feelings could be easily hurt by such an action. (The exception to this, of course, is if there are duplicate gifts).
7. When an engagement is broken or a wedding does not take place, the gifts must be returned with brief and tactful notes of explanation.
8. Both bride and groom give their attendants some lasting memento of the occasion. While these gifts are often silver or gold, a gift of crystal, such as Steuben, is an excellent idea.

Make-up tips for the blushing bride

Being a beautiful bride is easier than you think. Your inner glow is reflected in your eyes and your skin looks fresher and healthier than ever. It's happiness—combined with a few artful touches of make-up to give you that incomparable once-in-a-lifetime look, and the experts at Cover Girl have a few tips to help you on your way!

Start things off with a foundation that is both flattering and compatible with your skin. A light, moisture-enriched formulation like Cover Girl MoistureWear Make-Up is a good choice because it gives you a truly natural look that lasts. Do match your foundation shade to your face and neck; skin on your hand or arm is a different color and texture.

To apply foundation, blend with long, even, downward strokes using a slightly dampened sponge wedge for flawlessly perfect skin. Top off with a gentle dusting of loose face powder for the matte look that's best for the photographs you'll be showing your grandchildren some day. If your neckline bares shoulders and décolleté, dust these with powder too, for an even skin tone.

When he turns to you to say "I do," you'll want your eyes to look more beautiful than ever. Choose shadows that complement your coloring and apply with a brush or sponge-tip applicator. To easily find the colors that best suit you, look for Cover Girl Professional ColorMatch Shadows. These shadows have a back-of-package grid that indicates which skin and hair tones are warm, cool or neutral—at a glance. Each Professional ColorMatch kit is then coded with a warm, cool or neutral symbol so you know you're buying shadows that will help you look your best. The finishing touch for eyes—mascara! On this special day you'll probably want to use a waterproof or water resistant formulation so that you'll still look fresh even when your emotions are overflowing.

Everyone talks about the "blushing" bride and there's a good reason. A rosy complexion is one sure sign of bliss. To keep that look throughout the day and evening, try a long-wearing blush—but apply with a light hand. Stroke on with backward strokes moving upward from mid-point between the corner of your lips and your ear lobe. Never put color on your cheekbone itself.

The long-awaited words, "You may now kiss the bride," could translate just as easily to mean, "You may now smudge the bride's lipstick." Avoid any lipstick "altar-cation" by following a few simple guidelines. First, a touch of lip-enhancing color is all that's needed, so don't smear on a heavy application. Do lightly dust lips with powder before you apply your lip color—this will help to keep lipstick on your lips (not on his face!). Use a lip-liner and fill in carefully with a tube lipstick then, finally, blot lips with a tissue to secure color and help prevent cracking.

It goes without saying that you should rehearse your make-up the same way you'll rehearse for your wedding. Try different color combinations to find the look that suits you best and if you're having a day-time wedding be sure to try your look under daylight as well as artificial light.

A successful marriage is in the book features practical advice

Of the three million young women who will walk the aisle this year, more than half of them will do so with little or no preparation.

"A successful marriage is not an accident," declares Dorothy Freeman, author of the just-released bride's guide, Making It Last: Love And Marriage.

"Boundless love for each other is not enough to sustain it. It is necessary for the bride to learn all she can about what will be required to develop a happy, long-lasting marriage; then, after she has done it, she must apply what she has learned."

Making It Last: Love And Marriage is a comprehensive guide to the marriage and about-to-be-married couple.

Especially useful to the bride, the book covers virtually every aspect of marriage, including

Advice on selecting a wedding ring

①Selecting a wedding ring is, for many, the first opportunity to buy a piece of fine jewelry, one that will last forever.

It is helpful to understand some of the basic information on wedding jewelry before you begin shopping for rings.

The type of ring that is best for you depends on the shape of your hand. Large hands can carry a bold, free-form design, while a narrow band with a single stone is more appropriate to a smaller hand.

The per-carat price of a ring featuring a gem is determined by the cutting, color and clarity of the stone.

A fine one-half carat gem will cost more than an inferior one-carat gem.

Most stones are faceted, or carved, to allow a maximum of brilliance and shine.

Cabochons are smoothly cut gems.

Clarity describes the presence or absence of blemishes. If, when a stone is magnified ten times, no imperfections are visible, it is flawless.

Channel set refers to stones set in parallel grooves for a sculptured look. A fiery shine is achieved when stones are held individually by metal teeth in a pronged setting.

An interesting fact to remember is that the best diamonds are colorless.

All of these guidelines will help you in your decision when you are faced with a vast array of rings from which to choose.

However, stone, style and setting are yours to determine, according to your own idea of what makes up the perfect ring for you. BR905182

How much should a diamond engagement ring cost?

Today's engaged couples are older, better educated and have a higher combined income than ever before.

They are looking for quality and value when they make their diamond engagement ring purchase... especially since this is usually the first major diamond purchase the couple makes. When these couples walk into a jewelry store, 67 percent of all women and 50 percent of all men have no preconceived idea of what they are going to spend on a diamond engagement ring.

Jewelers of America (JA), the national organization dedicated to consumer education and information about fine jewelry, states that although 75 percent of all couples shop together, the man and woman perceive the purchase of the diamond engagement ring differently.

The man strongly believes in the tradition of the diamond engagement ring and the importance of the quality of the stone. It is the one aspect of the wedding process over which he has control!

For the woman, the ring is just one aspect of the wedding process. She is concerned with the size and shape of the stone as a function of style, but is also worried about their budget. The symbolism of the diamond engagement ring is implicit, but she tends to downplay the importance of size and price while he is ready to spend more for the best he can give her.

In view of these facts, to determine what you can best afford, a wise guideline to use is the two months' salary guideline. Research shows that this allows a couple to buy the best quality diamond they can afford without breaking their budget.

Diamonds are not inexpensive, but remember that while most purchases depreciate over the years, the diamond lasts long after the honeymoon and honeymoon is over. And, if you appreciate quality and look for it in everything you do, you'll want a diamond that is symbolic of the quality of your love.

Once you've decided on a budget of two months' salary, quality should be your first consideration. In order to understand quality in diamonds, you must understand the four C's: Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat-weight.

Cut: Diamonds are cut into a number of shapes, depending on the nature of the rough stone. A well-cut diamond is better able to handle light, creating more scintillation and sparkle.

Color: Diamonds are found with a range of colors; however, the best color for a diamond is no color. It is a totally colorless diamond that allows white light to pass through it and be dispersed as rainbows of color.

Clarity: Most diamonds contain very tiny natural birthmarks known as inclusions. However, the fewer and smaller the inclusions are, the less likely it is that they will interfere with the passage of light through the diamond, and the more beautiful the diamond will be.

Carat-weight: This is the weight of a diamond measured in carats. One carat is divided into 100 "points," so that a diamond of 75 points weighs .75 carats.

Jewelers of America suggests you ask your local jeweler to show you a selection of quality diamond engagement rings. You'll find a ring that's perfect for you and that fits your two months' salary budget. For more information about diamonds and other gemstones, write to JA for a free series of brochures: JA, 1271 Sixth Avenue, New York, NY 10020.

Shower The Couple With Unusual Gifts

There are still many solutions to the bridal shower gift dilemma, even for the independent bride. With a little creativity, you can give the bride-to-be a one-of-a-kind gift. Here are some suggestions from Singer Sewing Company for starting the happy couple on their way.

- Season tickets to a local concert series brings music into a couple's life. Or, for sports enthusiasts, a season of watching the home team is a memorable present.

- An emergency mending kit is something neither the bride nor groom is likely to have. Include an assortment of needles, thread, buttons, a pair of quality scissors and a pin cushion. The Mini Mender from Singer is a pocket sized appliance perfect for most clothing or household mending jobs.

- Mason jars filled with exotic flavored coffee beans (chocolate, almond, cinnamon) are all available in decaffeinated or regular. Label each jar with hand-decorated labels and complete the gift with personalized coffee mugs.

- Travel accessories are perfect for the couple on the go. Ideas include a clock with time zones around the world, a durable carry-on bag or a travel iron such as the small but sturdy appliance from Singer.

- A smoke alarm, emergency flashlight or kitchen fire extinguisher are safety appliances for the home that will keep the couple healthy and secure and are especially thoughtful items.

- The Compact and Lightweight sewing machine by Singer.

Basketball

North Loses To Rindge, Newton North

Last week was a tough one for the North Quincy boys' basketball team, which faced two of the three top Suburban League teams and lost both, dropping its record to 5-8.

The Raiders will play at Quincy Friday at 6 p.m. and will be at Waltham Tuesday at 7:30.

Last Friday North lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin (13-2), 70-52, despite one of the season's finest defensive efforts by co-captain Jeff Calvert, who held Cambridge's outstanding scorer, Omo Moses, to just eight points.

Angelo Kyranis led North with 16 points and scoring ace Erik DeBoer, who has scored 20 or more points in nearly every game, was held to 15, marking the second time in the week he was held under 20.

Earlier in the week the Raiders lost to Newton North (12-2) 59-44.

DeBoer was held to 13 points in this game and he took down seven rebounds.

Freshman Sean Donovan contributed 11 points to the North cause.

North fell behind, 20-5, in the opening quarter and trailed by a big 42-15 margin at the halftime.

Josh Hammermesh had 14 points, seven rebounds and six blocks for Newton North.

Miles Sets 3-Point Record As North Girls Win 2

The North Quincy girls' basketball team played its best game of the season and improved its record to 9-4 with a 43-27 win over Cambridge Rindge and Latin last Friday.

The North girls played Canton Tuesday, will play at Quincy Friday night at 7:30 and will be at Newton North next Tuesday at 5 o'clock.

North started fast and outscored Cambridge, 20-6, in the opening quarter and had a 27-13 advantage at the half.

Senior tri-captain Kerry Tolson and junior Tara Miles had 10 points apiece. Joanna Rugnetta had nine, Tricia Hughes five, senior tri-capt. Linda Ellis and Kara Sullivan four each and Kristen Haddigan had one point.

Earlier in the week North Quincy edged Newton North, 38-35, in its first overtime game of the year.

Miles, who scored 17 points including a school record of four three-pointers in a game, hit her fourth in overtime and Tolson added four points to give North the victory.

Miles broke former North star Nancy Flukes' season record of 12 with 14 three-pointers to date. Her 17 points against Newton was a career high.

Tolson scored eight points,

Hughes six, Soyon Park three and Rugnetta and Sullivan two each.

North trailed most of the way and was behind, 27-17, going into the fourth quarter. North came out in the fourth with a full-court trap and scored six quick points.

With 50 seconds left in regulation, Miles tied it at 31-31 with her third three-pointer and sent the game into overtime.

Quincy Famine Goes On

Things don't get any better for the Quincy boys' basketball team, which lost two more games last week, dropping its record to 0-13.

The Presidents, who have played strong games but haven't been able to put everything together, played at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday, will host North Quincy Friday at 6 o'clock and will be home to Newton North Tuesday night at 7:30. Cambridge and Newton are two of the three top teams in the Suburban League.

Quincy gave Brockton a battle last Friday but dropped a 69-58 decision.

The Presidents received fine efforts from Capt. Joe Russell, who had 13 points and nine assists, E.J. Nordstrom and Mark Bogan, each with 10 points.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Brookline, the league's top team (13-1), 80-59.

The Presidents, who pulled to within nine points in the final quarter, were led by Russell with 14 points, Mike Scolaro with 12 and Nordstrom with 11.

Sports

Hudson Standout

Paul Hudson of Quincy, a co-captain, is having a standout season for the Norfolk Agricultural School basketball team.

The senior is averaging 26.7 points a game, is the number five scorer in Eastern Massachusetts and the top scorer for his team. He had 321 points in his first 12 games.

Hudson's high point total for a game is 36 and his low is

21. He has been a key performer for the Aggies all season and a big reason why his team is in third place in the Mayflower League.

The Aggies' other co-captain, senior Hugh Merlino, is also from Quincy and is the number five scorer in the league with an average of 19.2 points a game.

As of last week the Aggies had a 10-2 record overall and were 6-2 in the league.

Quincy Girls Defeat Brookline, Bow To Brockton

The Quincy girls' basketball team, after recording its third win earlier in the week, found undefeated Brockton (13-0) too much last Friday and lost, 68-49, dropping its record to 3-10.

Volleyball

Sterling Tops Atlantic

The Sterling Middle School boys' and girls' volleyball teams recently defeated the Atlantic teams.

The boys won, 15-10, 15-13, as they served 90 percent of their serves in, with Danny Parzych leading the way with 11 for 11.

Sterling had good defense and net play from Jason Sova and Mike Aupperlee. Playing well were Tommy Malvesti, John Fraser and Kevin Carey. Also playing were Scott Mercurio, Kenny Wood, Quincy faced Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday, will host North Quincy Friday night at 7:30 and will be at Newton North Tuesday at 5 p.m.

The Quincy girls trailed only by 17-12 after a quarter but Brockton had a huge 26-6 edge in the second quarter and took an insurmountable 43-18 lead into the second half. Quincy outscored the winners, 31-26, in the last two quarters.

Maureen Shea scored nine points and Amy Baker and Melanie Sullivan eight apiece for Quincy.

Earlier in the week the Quincy girls came from behind to defeat Brookline, 37-29.

Quincy trailed, 18-16, at the half but outscored Brookline, 12-6, in the third quarter, led by Jen D'Alessandro.

D'Alessandro scored six of her seven points in the third quarter and she also had 13 rebounds. Erin Doherty had 10 points and three steals and Christine Barrett also scored 10 points.

Barrett, who had 12 rebounds, made four of five foul shots in the fourth quarter.

Raiders Snap Slump, Defeat Cambridge, 5-1

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy hockey team snapped a seven-game winless streak last Saturday with a 5-1 victory over Cambridge Rindge and Latin, improving its record to 6-5-2.

Dave Peters' Raiders faced Quincy for the second time last night (Wednesday), will host Newton North Saturday night at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will be idle next Wednesday.

North has six games to play, including last night's Quincy game and must get nine points in those games to qualify for the state tournament.

"We must at least go 4-1-1 and it will be a tough job, as we have the two top teams in the Suburban League, Brockton and Brookline, still to play," Peters said. "But, we tied Brookline to knock it out of first place and we gave Brockton a good game. It will be a tough road, but we can do it."

it."

In the win over Cambridge, Sal Manganaro, one of the top scorers in the state, had another hat trick and an assist, giving him 24 goals 11 assists in Division I.

Joe Fasano and Mike DesRoche had the other goals. Fasano also had two assists and now has 17 goals and 13 assists.

Brian Zimmerman had two assists and Jamie Tapper, Bill Lydon, Armando Mancini and Jim McCarthy one each. Pat O'Donoghue had a good night in goal with 18 saves.

"I was able to use four lines, getting in some of the players who haven't seen much action," Peters said.

Earlier in the week penalties proved costly to the Raiders, who lost to Brockton, 5-2.

Brockton scored three power-play goals as it outshot North Quincy, 35-30.

Brockton goalie Kenny Swabe had a fine game as he had 28 saves.

"We played a decent game, but took some undisciplined penalties," said Peters. "I've been trying to stress not taking dumb penalties, but it hasn't gotten through."

"Brockton is an outstanding team and their forwards are the best we've seen and they hit everything in sight tonight."

After a scoreless first period Brockton scored three goals in the middle period. Dan Genatossio had two goals and Eric Peterson, one of the league's top scorers, added one.

Brockton made it 4-0 early in the third period on Billy Santos' goal but Fasano scored for North with Duane Keegan assisting.

After Peterson's second goal, Zimmerman scored the second North goal with assists for Manganaro and Keegan.

Quincy Fades Against Waltham, Newton N.

Quincy's hockey team turned in two of its better performances of the season last week but faded in the third period of both games as it dropped decisions to Waltham and Newton North by identical 5-2 scores.

The Presidents (0-9-3) faced North Quincy for the second time last night (Wednesday) will play at Brockton Saturday at 4 o'clock and will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Wednesday at 5:30 at the Youth Arena.

Quincy turned in a solid two-way performance last Friday against Newton North and the score was 2-2 going into the final period.

The game turned around when the Presidents were hit with a major penalty and played short-handed for four minutes. Newton's Doug Leone, who had a hat trick, quickly scored his second goal and it was all downhill for Quincy the rest of the way. It had only four shots in the period.

"We have seven freshmen playing varsity hockey (also five sophomores) and we just don't have any impact players yet. The biggest problem we have had the last 10 years is convincing kids they can win," Coach Bob Sylvia said.

"Hockey has to be played 12 months if you want to win. We haven't been able to win for seven or eight years because the kids don't play before December and after February. I think that now we have kids who want to be more than recreational players."

Quincy had an early 9-1 advantage in shots but couldn't beat goalie Gary Fialkosky. It also failed to put a shot on net during its first power play.

Quincy's Craig Galligan, who has played well in goal all season despite the team's record, also had an outstanding game.

After a scoreless first period, Newton took the lead on Leone's first goal but Fred Regan tied the score for Quincy, converting passes from Sean McArdle and Jim Schatzl. Quincy took a 2-1 lead on Jim Marani's goal with assists for Dave Mellyn and Scott Curtin. Newton tied it up on Dennis Burke's goal.

After Leone's second goal in the third period, Burke scored his second and Leone completed his hat trick.

"Tying the game late in the second period was a big key for us," said Newton coach Jack Heavey. "I'd hate to be down, 2-1, going into the third period with their goalie."

Earlier in the week the Presidents put up another strong effort for two periods but Waltham scored four unanswered goals in the final period to win it.

Scott MacPherson, Quincy's top scorer, had both goals in the third period with Mellyn assisting on each.

Wayne Dupelleau had a hat trick, including two goals in the final period.

-TOM SULLIVAN

Mite House

Lydon, Survey Tie

Lydon-Russell, with Jeff Glynn scoring all the goals, tied N. V. Survey, 3-3, in the Mite House League.

Andrew Nestor, Ryan Krueger and Paul Burke had assists for Lydon. Shawn Manning, Jimmy Sullivan and Betsy Stone scored for Survey with assists for Jacob Fleming, Jim Parisi, Manning and Steve Ford.

The Paul Harold Club and Purdy's Ice Cream tied, 2-2. Steve Goff and Matt Gibbons scored for Harold with assists for John Wall and Didier Alther. Mark Foster had both goals for Purdy's. Pat Grogan had two assists and Shawn Manning and Andrew Boyd one apiece.

Rogan Hennessy defeated Balducci's, 5-3, as Mark Hawes scored twice and Sean Garvey, Bob Harvey and Chris Haidul once each. Garvey had an assist. Paul Markarian had two goals and Chad Fitzpatrick one for Balducci's. Jesse Winter had two assists and Mike Powers and Markarian one apiece.

Over 250 Drummers At DiCenso's Zildjian Days

DiCenso's Drum Shop, Franklin St., recently sponsored its fifth annual Zildjian Days, a two-day event which attracted over 250 drummers from across eastern Massachusetts.

Zildjian Days, created as a way to give area drummers a feeling of "community", features special offers and discounts on the line of Zildjian cymbal products, free door prizes and a chance for drummers to exchange ideas and experiences.

The major attraction at Zildjian Days though, are the drum clinics which are presented by professional drummers.

Dave DiCenso, drummer and teacher, presented a clinic on Hard rock/metal drumming at the recent Zildjian Days.

DiCenso, who has worked and recorded with artists including Bad Karma, Matt Leff Project and Cryptic Mirror, included a worksheet in his clinic format so that drummers in attendance could follow along.

DRUMMER DAVE DICENSO presented drumming clinics during the fifth annual Zildjian Days held recently at DiCenso's Drum Shop.

Several people at each clinic won free Zildjian cymbals.

Also participating in the event were representatives from the Zildjian Company who were on hand to discuss the product line.

A Review

'Cheaters' Fun Night Out

By JANE ARENA

When can a play have only six cast members but five couples? When that play is "Cheaters," the latest offering by the Quincy Center Dinner Theatre.

The two act play, written by Michael Jacobs and directed by John Macero, is an hysterical look at adultery and its most unlikely ramifications.

"Cheaters" is a tale of two families and the ties that bind them, only one of which is the fact that one couple's son is thinking of marrying the other couple's daughter.

This is the story of Allen and Michelle (John Quattrucci and Petra Beis) who, after living together for over a year, are nervously thinking about taking the plunge and getting married. Unsure of themselves, they each go home to their parents for advice, never realizing that as marriage counselors go, their parents leave a lot to be desired!

Coming from different economic and social backgrounds, Allen and Michelle have never introduced their parents, fearing an awkward situation if they did. (They don't know the half of it.)

As it turns out, their parents have, to a certain extent, already met each other.

Allen's mother, Monica (played by Tommie Stevens), has, for six months been having an affair with Michelle's father, Howard (Michael Kelly). Neither Howard nor Monica have any idea of the connection between them.

Howard, 58 years old, is trying desperately to recapture his youth. Monica, a strong-willed, domineering housewife, is bored and trying to capture anything.

Every Friday night, Howard tells his wife, Grace (Molly Hocheppel) that he's going to play poker with the boys. Monica tells her husband, Sam (Joe Doniger) she's playing canasta, and the two of them meet in a motel room while their respective spouses stay home.

Until one Friday night when Sam and Grace, tired of waiting at home, meet each other by chance in an otherwise deserted movie theater and end up at a motel room.

So, while Allen's mother is having an affair with Michelle's father, and Michelle's mother is having an affair with Allen's father, both families decide to finally get together for dinner, and discuss their children's future.

When they all meet and realize, for the first time, the connections, the reactions and interactions are an absolute riot.

Especially funny is Doniger's Sam. Expecting to meet his prospective daughter-in-law's parents for the first time, he just takes to a hotel the night before. He does what anyone else would do in a similar situation: He very calmly hurtles over the couch, throws a blanket over his head and crawls out the front door on his hands and knees.

When Howard and Monica see each other it's equally funny. "This is your mother?" Howard asks Allen. "Are you sure?"

There are fabulous lines throughout this scene.

The entire second act is quick paced and hilarious and is well worth the wait through the slower-moving first act.

Once again, the Quincy Dinner Theatre offers a great evening of entertainment. It makes a perfect night out with the husband or wife. As long as you don't relate too well to the plot.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Is life getting too hard for you?... Debs, taxes, work pressure, arguments with co-workers and at home... Is it one of those times that it seems that no matter how hard you try, you seem to be moving backward instead of forward. There doesn't seem to be even a flicker of light on the horizon...

D. Scott Deware

Let's think back. Remember a man named Washington who had met defeat after defeat in battle. Many said he was a loser. He didn't think so. He just went on planning, working and leading... Then there was a young naval officer named Perry. He had never been in action and he had no ships. But he built the ships and went out to battle... and sent back the message, "We have met the enemy and they are ours"... Remember a man named Lincoln. He had to fight not only the enemy whose campfires he could see from the White House, but many power seekers who were supposed to be on his side. He always had to look ahead and plan. He did not listen to those who told him he had failed.

Is what you are facing today quite as hard, when you think of what they went through? Cheer up! You may be fighting against odds... (And we all do at sometime or another in our lifetimes) - but you CAN fight through...

Business News

MARY REILLY, left, former president of the Colonial Federal Savings Bank in Wollaston, was recently honored at a surprise retirement party. Among those attending were Bnk Chairman of the Board Philip Lawrence, center, Chairman of the Board and New President, Robert Guarnieri.

Succeeds Mary Reilly Robert Guarnieri New President Colonial Federal

Robert Guarnieri has been promoted to president of Colonial Federal Savings Bank in Wollaston, succeeding Mary L. Reilly who has retired.

Miss Reilly, employed by the bank for nearly 45 years, will remain a director.

She joined the bank in April of 1945 after attending Bridgewater State college. Reilly moved up through the ranks at Colonial, becoming treasurer in 1968, vice president-treasurer in 1973, a member of the Board of Directors in 1979, and executive vice president-treasurer in 1984.

History was made at the bank Jan. 16, 1985, when Miss Reilly was named president of Colonial Federal, the first woman to be named president of a thrift association on the South Shore.

The bank has thrived during her five-year tenure as president. It remains the only mutual savings bank left in Quincy. As she says, "Retirement is made easier knowing that you have left a safe and solvent association in the hands of a very competent staff."

Guarnieri joined Colonial in 1975 as comptroller. He is a past president of the Boston Chapter of the Financial Managers Society (1987-88) and past president of the Quincy Rotary Club (1988-89).

A graduate of Bentley College, Guarnieri was employed by Peat Marwick Main and Co. prior to joining the bank. He is a certified public accountant and a member of the Massachusetts Society of CPAs and the American Institute of CPAs.

He lives in Wollaston with his wife, Brenda, and their two children.

Other newly elected officers announced by Philip J. Lawrence, Chairman of the Board, are:

Richard Coleman as executive vice president; Susan J. Shea, treasurer; Maryann T. Gurney, assistant treasurer; Claudette Newhall, vice president of Loan Operations and Regina Gurney, vice president for administration.

Coleman joined Colonial in 1972, shortly after graduating from Salem State College with a degree in business administration. He has been the senior loan officer of the bank since 1983.

A past president of the Quincy Kiwanis Club (1982-83), Coleman attended the Executive Development School at the University of Georgia, the Dale Carnegie Institute and the Management Growth Institute. He also completed the Graduate School for Savings held at Indiana University.

Coleman has been instrumental in the solid growth of Colonial's Mortgage portfolio, primarily in one to four family homes.

He lives in the Beechwood Knoll section of Quincy with his wife, Donna, and their two sons.

Mrs. Shea has been an officer of the bank since January, 1985. She joined Colonial in 1978 and is currently working toward a bachelors degree at Northeastern University.

A member of the Boston Chapter of the Financial Managers Society, she resides in Wollaston with her husband Charles, and their daughter.

Mrs. Gurney joined the bank in April, 1978, and has held a variety of positions, from branch manager to head of the accounting department. She resides in South Weymouth with her husband, Malcolm.

Mrs. Newhall joined the bank in 1976 and resides in South Quincy with her husband, Jerry.

Regina Gurney also joined the bank in 1976 and resides with her husband, Malcolm, in East Weymouth.

Colonial's success can be partially attributed to the loyal and dedicated staff created by their policy to promote from within their ranks whenever possible, Lawrence noted.

to Sheets, including the consolidation of Quincy and North Quincy High School.

Nutley admitted some of his ideas are long-range solutions but with sewer user bills expected to drastically climb, he said the city should begin studying them now. The councillor also said the city should run more like a household or business "where the bottom line matters and is not something passed on to the taxpayers."

On Tuesday, Sheets said he will consider these and all other suggestions as additional measures. Nutley was hoping to meet with the mayor sometime this week.

With or without the fee, Sheets said there will be layoffs but is unsure of their magnitude.

"With the sewer user fee, in my mind, we're still going to have layoffs, the extent of them, I don't know," Sheets said, adding that some $6 million to $7 million in cuts would still have to be made, first in expenses and then in layoffs.

However, without the fee, the mayor predicts at least 150 lost city jobs. "Without the fee, my guess is we're looking at least 150 layoffs or more."

Sheets noted that for every 33 city employees laid off, the budget would be reduced by $1 million. The mayor, who imposed a hiring freeze upon taking office, said layoffs also include not filling vacancies.

In addition, Sheets said layoffs are complicated by overtime. "Overtime can be cut without cutting personnel but that can reduce the effectiveness of city services."

In addition to the fate of the fee, Sheets is also concerned about the amount of local aid Quincy will receive.

This year's budget is based on a level funding of state aid which this year is $35 million. Quincy has already received $17 million and Sheets is hoping the state sends another $17 million in June.

He noted that 34 percent of Quincy's budget is funded by local aid.

Earlier this week, a top administrative aide for Gov. Michael Dukakis said the state might withhold some or all of the $500 million in aid due to cities and towns to help balance the state's budget.

If this occurs, Sheets said the effect in Quincy would be "catastrophic."

With a $17 million loss in state aid, the FY 90 budget would be unfunded by $15 million. Combine the already predicted $2.6 million deficit and Quincy would have a deficit of almost $18 million in FY 90. If that happens, the city would have to borrow money to pay salaries this fiscal year and that amount would show up as a deficit next fiscal year, the mayor explained.

A $17 to $18 million deficit in FY 1990 plus the $11 million deficit in FY 1991 would create a total budget shortfall of $28 million total for both years. Furthermore, by state law, municipalities must pay back money borrowed during the next fiscal year.

"If that happens, it's a catastrophe, without question. An absolute catastrophe," Sheets said.

However, the mayor said he doesn't think the state will withhold all local aid. Instead, he sees a reduction of $1 million to $1.5 million.

With that kind of cut, the city would have an estimated deficit of $16-17 million next year. The sewer user fee would wipe out $9.5 million, leaving $7 to $8 million in red ink. Sheets, who will begin meeting with department heads shortly, must submit the FY 1991 budget to the City Council by April 2.

blood evaluation tests on the teenagers, which are currently in the possession of the Hingham Police Department. Barry said he would require time to investigate the blood tests to find out who extracted the blood, where it was analyzed, the qualifications of the chemist conducting the tests, and whether the blood had been contaminated by some other substance.

Barry also said he would be entitled to call "expert witnesses" on the issue of the blood tests if the case were tried through the criminal courts.

In his letter, Barry said: "I would hope that the Board might see fit to request the Quincy Police Department to take out a complaint against the corporation under General Laws Chapter 138, Section 69, which provides that it is a criminal offense for a licensee to sell alcohol intoxicated person...the case should be tried in a forum which would deal with the singular issue of whether the person (corporation) sold alcohol to an intoxicated person. The issues which are requested be heard by you would be the same issues that the court would hear."

If the corporation is found guilty through the Quincy District Court, Finn said, the matter would then come before the License Board.

Could Mean Massive Layoffs, Service Cuts City May Lose $7.2M More In State Aid

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS, left, and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, announce the city has filed two lawsuits in an attempt to stop the MWRA from siting a permanent sludge facility in Quincy.

City Files Suits To Block Sludge Facility

The city has filed two lawsuits against the MWRA in an attempt to reverse the Authority's decision to select the former General Dynamics shipyard in Quincy as the site for the permanent sludge treatment facility as part of the $6 billion Boston Harbor cleanup project.

The permanent facility will dewater, heat dry and pelletize sludge from the Deer Island sludge treatment plant.

One suit, filed in Norfolk Superior Court, challenges the MWRA's compliance with its own enabling act and other legal requirements regarding its decision to locate the long-term facility at the shipyard.

The other suit, filed in Suffolk Superior Court, Quincy seeks a civil complaint for contempt, charging the authority failed to live up to the terms of the November 1987 out-of-court settlement in the prior state court action originally brought by the city in August of 1987 at the time the Authority was purchasing the shipyard.

Essentially, the city wants the MWRA to reconsider its selection of the shipyard by adopting criteria, in advance, which could then be used to make a reasoned decision.

Quincy also seeks a court order which would prohibit locating a sludge incinerator or composting plant at the shipyard and would require the MWRA to acquire a back-up site for the composting or incineration of sludge pellets if the pellets are not marketable.

Mayor James Sheets and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath announced the action at a Tuesday morning press conference at City Hall. They were joined by Council President Ted DeCristofaro and Councillors Tim Cahill and Peter Kolson.

The complaints are being handled by McGrath and Peter Koff of Boston, Quincy's environmental attorney.

McGrath said that the MWRA will be served a summons to appear in Suffolk Superior Court Friday, Feb. 16 at 9 a.m.

Sheets said the city stands a "50-50 chance" in winning the court battle. He also said his administration will fight to prevent Quincy from becoming known as "the city of sludge."

"We're going to fight tooth and nail and do everything within my power to block their action. This is the most negative thing that has happened in the city of Quincy this century."

"We're going to go in the ring, throw some punches and I think we're going to win some battles. We're not just going to be pushed around any longer," the mayor said.

"We don't want to be known as the city of sludge and we won't be known as the city of sludge," he added.

McGrath emphasized that the lawsuits do not slow down the Boston Harbor cleanup. He noted that the shipyard will host the interim sludge facility as scheduled from 1991 to 1995.

Asked whether the decision to site the permanent plant was a "done deal," Sheets replied, "It's not a done deal."

He said it is "late" but that the permanent facility is not scheduled to begin operation until 1996 at the earliest.

As for cost, the mayor said the city has already appropriated money to the law department to fund the suits.

DeCristofaro, who represents Ward 2 where the shipyard is located, congratulated the mayor on his firm stand.

"I believe you that we do have a chance. Fifty percent is a good base to be at. We're looking forward to the battles."

Cahill added, "We'll definitely stand behind the mayor."

Sheets noted that Quincy's three state representatives also support the suits.

Sheets Meets With Dukakis On Incinerator

Mayor James Sheets, along with other community leaders, met with Gov. Michael Dukakis Tuesday afternoon to discuss a proposed hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree near the Quincy line.

The incinerator has been proposed by Clean Harbors, Inc. in the Fore River industrial basin.

According to Sheets, the governor called the meeting to discuss the proposal with leaders in cities and towns opposed to the plan. Besides Quincy, representatives from Braintree and Weymouth were expected to attend.

The mayor was accompanied by his Executive Secretary, Thomas Koch, and Administrative Assistant, Bernice Mader.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday it is "very likely" the city will lose another $7.2 million in local aid which would result in drastic cuts in department budgets for FY 1990-91.

The mayor based his grim fiscal forecast on the state's $500 million shortfall and the reluctance of the governor and legislators to endorse a revenue-raising or cost-cutting package to balance the state's budget.

As a result, Sheets said he thinks the state budget will be balanced by Gov. Michael Dukakis withholding $500 million in local aid to the 351 cities and towns. If that happens, Quincy would lose a projected $7.2 million and face a $22 million shortfall next fiscal year which begins July 1.

"My sense is that the only way to balance the state budget is to cut local aid. The state deficit is being passed on to all 351 cities and towns."

"If we lose $7 million in local aid, we simply would move the city's deficit up to $22 million," Sheets said.

Because the state's credit rating has dropped drastically the past few months, the mayor believes Dukakis will not borrow to close the state's budget gap. Sheets also thinks legislators will not approve a new tax plan until after the preliminary election in September.

The mayor also noted that by law, the governor is required to balance the state's budget.

Therefore, Sheets has instructed department heads to prepare bottom lines reduced by three, four, six, eight and 10 percent over last year's funding.

The mayor noted that even with a sewer user fee, which will probably pass the City Council Feb. 20, the city still faces serious budget cuts. The fee would raise $9.5 million next year.

With a $7.2 million cut in aid, the city's deficit would be approximately $22 million in FY 90-91. However, the fee would reduce the shortfall to $11.5 million; that amount would have to be cut from the city's budget, Sheets explained.

"With the sewer user fee, we'll still have to cut $11 million out of the budget. We're not out of the woods by any stretch of the imagination."

Approximately $36 million or 34 percent of the present city budget is funded by local aid. Some communities, such as Springfield and New Bedford, rely on 50 to 60 percent state funding.

Already, Quincy has lost $4.1 million in aid, including $770,000 in lottery receipts. A $7.2 million cut in the next local aid payment would mean the city's aid has been reduced by $11 million this year.

Sheets noted that $3.4 million of that lost aid was made up by free cash last year when former Mayor Francis McCauley was in office. However, the city does not have any free cash and thus cuts would be needed to make up for further reductions in aid.

This week, Auditor Robert Foy told the mayor, "This is the most difficult budgetary process that I've ever been involved in because you have no idea of what your revenue will be." The mayor agreed.

On Tuesday, Sheets said there is a "70-30 chance" that Quincy will lose $7.2 million in aid. If that happens, the city would have to cut to make up that loss.

He noted that for every $1 million which needs to be cut from the city budget, 33 jobs are lost.

Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, Police Chief Francis Finn and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell have prepared estimated budgets figuring across the board cuts of three and 13.7 percent.

Permit Granted For Live Irish Concert At Wollaston Theater

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Karen Daly of Boston, a representative of Somerville Theatre Productions, for a permit to hold a live concert at the Wollaston Theatre, Beale St., Wollaston.

The concert will feature Irish musicians The Clancy Brothers and Robbie O'Connell and will be held on Friday, March 2 at 8 p.m. Daly told the board he expects between 400 and 600 people to attend. Tickets would be for reserved seating and sold through a ticket agency, he said.

The Wollaston Theatre has a capacity of over 1000, Daly told the board. He said he will hire a police detail for the concert.

Wollaston Theatre owner, Arthur Chandler, has agreed to the concert, Daly said.

City Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey noted that the Wollaston Theatre has had a problem with a leaking roof, but Daly told the board that problem is in the process of being corrected.

The permit was granted subject to a full inspection by the Building Department and the Fire Department.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said that, along with a police detail, he would like a member of the Fire Department to be present during the concert as well.

Bellotti Strong In Democratic Caucuses

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

If Saturday's caucuses are an indication, Quincy resident Frank Bellotti has widespread support in his hometown in the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Wards 3, 5 and 6 elected a slate of delegates who are committed to Bellotti on the first ballot at the State Democratic Convention to be held June 1 and 2 at the Springfield Civic Center.

The convention is for nominating, not endorsing. A candidate must receive at least 15 percent of the delegates to appear on the primary ballot in September.

Besides the three slates, Bellotti had a strong showing in Ward 1 where nine out of 11 delegates announced their allegiance to the former attorney general. In fact, Bellotti was the only announced candidate to receive a commitment in Quincy.

Mark Kilcommons, an alternate delegate from Ward 4, said she would commit to Boston Mayor Ray Flynn if he enters the race, said Bernice Mader, Ward 4 chairperson and a state Democratic Committeewoman.

Besides Bellotti, other announced Democratic candidates are Lt. Governor Evelyn Murphy, State Representative Jack Flood of Canton and Boston University President John Silber.

Mader said no Ward 4 delegate announced their allegiance because they were not asked to. But, she assumes most of them favor Bellotti because the slate was put together by his supporters.

Commitments, if any, from Ward 2 were unavailable at press time.

The list of delegates selected Saturday in Quincy by ward are:

Sewer User Fee Gets Council Green Light

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The City Council Ordinance Committee recommended that a proposed sewer user fee ought to pass at the next regular council meeting Tuesday, Feb. 20.

No councillor objected to the committee recommendation. However, Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, who does not support the proposal, went on record as "present." It is likely he will vote against the actual adoption of the fee at the Feb. 20 meeting.

The ordinance committee also voted to begin charging residents for their water consumption for the last quarter of fiscal 1989-90 which is this April, May and June.

In addition, the committee supported a provision which will allow the city to bill homeowners and business owners for the service on a quarterly basis.

Nutley objected to this stipulation. He reasoned that quarterly bills would "mask" the city's conservation effort.

Voicing support for one bill annually, Nutley said,

"People should be aware of the full impact of the bill. I think people should understand what's happening to them."

Chairman Michael Cheney and Councillor Timothy Cahill disagreed, saying quarterly payments will allow citizens to budget their bills.

"We're trying to make it easier to pay," said Cahill, adding that homeowners do not pay their mortgage one year at a time.

City Auditor Robert Foy also favors the quarter billing. Noting the state switched its local aid payment from a quarterly to semi-annual basis, he said the city does not receive funding during the summer months.

Quarterly sewer bills would help the city's cash flow during those times, Foy added.

The sewer user fee would add $280 to a family of four's present water bill. Nutley said his combined water and sewer bill next year will go from $176 to $520.

He also calculated that the bill would skyrocket to $4,040 by the year 2000.

Mayor James Sheets, who proposed the fee, will send a letter out to all Quincy residents explaining the fee.

The fee will raise an estimated $9.5 million next year to help offset a projected $15 million deficit.

Eight of the nine councillors are expected to support the fee Feb. 20. They believe the fee is necessary to curtail drastic cuts in a time when revenues have been decreasing while fixed costs are increasing.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan noted there "isn't any fat" in the city's budget. He noted that from 1982-89, the city's workforce was reduced by 400 people.

Nutley has suggested 31 alternates to Mayor James A. Sheets' sewer fee proposal. They include consolidating Quincy High School with North Quincy High and requiring all city employees to pay 10 percent of their HMOs.

If the fee passes, as it apparently will, Nutley has asked the council to continue to look for revenue raisers and reductions.

Retiring After 17 Years

Theresa Gacia Records Her Final License Board Minutes

By JANE ARENA

Theresa Gacia recorded the minutes of the Quincy License Board meeting for the last time Tuesday at City Hall.

After 17 years as secretary to the board, she will retire Friday at the age of 78.

During Tuesday's meeting board members wished her well in her retirement and thanked her for her many years of service.

Board Chairman John Gillis, who has worked with her for all of her 17 years there, later commended her for her devotion to the job.

"She was very dedicated," he said, "She never once took a full week's vacation in all her years. She was in at 7 every morning. And in all that time, I don't ever remember her taking a sick day."

"She was a pleasure to work with," Gillis added, "and I wish her well in her retirement."

Theresa, a Quincy native, spent the first 25 years of her professional career in Washington, D.C., where she served as Secretary to the Judge Advocate General in the U.S. Department of the Navy.

After graduating from Quincy High School in 1928, Theresa interviewed in Boston for a position with the Navy in Washington, without really wanting to go at first.

"I had no intention of going to Washington," she says, but added that she was encouraged by her sisters to give it a try. That's all it took for her to love it.

"It was beautiful," she says of Washington. "I would recommend it to any young girl if they're in this field... everyone there was so nice and I enjoyed working for them very much."

And the Department of the Navy obviously enjoyed working with her too.

AUTO INSURANCE - KNOW WHAT YOU ARE REQUIRED TO HAVE - KNOW YOUR OPTIONS
Compulsory automobile liability insurance has been mandated for over 60 years. This type of coverage provides protection in the event you become involved in an accident resulting in an injury. However, there are other coverages available tailored to your budget and the way you drive.

A professional agent can show you how to get the kind of insurance you need. He or she can also offer you choices on deductions that will reduce your premium costs dramatically, while still providing the coverage you want. A good rule of thumb is: it is wiser to insure against large losses which might threaten your way of life, than to cover those relatively minor losses which you can generally afford to pay on your own.

An insurance specialist can show you how to buy the coverage that suits your needs. If you already have coverage, bear in mind that needs change over time. Ask your agent to periodically review your policy and advise you on prudent updating.

At Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc., our insurance professionals are happy to discuss the many protection options available today. Please give us a call at 471-6200 or stop by our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy.

Badge Of Courage?

If Quincy had a Badge of Courage or Purple Heart award the frontrunner for this year so far would be Ward 6 Councillor Tom Nutley.

For either, Or, for both.

Nutley has come up with some 31 suggestions as alternatives to the sewer user fee proposed by Mayor James Sheets and Mayor Francis McCauley before him to help steer Quincy through rough financial seas.

Looking at some of those recommendations it might appear Nutley doesn't just want to tighten the municipal belt but convert it to a corset.

But Nutley apparently feels his ideas would help -- not hurt -- and that now is the hour for Quincy, the state and every community to face up to financial reality and have the courage to take drastic steps, if necessary, to cope with the crisis.

Even if you have to tread on toes and tradition and say "no," loud and clear.

Like "no" in: No pay raises for city employees -- and he means all city employees -- regardless of rank or job or friendship, etc. But he tempers that "no" with another "no"; no layoffs.

He would also freeze hiring. Period. A solid 100 percent freeze.

He would require city employees to pay 10 percent of their HMO premiums. That will come, anyway.

Those recommendations would primarily affect city employees.

But Nutley has a few for the general public, too, that might not win many popularity points.

Like consolidating Quincy High and North Quincy High Schools. He would move QHS students to North which is a more modern facility and is handy to the MBTA.

That's not a brand new idea. Others have thought of it, too.

With declining school enrollments, the two-schools-in-one could happen but is the city ready for it just now? Both schools have their tradition and school spirit and a rivalry between them.

Do away with the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game! That's a half-century tradition.

But, if football is a consideration, there might be a consolation. Think of the one football team that could come of the combined schools. Maybe good enough to go back and play Brockton again. And, win.

Nutley would also reorganize the Quincy Vocational Technical High School with the Blue Hills Regional School in Canton. Blue Hills is considered one of the finest vocational technical schools around.

Blue Hills may have some better programs than Quincy. And Quincy may have some better programs than Blue Hills. A marriage could benefit both schools and their students.

Nutley would also levy a $50 fee on third and successive automobiles in each family. If you have three or four cars in the family you won't think that's such a great idea. But if you have only one or two, you might.

But there's one idea that might bring an "atta, boy, Tom": He would increase the mitigation money from the MWRA for Quincy getting stuck with the interim sludge facility at the Quincy Shipyard.

The city now stands to receive $2.2 million annually from 1991 through 1995 from the MWRA. Nutley would up that.

Regardless of whether you agree or disagree with Nutley, his ideas are something to think about.

And now sure is the time for thinking. And for doing.

THAT CAR WITH the vanity plate SAM-14 belongs to Quincy's Sam Mele, former Red Sox star, now a Sox scout, and former Minnesota Twins manager.

Sam wore the number 14 while with the Red Sox and other teams. "They're going to retire that number," he says.

It will take its place, he says, with Ted Williams' 9, Joe Cronin's 4, Bobby Doerr's 1 and Carl Yastrzemski's 8.

And, he grins: "Of course that (14) was Jim Rice's number, too."

HERB FONTAINE, who is retiring at the end of March as WJDA news editor after nearly 35 years, is also stepping down from another long held post.

Fontaine has submitted his resignation to Mayor James Sheets as a fence viewer, a position he has held under six mayors.

Fontaine was first appointed by Amelio Della Chiesa and reappointed in succession by James McIntyre, Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin and Francis McCauley.

Sheets has accepted the resignation as of Feb. 1 "with great reluctance."

But Sheets is keeping the job in the family.

He has appointed Fontaine's son, Gary Fine, to succeed his father. Fine was an unsuccessful candidate for School Committee last fall.

And, what does a fence viewer do? Why, he views fences. When, for example, neighbors have an argument over the height of a fence or the boundary line or some other disagreement.

LOREN STROUT has added up the number of Christmas trees he sold at his Winfield Tree Lot last year and has come up short.

Total sales: 9,500. Normally he would sell over 10,000 but the Thanksgiving snow plus another major storm made it impossible to get that quota of trees out of Calais, Me., Red Beach, Me. and St. Stephen's, New Brunswick.

Strout says some people may like artificial trees but natural ones are even more popular than ever because they are grown on tree farms and are well shaped.

His customers, he says, come from a 50-mile radius of Quincy, Cape Cod, Worcester and southern New Hampshire.

After Fire, Only Memories Left West Quincy Building Was Many Things To Finnish Community

By JANE ARENA

When the building at 74 Arthur St., West Quincy, was destroyed by fire Jan. 16, a lot more than wood and nails were lost.

The three-story wooden building was the site of the Finnish Workingmen's Association and was brimming with history.

According to Walter Nisula of Quincy, an historian who specializes in Finnish history, early reports that the building was the former Finnish Temperance Building were incorrect.

"That building," he says, "was down the street, near the other end of Nelson Street."

The Finnish Workingmen's Association was organized in 1903 as an offshoot of the Temperance Society. In 1906 they built their own headquarters at 74 Arthur St. where they remained until the organization disbanded in 1968.

Since then, the Arthur St. building was a storage house for the Globe Vending Machine Company.

According to Nisula, a concentration of Finnish immigrants lived in the West Quincy area at the start of the century.

Not only were two Finnish halls located in West Quincy, he notes, but the West Quincy Congregational Church was at one time a Finnish Lutheran Church.

Many immigrants from Finland, his own father included, worked in the stone cutting industry, he says, where work was readily available.

Perhaps it was a group of stonecutters who first decided the need for a Finnish Workingmen's Association.

Although his father was not a member of the Association, his father-in-law was, and the organization has long been an area of personal interest to Nisula.

He and his wife Esther, in fact, wrote the chapter on the Association in a book on Finnish-American history entitled "The Finnish Imprint."

The building itself served as a combination school house, theatre, dance hall, gymnasium, social center, meeting house, lecture hall and general headquarters, Nisula explains.

Early meetings, he says, centered on the condition of the workingman and his struggle for fair labor practices, but the overall purpose of the group was to provide educational and cultural activities, including English language classes and naturalization courses for immigrants.

During the first few years of its existence, membership increased steadily and several activity groups were formed, including a dramatic club, choruses and bands and a ladies' sewing circle. (Despite the name, women were welcomed as members).

One band in particular, called Huuhkaja, translating as "Owl," played at the hall on a regular basis, Nisula says. Cultural activities were very important.

But for some time the

THE FINISH BAND "Huuhkaja," or "Owl Band" played regularly at the Finnish Workingmen's Association Hall. This photo was taken in 1906.

Association undertook ventures more pressing than drama and dance.

During wars between Russia and Finland, 1939-1941, Nisula explains, and afterward through 1949, Finland suffered greatly. The people of Finland, many of them friends and relatives to American immigrants lacked food, shelter and clothing.

The Finnish Workingmen's Association, along with other Finnish organizations and churches throughout the South Shore, organized aid committees and succeeded in sending substantial relief money and materials to the country.

For over 60 years the Finnish Workingmen's Association offered a sense of community and family to a people who had left their home and country to come to America. To many, the hall itself had served as a second home.

But, in 1968 membership in the Association had reduced to a small number of senior members and a reluctant decision was made to terminate the Finnish Workingmen's Association. The hall and property were sold in June of that year and the last meeting of the Board of Directors was held in October.

The financial balance of the Association, some $16,000, was established as a special fund for the Finnish American League for Democracy, all but $5,000 which was donated to the Finnish-American newspaper, Raivaaja.

B-r-r-r! 18 Degrees Below

An all time record cold gripped Quincy, sending the mercury down to an official 18 degrees below zero and freezing over Quincy Bay and most of Boston Harbor for the first time in years.

Unofficial thermometers showed 25 below in South Quincy and the short order cook at Monroe's Diner on Southern Artery reported the temperature was down to 22 below when he left at 2 a.m.

City Hospital treated scores of cases of frostbite and Patrolman Maurice Cahill had to be relieved of duty when parts of his face froze while on patrol in the frigid weather.

Jennifer D'atilio On President's List

Jennifer V. D'atilio of Quincy, a hotel and restaurant major, has been named to the President's List for the Fall 1989 semester at New Hampshire College, Manchester, N.H. To be eligible for this honor, a student must compile an academic grade point average of 3.5-4.0.

Lisa Durgin Awarded $2,000 Christa McAuliffe Teacher Incentive Grant

Lisa (Haskell) Durgin of Quincy, a senior at Eastern Nazarene College, has been awarded a $2,000 Christa McAuliffe Teacher Incentive Grant.

The daughter of Mary and Gary Haskell of Auburn, Maine, Durgin is the wife of Scott Durgin. She is a 1986 graduate of Auburn's Edward Little High School.

Listed consistently on ENC's Dean's List, she is a member of the Phi Delta National Honor Society. Durgin is a recipient of ENC's Grossman Scholarship, the ENC Honor Scholarship and the J. Patton Memorial Scholarship.

While at ENC, she has travelled with ENC's Glorybound singing group, and been a member of both the A Cappella Choir and the band.

Students considered for the grant must be enrolled in teacher certification programs in good standing.

They must be Massachusetts residents and agree to teach on a full-time basis in a Massachusetts public school for at least one year after graduation. Other considerations include academic standing, evidence of scholastic achievement, potential for success in teaching and financial worthiness for the grant.

Award candidates must have the sanction of their college's education department and the recommendation of the president of the college.

"This student is certainly worthy of the award and is of the highest quality not only as an individual, but as an example of the committed and caring Christian teacher," said James Knox, Chairman of ENC's department of education, about Durgin's award.

The grant is named in memory of Christa McAuliffe, the New Hampshire school teacher who was killed in the Space Shuttle Challenger disaster in 1986.

Donna Delorey Named Outstanding Student At Quincy Vo-Tech

Donna M. Delorey, a senior at Quincy Vocational Technical School, has been named Outstanding Vocational Student of the Year by the school's faculty and administrative staff. She is now eligible to compete in an annual statewide competition sponsored by the State Board of Education, Division of Occupational Education.

Delorey, who has accumulated a long list of achievements since she enrolled at the vocational school, has earned the highest class rank, and will graduate in June, first in her class. She has also been selected valedictorian.

The daughter of Daniel Delorey and Rita DiBella of Phipps St., Quincy, she was a straight A student in middle school. "Don't think," she said, "that my parents punished me if I didn't excel and bring home A's." The high school senior admits that she pushed herself, and is never content unless she is at the top. "I want to do it myself, I want to be good, to be the best," she explained.

A cheerleader, who has volunteered as an aide at Quincy Hospital, Delorey is just as ambitious and high achieving outside the classroom as she is in it. She has been active as the Secretary to the International Youth Council, an organization devoted to supporting children of divorced parents. She is also a Student Council Representative and assists other students during peer counseling sessions.

Ironically, her father attended the vocational school, majored in plumbing and currently works as a master plumber. She majors in Culinary Arts and intends to continue her education beyond high school in preparation for a career in Hotel Management.

Her achievements include continuous honor roll status, being named Student of the Month for this current month, Homecoming Queen nominee and Treasurer of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA).

Delorey studies advanced academic programs at Quincy High School, and Culinary Arts and related classes at the adjacent vocational facility. There are eight females graduating in the 1990 class, and Delorey admits to uncertainty about how her male peers feel because of her class rank. "But," she exclaimed, "it's not slowing me down!"

When she steps to the podium at graduation, she promises her speech will be short, "and not boring."

"It will be the last thing I do in school, so I'll make it good," she concluded.

Herb Fontaine To Receive James McIntyre Good Scout Award

Herb Fontaine, News Director for Quincy radio station WJDA, will be presented the James R. McIntyre Good Scout Award at the annual Good Scout Party sponsored by the Massasoit Campers Association Thursday Feb. 8, from 7 to 9 p.m. at Granite Place, 125 Granite St., Quincy Center.

Fontaine, who will be retiring in March after nearly 35 years as news director for WJDA, has provided the voice for innumerable charitable causes during his long tenure at the radio station. All that have been associated with him know of his fondness for the community where he lives and works and appreciate all that he has done to make our community a better place.

Born in Medford in 1922, Fontaine graduated from Medford High School, and attended Boston University & Emerson College. A veteran of World War II, he served with the 8th Cavalry in the Pacific Theatre.

Before coming to WJDA, he worked as program director and sports announcer for WCOU in Lewiston, Maine. While there, he initiated one of the nation's first radio talk shows called "Housewives Quiz."

Fontaine came to Quincy to work at WJDA in 1955 and has remained with the station. As a newsmen, he won several journalism awards including the New England United Press International Award in 1969 for a radio series on the drug menace.

When he wasn't working at the station or gathering news for his morning newscast, he spoke before numerous community organizations or served as the emcee for community functions. He is a member of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coal-tion and is a member and past officer of Survival, Inc. He also served as chairman of Quincy's Cancer Crusade.

Fontaine was appointed many years ago as chairman of Quincy's Fence Viewers by the late Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and each succeeding mayor has reappointed him to that position. An indication of the fondness that he is held by his fellow citizens is the plaque that is located on the wall of the Quincy City Council chamber honoring him for his years of service to the city.

The James R. McIntyre Good Scout Award is presented annually by the Massasoit Campers Association to a public-spirited individual who has demonstrated through his good deeds a commitment to the ideals of Scouting. Past recipients of the award include: City Clerk John Gillis, Fr. William McCarthy, O. Donald Gohl, Richard Koch, Marshall Sloane, John & Buell Fuller, Capt. Richard Stratton (USN), Congressman James Burke, former Governor Edward King, and the late Mayor, Senator, and benefactor of Camp Massasoit, James R. McIntyre.

James R. McIntyre initiated this series of Good Scout parties to benefit the renovation and development of Camp Massasoit, the Boy Scout camp in Plymouth which has served as "a home away from home" for generations of Quincy Boy Scouts. For over 40 years, it was the summer camp of the Quincy Council of the Boy Scouts and during the past 23 years it has been operated as a year-round camp accommodating over 3000 Scouts and leaders annually from throughout New England.

Serving as honorary chairman of the event is Sheila McIntyre who continues to support this cause which meant so much to her late husband. Serving as co-chairmen for this year's party are O. Donald Gohl and Harold S. Crowley Jr. Tickets for the party are $30 per couple and are tax-deductible contributions to the Massasoit Development Fund. They may be purchased from members of the committee or at the door.

Community Relations Discussed At

St. Ann's PTA Meeting

"Community Relations" was the subject of speakers at the recent meeting of St. Ann's Wollaston PTA meeting.

Rev. Adolph Wismar, pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church, and Betty Yau of the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office, spoke.

Rev. Wismar, a member of the North Quincy Human Relations Sub-committee, reminded his audience that everyone is different, and that education about and acceptance of these differences are ultimately what promotes inter-cultural harmony.

Yau, an immigrant from Hong Kong who is now an eight year resident of Quincy, related her first-hand experiences with prejudice, her happiness with what's being done to raise consciousness in Quincy, and her availability through the District Attorney's office to explain the services currently offered to Asian Americans.

Future events noted by the speakers included the Chinese New Year activities, a Feb. 10 Asian Cultural Day at Beechwood Community Life Center, the August Moon Festival, and possibly a July 4th picnic at Welcome Young Park.

Social Studies extra-credit points were given to those students in St. Ann's seventh and eighth grades able to attend the program.

Househunting? Take Your Camera

Instant photos help you remember the important details of the homes you've seen.

If you've spent an afternoon looking at several houses, it's easy to become confused. Which house had the new kitchen? What color was the carpet in the brick condo?

The best way to remember the important details of the homes you've seen is to take instant photos. Real estate experts advise that when the home you're seeing has special exterior features—great landscaping, a swimming pool or a handsome view of an abutting golf course—think about photographing them in addition to the conventional frontal shot of the house. It can pay big dividends later, when you're at the difficult stage of weighing alternatives.

Shooting interiors is equally important. A stunning kitchen, attractive built-ins, or dramatic architectural features such as cathedral ceilings and spiral staircases are worth recording for future reference.

Especially for out-of-town buyers, instant photos can play an indispensable role. A Polaroid shot can easily show someone miles and hours away the actual look and features of a property. The real

Managing Your Credit Helpful Hints On Safety And Economy

By Eugene A. Crane

At the beginning of the '80s, a new mortgage loan instrument changed home financing. Known as the adjustable rate mortgage loan (ARM), it was created to ease a home lending crisis when interest rates were at record levels and funds for fixed rate home loans, at any interest rate, had practically disappeared.

Since its introduction, the ARM has shown that it remains the loan that most effectively narrows the affordability gap through all interest rate cycles. Even when fixed rate loans fall below ten percent, the ARM still makes homeownership more affordable for first-time buyers and also helps many home buyers qualify for a larger loan than 30-year fixed rate mortgages would.

Lenders typically price ARM initial interest rates lower than those for fixed rate loans. Borrowers get two important benefits from this lower pricing. First, the lower interest rate provides immediate savings to the borrower. Second, some ARM lenders, such as Great Western, qualify most borrowers based on the ARM's lower interest rate.

A good example of this is that with an ARM, the monthly mortgage payment can be as much as 28 percent of a borrower's gross monthly income; the total debt can be as much as 38 percent. This can help more home buyers qualify.

Typically, fixed rate mortgages are not only priced higher than ARMs, they require borrowers to meet more stringent qualifying standards. Fixed rate lenders generally require that the borrower's monthly mortgage payment be no more than 25 percent of gross monthly income and the total monthly payment for all debts is limited to no more than 33 percent. An informative brochure about ARMS is available free by writing to: Great Western Financial Corporation, 8484 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 900, Beverly Hills, CA 90211, or by calling 1-800-492-7587.

Mr. Crane is executive vice president of Great Western Financial Corporation.

Sheets Sees City Losing $7.2M More In Aid

The three percent figures are based on the sewer user fee passing. The 13.7 percent figures are based on the fee not passing.

It appears the fee will pass since only Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley has objected to it.

However, the $9.5 million raised by the fee would be practically negated if local aid is cut by $7.2 million. If that happens, Quincy would face an $11 million shortfall next year.

Explaining the impact of the lost aid even with a sewer user fee, Sheets said about three quarters of the 13.7 percent cuts "could still happen."

"If we have to cut $11 million, the cuts would almost be as bad as the 13.7 percent cuts (the three department heads) were talking about," Sheets said.

The 13.7 percent cuts, based on a $15 million deficit, would be devastating. Three quarters of those proposed cuts would also severely impact on the city.

With a 13.7 percent cut, last year's school budget of $38 million would be reduced by $5.3 million, resulting in 172 job layoffs, nearly 16 percent of the school department workforce. Three quarters of that figure is 129 jobs or 12 percent.

In addition, class size would increase by 10 students per teacher with a 13.7 percent cut. "The entire educational system would suffer a very severe blow, especially since Proposition 2 and a half," Ricci said, commenting on the 13.7 percent cuts.

Already, the school department is expected to lose six teachers with a three percent cut.

With a 13.6 percent cut, the fire department would lose 46 firefighters and three lieutenants. Thirty-four firefighters and one lieutenant would be lost if three-quarters of those cuts occur.

A 13.7 percent cut would allow a minimum manning level of eight officers and 24 firefighters on duty at all times for five engine companies, three ladder companies, and one rescue. One fire station would also be closed permanently.

With a 13.7 percent cut, Chief O'Connell said, "The level of services would be drastically reduced and the advantages of a quick response would be lost." He also said the department operations would be chaotic and he questioned the city's ability to continue its mutual aid agreements.

At three percent, the 19 firefighters would be reduced by layoffs and attrition, thereby decreasing services and increasing response time, O'Connell said.

As for the police department, 28 sworn personnel and 12 civilians would be lost if 13.7 percent reductions are imposed. Three quarters of those cuts would mean 21 sworn personnel and nine civilians let go.

At three percent, 13 police personnel, including seven patrolmen, would be cut.

"At both the three percent level and the 13.7 percent level, all overtime, court time and training time would be in a most critical status. These cuts would have a most deleterious effect on all police services," Chief Finn said.

Sheets will attend a financial seminar at UMass Boston Thursday presented by Edward Collins, Deputy Commissioner of the state Department of Revenue.

Collins handles the division which approves tax rates and budgets.

After a one-hour seminar, there will be a round-table discussion focusing on budget practices and ways to cope with budget problems.

Theresa Gacia Records Her Final License Board Minutes

Theresa was awarded a citation from Joseph McDevitt, Rear Admiral Judge Advocate General of the Navy.

"Miss Gacia's performance of duty is in keeping with highest traditions of the United States Naval Service," the citation read.

In 1971 Theresa came back to Quincy to be with her family. Two years later she took a Civil Service secretarial exam and was assigned to work with the Quincy License Board.

"I feel very privileged to have worked with the Board," she says. "The job was very interesting and the people have been very nice and cooperative. Mr. Gillis and everyone have been very attentive."

Now though, Theresa is looking ahead to her retirement.

"I have a lot of unfinished things at home," she says, "and I am looking forward to just relaxing."

Valentine's Day Crafts From The Heart

Valentine's Day is a time for homemade creations that parents will treasure forever. In addition to the traditional red construction paper heart, the Elmer's Glue people suggest two Valentine's projects, a Valentine House and Heart Chain that are fun for kids and easy to make.

To construct the Valentine House, use a discarded packing box as a base. Cover the box with strips of heavy paper "clapboard," using Elmer's Glue-All. Doors, windows, roof hearts and Valentine bushes are paper cut outs.

Cut sides of box to form pitched roof and glue a folded cardboard rectangle in place to form roof. Add chimney and with sharp scissors, cut a slot along peak of roof wide enough to slip valentine's through.

To create the Heart Chain, cut paper hearts from construction or poster paper using a cardboard pattern for children to trace. Cut one-inch slits on either side of heart. As a Christmas tree chain, join hearts into chain by threading strips of white paper through adjoining heart slits, then glue strip ends together.

- Express yourself! Write him a poem telling him just how much you care.
- With red lipstick, write "I love you" on the bathroom mirror.
- Bake him a cake -- the way to a man's heart is through his stomach.
- Leave a single red rose on the windshield of his car.
- Shock him! Hire a masseuse -- it will be a present he'll never forget!
- Dedicate a song to him on his favorite radio station -- must make sure he's listening!
- Take initiative -- plan out the whole day, without leaving a single detail up to him!
- Put up with things you normally wouldn't -- watch the football game with him, let him win at tennis.

For The Love Of A Glove: Not Just A Hand Warmer

Romantic old legends about gloves date back hundreds of centuries. Here, from Aris Isotoner, the world's leading glove and accessory manufacturer, are some to share with your special loved ones:

- A duel was sometimes provoked by a person offering a gloved hand in greeting.

- To "take up the glove" meant an acceptance of a challenge.
- Long before the Christian era, in the sale of land, a glove was given to the purchaser as a guarantee of the actual transfer of possession - it represented the title and deed to the property.

- In the seventeenth century, a young lady would sleep with one glove under her pillow in the hope of finding her mate (somewhat similar to the custom of sleeping on the wedding cake of a friend with the hope of an immediate romance.)
- Long ago, when a young man married, he gave to his bride's father one of his gloves as a symbolic guarantee that he could care for his bride single-handed.

- As the word glove mingles in loving traditions and romance, and contains the world love, so too, it seems the fingers of many gloves touch the hearts and lives of people who wear them with pride.

North Defeats Quincy, Blanked By Newton

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's hockey team defeated Quincy, 8-2, earlier in the week, but the Raiders' tournament hopes were handed a severe jolt last Saturday when they were shut out for the first time, 3-0 by Newton North.

North (7-6-2) needing seven points in four games to make the tournament, was idle last night (Wednesday), will play at Waltham Saturday night at 7:50 and will be at Brookline Tuesday night at 7. Brockton and Cambridge and Latin remain and, with games against the top two teams in the Suburban League, Brockton and Brookline remaining, things don't look good for the Raiders.

Quincy (0-11-3) hosted Cambridge last night and will be at Brookline Saturday night at 7:30.

"Losing to Newton makes it a lot harder for us to make the tournament," said North Quincy coach Dave Peters. "For the second time, Newton's goalie, Brian Bolio, throttled us."

In their previous meeting North led, 3-2, with 68 seconds to play, only to have Newton score twice to pull out a 4-3 win. North outshot Newton, 44-14, but Bolio was brilliant in the Tiger nets.

In the Raider win over Quincy, which had surprised by tying North in their previous meeting, Sal Manganaro, the top goal scorer in Eastern Mass. Division I, had two goals and four assists, giving him 26 goals and 15 assists for 41 points.

Joe Fasano, another of the league's leading scorers, had two goals and three assists, giving him 19 goals and 16 assists for 35 points.

Brian Zimmerman and Mike DesRoche each had a goal and an assist and senior defenseman Jim McCarthy and Armando Mancini scored their first goals of the season. Bill Lydon had two assists for North.

Scott MacPherson, Quincy's top scorer, and Sean McArdle scored for the Presidents.

Quincy goalie Craig Galligan tried to keep Quincy in the game as he had 30 saves.

Quincy lost to Brockton's league leaders, 10-2 Saturday as the Boxers qualified for the tournament.

Bill Santos and Dan Genatossio had hat tricks for the Boxers, who improved to 12-2-1.

Despite the score, Galligan was sensational in the Quincy goal and the score might have been doubled except for his efforts. He was particularly sharp in the opening period as Brockton took a 3-0 lead. He also came up with several spectacular saves in the second period.

"Craig was outstanding and the Brockton coaches and fans complimented him for a job well done after the game," said Quincy assistant coach George Peachey. "Brockton has a really fine team and was much better than the first time we played them."

Sophomore Steve MacPherson took over in the Quincy goal in the third period and played an excellent game.

"Steve made one save that was unbelievable," Peachey said.

"It was a shot that Andy Moog (Boston Bruins goalie) would have had a hard time stopping."

"A nice part about this game was that we had only two minor penalties and Brockton had only four. It was a good game to watch despite the one-sided score."

Shane Abboud scored Quincy's first goal with Dave Mellyn assisting and Jim Schatzl scored the second with assists for Fred Regan and McArdle.

Hudson Scores 50 In Norfolk Victory

Quincy's Paul Hudson, co-captain of the Norfolk Agricultural School basketball team, had a fantastic night last week as he scored a career-high 50 points to lead the Rams to 78-69 win over South Shore Vocational. With a 13-3 record, the Rams are assured of an Eastern Mass. Tournament berth.

Hudson, whose previous high was 36 points and whose low for the season was 21, is the top scorer in the Mayflower League and moved up to number two in Eastern Mass. with a 28.8 point a game average. Hudson's 50th point came late in the game when he took a feed from fellow co-captain Hugh Merlino, also from Quincy, and scored an easy layup. He also had 15 rebounds in the game.

'Quincy Connection' Sparks B.C. High

By JACK DUNN

At the start of the 1989-90 hockey season, B.C. High coach Joe McCabe admitted that his young, inexperienced team was in dire need of veteran leadership.

After graduating 11 seniors from last year's tournament team, McCabe was looking for players who were capable of leading by example, players who could convince their teammates that B.C. High could win in the best high school hockey league in the state.

Fortunately for McCabe, five players from Quincy would respond to his call, and thanks to the play of Kevin Daly, Rich MacDonald, Brian Kelly, Jeff Freeman and Joe Bevilacqua, B.C. High is off to its best start in years. Now at the midway point of the high school season, B.C. High finds itself in second place in the Catholic Conference with an impressive 7-3-2 record. Currently they are ranked third in the state behind Plymouth and CM and they are hoping to gain their second straight tournament bid. In the eyes of many, B.C. High is the team to watch in Division I.

M McCabe attributes much of his team's surprising success to the outstanding play and effective leadership of his "Quincy connection." Daly (9 goals, 6 assists and 15 points) and MacDonald (9 goals, 5 assists, 14 points) are the leading scorers on the team, and both are ranked among the top scorers in the league. Kelly, Freeman and Bevilacqua have also contributed with timely goals throughout the year, and they have kept the opposition off guard all season with aggressive forechecking.

More importantly, however, they have established a work ethic that has inspired their fellow teammates and won the respect of opposing players throughout the league. As Don Bosco coach Mark McHale admits, "with their lineup and team attitude, B.C. High is capable of beating any team in the state."

For those familiar with the local youth hockey scene, B.C. High's success should come as no surprise given the storied past of its local players. Daly, MacDonald, Kelly, Freeman and Bevilacqua have been stars in the Quincy Youth Hockey program for over 12 years, and they have played with each other on several championship teams from the Mighty Mites to the Midgets.

Expectations were immediately raised when all five of them entered B.C. High between 1986-87, and this year they are hoping to meet those expectations by capturing the one remaining prize that alludes them—the Division I State Championship.

For all five of the Quincy players the decision to attend B.C. High was a decision made early in their teens when they decided that they wanted to combine their hockey talents with educational opportunity. As senior co-captain MacDonald explains, "I knew that B.C. High had a great sports tradition, but I also knew that it was a challenging school academically. For me it looked everything that I was looking for in an education." Adds Kelly, "I came here because I wanted to get a good education, but what impressed me most was the fact that the student athletes at the school really encouraged each other to do well."

For all five of these players, the success of Quincy natives and B.C. High grads Danny Shea and Paul and Chris Marshall were factors which encouraged them to come to B.C. High. Shea and the Marshall brothers all went from B.C. High to Division I College on full scholarship, and Shea and Paul Marshall went on to captain Boston College's hockey team in their senior seasons. Chris, after playing for Michigan State, has transferred to B.C., while Shea and Paul Marshall are currently played professional hockey in Europe.

JEFF FREEMAN

"Danny Shea once told me that if I could handle B.C. High, college would be easy," said senior Freeman. "I hope that he is right." Daly, MacDonald, Kelly and Freeman are seniors who are hoping to play hockey next year in college. Daly is considering Bowdoin and Fairfield, while MacDonald is looking into the Air Force Academy. Kelly has narrowed his choices between Tufts and Colby while Freeman is still undecided. Bevilacqua is only a junior.

While all five say that they are grateful to B.C. High for providing them with a solid education, they admit that the demands imposed on them by B.C. High's tough standards and Catholic Conference hockey have not been easy. Says MacDonald, "you have to discipline yourself to play here; you have to make a daily schedule and stick to it. You just don't have time to waste." Adds Daly, "The hockey season takes so much out of you because of the demands of homework, hockey and college recommendations. Talking to other kids around the league, you realize that the demands on us are greater."

Due in part of the common bond between these five players, the "Quincy Connection" has helped to form a team attitude on the Eagle's squad that McCabe describes as the best he has seen in over 20 years of coaching. As Bevilacqua points out, "there is a great camaraderie on this team because there are no stars. We work together as a team, and that has been the key to our success all year."

While the Quincy players are quick to spread the accolades throughout the team, their fellow teammates are eager to praise them for the leadership they have shown both on and off the ice. In one game against conference rival St. John's Prep, B.C. High won 7-1 with all five of the Quincy players scoring all of the goals. On that same day, honor-roll students Kelly, Daly and MacDonald spent several hours helping some of the younger players prepare for an important exam. "They have been a great addition to this team," says senior goaltender Chris Utano of Medford. "We rely on them for their talent and for the example that they set."

As the team prepares itself for the remainder of the season, this group of B.C. High Eagles promises to continue the hard work and discipline that has earned them their high ranking in the Division I standings. They realize, after having watched talented B.C. High teams lose to CM in 1986 and 1987, that the road to a state championship is a long, uphill struggle. To make it, they will have to be lucky, get better as the year goes on, and play flawless hockey in the end when it matters most. But after years of accepting challenges and making the grade, these B.C. High players know that they are as prepared as anyone. Perhaps, with a few breaks, this might just be their year after all.

Raiders Down Presidents 56-44

The North Quincy boys' basketball team defeated Quincy for the second time, 56-44, last Friday to improve its record to 6-8 and keep its flickering tournament hopes barely alive.

Quincy, which has played better than its record, fell to 0-14.

North, faced with the unenviable task of winning its last six games to make the tournament, faced Waltham Tuesday night, will host the top team in the Suburban League, Brookline, (15-1) Friday night at 7:30 and will play at Brockton next Tuesday night at 7:30.

Quincy hosted Newton North Tuesday, will be idle Friday and will be home to Waltham next Tuesday night at 7:30.

As has been the case all year, Erik DeBoer sparked the Raiders with 25 points, including four three-pointers. He is the number three scorer in the league.

"He's been awesome for us and has been the key man all year," North coach Ted Stevenson said. "We knew this would be a war. It always is when these teams meet. Quincy was definitely up for the game and gave us a battle."

North took a 13-6 first quarter lead on the strength of DeBoer's first three-pointer and two free throws by Brian Curran.

In the second quarter sophomore Desmond bit a rare four-pointer, being fouled on his three-point shot and North had a 29-17 lead with 2:24 left in the half.

Quincy cut the deficit to 31-24 at halftime on baskets by Kevin McPartlin and Mike Sclaro.

Going into the fourth quarter the Raiders led, 45-37, and the turning point came early in the quarter when the Presidents had a chance to pull within five points. E.J. Nordstrom hit from inside but missed the ensuing free throw. DeBoer came back with two of his own for a 47-39 North lead.

"Our shooting has hurt us all year," said Quincy coach John Franceschini. "Our free throw shooting was down and we had chances late but couldn't capitalize."

Angelo Kyranis had 12 points and Curran nine and Jeff Galvert played another outstanding defensive game. For Quincy Nordstrom had 15 points, Joe Russell 13 and Sclaro 12.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, the number two team in the league (14-3), 73-36.

Russell had 14 points and six assists for the Presidents and Nordstrom had nine points, Cambridge's Omo Moses, one of the finest players in the state, had 22 points and 11 assists for Cambridge.

A Good Season For North Girls' Jayvees

The North Quincy girls' junior varsity basketball team under first-year coach Earl Metzler, is enjoying a successful season with an 8-5 record (5-3) in the Suburban League.

North is in second place in the league.

North is fresh from impressive wins over Newton North, Brookline and Cambridge Rindge and Latin. The only two league losses were to Waltham and Brockton in close games.

North is led by sophomores Cindy White and Cindy Mitton, both averaging close to 10 points a game. Sophomores Alyssa Maldoups and Jennifer White and junior Erin O'Neil are the leading rebounders and Noreen McDonough and Melanie Moffet lead in assists.

"Our defense has been outstanding and we have held opposing league teams scoreless in some quarters," said Metzler. "The girls have really worked hard and have improved in every game. We have been dressing up to 21 players, including freshmen and our program hasn't lost a step since Ken Panaro was promoted to varsity coach."

Rounding out the jayvee squad are Jen Santry, Cindy White, Jennifer White, Mitton, Paula McDonough, Maldoups, Noreen McDonough, Linda Connelly, Moffet, Stephanie Olson, Nicole Sapieza, Michelle Anderson, O'Neil and Maria Kalantzis.

The North freshmen, under coach Jim Rendle, also are having a fine season with a 6-3 record, led by Regina Murphy, Heather Rendle, Joanna Corerri, Karen Corrigan and Eileen McDonough.

Brian Doyle and Chris Bregoli gave St. Ann's a 9-4 lead after a quarter. John Sullivan contributed a strong game rebounding and Adam Goodrich played excellent defense.

Jason Crossman led St.

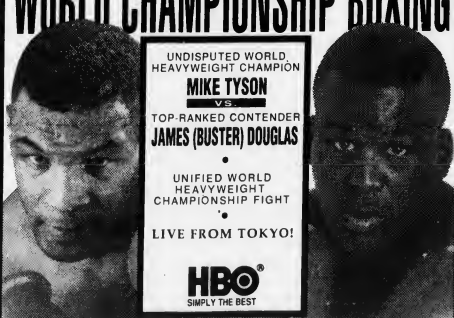

John's with seven points and a strong game on the boards. Steve Maze had three points and Matt McLoughlin two. Bregoli led St. Ann's, with 13 points, including five straight free throws in the last quarter. Doyle had nine points.

Panther Cheerleaders Seek National Title

The Quincy Point Panther cheerleaders will leave Friday for the Universal Association National Championships in Orlando, Fla. The Panthers earned the right to compete in their second national competition by winning the state title over the last Thanksgiving weekend.

They will compete in the junior high age division, while Norwood will represent the state in the high school division. Three-hundred teams are expected to participate.

The 12-member Panther squad needed to raise $7000 for the trip. Thanks to generous parents, long-time Panther supporters and donations received through candy sales and tag days, the girls will get their five-day stay in Orlando.

They will get complimentary transportation to Logan Airport from New England Livery Service, Marina Bay. They will fly on Midway Airlines and arrive in Orlando at 4 o'clock Friday.

Friday night they will attend a formal welcome banquet and Saturday morning will travel to Sea world where the competition will begin at 8:30 a.m. The finals will be Sunday and will be taped for a later broadcast on ESPN. They will attend a dance that evening. On Monday they will go to Disney world and will return to Boston Tuesday night.

The Panthers routine will consist of choreographed and traditional cheers, dance partner stunt and tumbling sequences. They will compete against county-wide teams, some with professional coaches and dance instructors.

After last year's Top 50 finish in Texas, they are hoping for a Top 25 finish in Florida.

Latest donations include those from Tom and Kathy Kiley and family, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, Mrs. Ruth Nelson, Ward 2 Community Center, Richard and Diane Robbins and Joe's Pub.

The players will be named later. In the past many Quincy and North Quincy players have taken part in the game, all proceeds of which will go directly to the support of the Shriners Burns Institute, Boston, and its 21 sister Shriners Hospitals for Crippled Children in North America.

To date the Shriners games have generated nearly $300,000.

Wollaston Actor Featured In 'Ah, Wilderness!'

Ed Peed of Wollaston will be featured in the Wheelock Family Theatre's production of Eugene O'Neill's classic "Ah, Wilderness!" which opens Feb. 9 for a three-weekend run at the Wheelock Family Theatre, 180 The Riverway, Boston.

Performances are Fridays and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays at 3 p.m. Tickets are $7 and limited free parking is available.

A "comedy of recollection" set in 1906, this is a poignant and affectionate look back at a more innocent (though not naive) time in American history.

Peed portrays David McComber, a concerned and irate father trying to protect his only daughter from the romantic ideas of young Richard Miller, the play's central character.

Peed returns for the sixth time to the Wheelock Family Theatre where he was last seen as Gile Corey in "The Crucible." He has appeared on numerous other area stages, most recently as William Featherstone in Nickerson Theatre's "How the Other Half Loves," and will be seen later this season on network television's "America's Most Wanted."

He has a bachelor of arts in drama and a master of fine arts in acting and directing.

The non-profit Wheelock Family Theatre produces plays designed exclusively for families and young people. All casts are multicultural with professional and community actors.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg Address Nov. 19, 1863. Lesser known is the article below in which he enjoins love of liberty and reverence of the nation's laws:

Let every American, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher to his posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution, never to violate in the least particular, the laws of the country, and never tolerate their violation by others. As the patriots of '76 did to the support of the Declaration of Independence, so to the support of the Constitution and laws let every American pledge his life, his property and his sacred honor. Let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear the charter of his children's liberty.

Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap. Let it be taught in the schools, in seminaries and in colleges. Let it be written in primers, spelling-books and in almanacs. Let it be preached from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and be enforced in courts of justice; and in short, let it become the political religion of the nation. And let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.

'You And The Law' Course At QJC

For the first time ever, Quincy Junior College is offering a course called "You And The Law: Facts You Need to Know."

This course will cover the problems people frequently encounter in every day life—renting an apartment, buying a house or car, borrowing money, employment problems and divorce. The purpose of the course is to teach people how to handle common legal problems knowledgeably, confidentially, and to their financial advantage. It is not to teach people how to be lawyers but to know when they need a lawyer.

Rick Ward, Assistant Director of Continuing Education of Quincy Junior College, said he organized the course because he felt it was important for people to have a practical knowledge and understanding of their basic legal rights and obligations. To the best of his knowledge, Quincy Junior College is the only educational institution running a course of this nature.

The course will be taught by Rona W. Goodman, a Quincy attorney, with 20 years experience practicing law.

Cost of the course is $46, with $5. for course materials. It starts Tuesday, Feb. 13, 7:30 to 9 p.m. and runs for eight weeks. Call 984-1655 to register.

Kane had 22 points and DiBona 16 for Quincy and Mike Kavanaugh, Kenny Downey, Erik MacFarlane and Matt Dwyer played fine games.

Quincy has gone 2-3 in the last five games, defeating Abp. Williams, 66-49, with Kane having 19 points and Chris Bistany 12. Eddie Kenney had four points in his first start and played strong

Wrestling

Quincy Grapplers Pin North

The Quincy wrestling team entered the final week of the regular season with a 14-5 record (5-2 in the Suburban League) after a big 45-20 win over North Quincy and a split of a tri-meet last weekend, a 43-27 win over Plymouth and a 44-22 loss to powerful Marshfield, which is 17-2.

After a Friday night home meet against Billerica at 7 p.m. in the Upper Vo-Tech gym, Quincy heads for the South Sectionals at Marshfield Feb. 16 and 17 and the state tournament at Chelmsford Feb. 23 and 24.

In the North Quincy meet Quincy won nine of the 11 matches contested, forfeiting in the 119 and 160-pound classes.

Sophomore Dave Cahill (12-3-1) blanked North's Mark Scott, 12-0, Junior Matt Fratolillo (12-6-1) came back to tie North's Derek Colantonio, 6-6 and sophomore Greg Souza (12-2-2) pinned North's Jeff Pillard. The most exciting match followed as senior Tom Fratolillo came back to defeat North's Mike Garrity with three late points, 8-7.

That prompted North to give senior Al Souza (11-0) a forfeit. "That was the turning point of the meet," said Quincy coach Lou Venturillo. "Tom Fratolillo appeared unable to continue but he got back up and finished strong. It forced North coach Steve Joyce into a strategy that just didn't work out. It was to use his co-captain, Peter Wildes against our Bob Stanton at 140 pounds but Stanton was more than up for the task and won, 12-4."

freshman Dave Bogan but senior co-captains Brian Burgess and Tony Madden recorded pins sandwiched by a 14-1 win by Junior Tom Burton.

The split against Plymouth and Marshfield was featured by Al Souza improving to 13-0 with two wins, Tom Fratolillo winning two, Burgess getting a win and tie to improve to 1-1, Burton getting two pins and Madden suffering his second defeat in the heavyweight class after recording a pin against Marshfield to make his record 8-2.

The Presidents' hopes of winning the league title were dashed when they lost to Brockton, 40-32. They nearly pulled an upset of undefeated Lowell but fell to the defending state champions, 28-28. Quincy also defeated Stoughton, 36-25.

Bowling

Mastrantonio Wins St. John's First Half

Jim Mastrantonio's team won the first half of St. John's Holy Name Bowling League with an 83-37 record.

The rest of the final first half standings: Bob Saluti, 62-58; John Grande, 60-60; Joe Matrazzo, 53-67; Art DiTullio, 52-68; Bud McAllister, 50-70.

Don Gilliland rolled the weekly high single of 123 and Saluti had 118. Gilliland also had the high three of 315 and Grande rolled 303.

Saluti's team had the high team single of 467 and Mastrantonio's team had 465. Saluti also had the high team three of 1361 and Mastrantonio had 1354.

The Top Ten: Saluti, 107.06; Grande, 103.57; Mastrantonio, 99.91; Bill Daley, 99.50; Richie Warner, 95.47; Dan Dieso, 94.51; Matrazzo, 93.90; Gilliland, 93.62; McAllister, 93.02; Dewey DiCesare, 92.97.

JACQUELINE WENZ, a regional representative for Boston Gas, conducts a slide show for several local agency representatives as part of the company's new multi-lingual safety program. Adolph Wismar, pastor of the Wollaston Lutheran Church.

Boston Gas Offering Multi-Lingual Safety Program

Recognizing the need to communicate with newly-arrived, non-English speaking people to the Greater Boston area, Boston Gas had created a new multi-lingual safety program.

The new program explains the safe use of natural gas appliances and heating equipment. It uses a multi-media approach in five languages, tailored specifically to five ethnic groups.

At a recent workshop in Quincy, Boston gas presented the program in Spanish, Vietnamese, Haitian-Creole, Chinese and English to community leaders representing social service agencies. These representatives service the needs of individual communities throughout the Greater Boston area.

Boston Gas Community Affairs Director Thomas Nutley and Regional Representative E. Jacqueline Wenz emphasized that safety is the company's number one concern.

They explained that Boston Gas is offering the multi-lingual programs because they want non-English speaking people and agency representatives to understand how to use natural gas appliances and equipment safely.

Each presentation consists of a 15-minute video tape in each of the five languages.

The video includes safety information on the proper use of gas appliances, detection of gas odors, gas meter tampering and carbon monoxide dangers.

The program is also available in a color slide format in English. A brochure in each of the five languages accompanies the video and is designed to emphasize the information on the video.

Boston Gas encourages agencies throughout its 74 cities and towns, which serve the Spanish, Vietnamese, Haitian and Chinese communities, to order a program package at no cost by writing to Boston Gas, Community Affairs Department, 201 Rivermoor St. West Roxbury, MA 02132 or by calling 671-323-9210 ext 360.

Boston Gas also offers a translation service which allows company representatives, either in person or by telephone, to enter into a three-way conversation with a foreign language interpreter and a customer who does not speak English.

The program works 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Translators in 136 languages are available.

Boston Gas is the first utility company in the country to offer this program to its customers.

Indoor Miniature Golf Course Proposed

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday placed on file for two weeks a request from Thomas J. Ploof to open an indoor miniature golf course, Putters Green, at 1585 Hancock St., at Quincy Fair Mall.

Ploof requested a common victualer license for a snack bar and an amusement license.

He told the board the 18-hole course would be located on the basement level of the building, near the pool room.

Board Chairman John Gillis said he was concerned that Quincy Square would become "a Paragon Park," adding that there is already a pool room and movie theaters in the building.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell told

Ploof they were concerned about means of egress in the building in case of an emergency.

Ploof said the company which would install the miniature golf course would lay it out according to safety codes.

Mulvey said he is also concerned about handicapped access. He said that it must be accessible to handicapped persons.

Safe Environment

Coalition To Meet Sunday

The Coalition for a Safe Environment will meet Sunday, Feb. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at St. John's Church Hall, 44 School St., Quincy Center.

The organization, which includes all communities opposed to Clean Harbors, Ploof told the board the nearest example of an indoor course is in Holyoke. He said he would get the exact address of that establishment for the board.

He also gave the board sample layouts for an indoor course and brochures.

The board placed the matter on file for two weeks in order to investigate it further and to run a routine police check on the applicant.

Inc.'s proposed hazardous waste incinerator, will be conducting a presentation and discussion concerning the impact of the proposed toxic incinerator on residents' health and safety.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Anticipating City Council approval of a sewer user fee and a "reasonable" reduction in local aid, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday all city departments will be reduced by six percent to balance the FY 1991 budget.

"If we get the fee, the budget cuts will be six percent below this year's budget level," Sheets said.

The fee will most likely pass at the Feb. 20th meeting of the City Council. A majority of councillors have indicated support for the fee which would generate $9.5 million next fiscal year which begins July 1.

With the fee, the city will raise $121 million in FY 1991. However, the city faces a projected $15 million next year.

That shortfall, however, would be reduced to approximately $6 million if the fee passes. The six percent cuts amount to approximately $6 million, the mayor noted.

With the fee and the six percent cuts, Sheets said the city will have a balance of $750,000 which he said would cushion a major cut in local aid.

Given the state's present fiscal condition, the mayor is anticipating a local aid cut of $500,000 to $1 million. However, Sheets said local funding could be cut by as much as $3 million if Gov. Michael Dukakis withholds the money to help offset a $500 million state deficit.

"My sense is that we'll be reduced in the next fiscal year by $500,000 to $1 million. That would be a reasonable reduction in local aid."

Sheets and Auditor Robert Foy are compiling the budget worksheets and each department head will be informed of the six percent cut and their bottom line for FY 1991 this week.

Next, the mayor will examine a rough draft of each budget with each department head. Sheets will then determine whether he agrees with the cuts proposed in those budgets.

The FY 1991 budget must be submitted to the City Council by April 2.

"We can't wait any longer to create guidelines for cutting. The department heads must have that information," Sheets explained.

It is likely the city will lay off municipal employees as a result of the budget cuts. The mayor said he would know how many personnel reductions in two weeks.

The six percent reduction represents $1.9 million for the city's three largest departments: school, police and fire.

This fiscal year, the school department was funded at $38 million. A six percent cut equals a loss of $1,235,000. Therefore, the school system will receive $36,764,650 next year.

The police department received $11,284,000 in FY 1990. A six percent cut means a loss of $371,000 for a FY 1991 budget of $10,913,000.

The fire department was funded at $10,137,000 this fiscal year. A six percent reduction equals a loss of $324,000 for a FY 1991 budget of $9,813,000.

The mayor noted the fire department's bottom line includes $283,000 in fixed costs such as new contracted salaries.

As for fiscal 1990, Sheets said the city will probably be short by $11 million but free cash could wipe out most of that deficit.

City May Sue Dukakis On Local Aid Cut

It is likely the city will join Springfield in a lawsuit against Gov. Michael Dukakis if the governor withholds $500 million in local aid to help balance the state budget, Mayor James A. Sheets said Tuesday.

At press time, Springfield was the only community considering a lawsuit against the governor.

The local aid helps to fund municipal programs and services. In Quincy, 34 percent of the city's budget is funded by local aid.

Some communities, such as Springfield, rely more heavily on local aid.

On Tuesday, Sheets said the city will receive a briefing on the lawsuit and City Solicitor Stephen McGrath will examine it.

"It is likely the city will join Springfield. The lawsuit contends the governor cannot impound local funds," Sheets said, noting the State Legislature appropriates money while the governor expends it.

Sheets has talked with Springfield Mayor Mary Hurley regarding the suit.

Hurley, who is also a lawyer, told Sheets a court ruling "could go either way."

If taken to court, Sheets said the governor's defense would likely be that he can't spend money he doesn't have.

The mayor also noted a similar scenario involving former President Richard Nixon. Nixon withheld money specifically earmarked for a particular program and was taken to court.

The Supreme Court ruled that the president cannot withhold funds targeted for a particular cause or purpose.

Hazardous Materials Conference At NFPA

A conference of hazardous materials awareness and related training issues will be conducted Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the National Fire Protection Association Headquarters, Batterymarch Park, West Quincy.

The conference is being presented by the Quincy Civil Defense Department, the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration, Environmental Protection Agency and Federal Emergency Management Agency.

A buffet lunch will follow the conference.

James Hall, formerly of the Massachusetts State Police and now with FEMA, Region 1 as Hazardous Materials Specialist, will be the principal instructor for the conference.

Quincy Civil Defense Director Tony Siciliano will give the opening remarks. He said the conference is important because the final portion of the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act (SARA) will take effect next month.

The final portion deals with hazardous waste materials and those responsible for responding to accidents involving these materials.

Other scheduled speakers include:

- Rick Quinlan of FEMA who will give an overview of SARA Title III.
- Ron Churchill, chief of the Attleboro Fire Department, will discuss ground zero, a hazardous materials incident.
- Fred Malaby of OSHA, who will talk about worker protection standard and first responder training.
- Len Wallace of the EPA who will give an overview of enforcement.

Board Transfers License At Quincy Point Diner

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Barbara E. Quinlan and Catherine Hayward for the transfer of the common victualer license as held by The Family Diner, 545 Washington St.

The diner will be managed by Martin Hayward and will serve breakfast, lunch and dinner. The hours of operation will be from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Sean Corcoran, attorney for the applicants, told the board they had dealt with the landlord of the building, that they have the lease and the bill of sale on the equipment, all pending the license transfer.

Hayward told the board he plans to manage the diner in much the same manner as it has been run in the past.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey said he was concerned because the previous owner found the area unsuitable for the business. Mulvey told the applicants that the previous owner could not make the business a success because of a lack of traffic in the area.

Corcoran told the board his clients were confident they could make the diner a success.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro told the applicants that he too was concerned only about the potential for success.

"I just hope you understand what you're getting into," he said, "my only concern is you."

Quinlan said that they have gone over the figures and are confident about the business.

The board granted the license subject to an inspection by the Health Department, the Building Commissioner and the Fire Department.

License Granted For Market

The License Board granted a request from Edward Pijanowski for a common victualer license for the Palmer St. Market, 231 Palmer St.

Pijanowski told the board that renovations and inside remodeling are currently underway in the building, and that he has met with the Health Department concerning recommended renovations.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue said Pijanowski is following procedure concerning alterations.

However, Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey noted that building permits are also required for all indoor alterations.

Pijanowski will meet with the Building Department, he said.

The license was granted subject to a team inspection from the Health, Building and Fire Departments, and pending a routine police check currently being conducted.

Recycling To Be Expanded For Glass, Maybe Leaves

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city's recycling program will expand to include a drop-out center for glass this spring and possibly leaf composting this fall, city officials announced Tuesday.

The announcement was made by Mayor James Sheets, Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton.

Chretien is chairman of the city's Recycling Committee and Kolson is chairman of the council's Public Works Committee.

In announcing the developments, Sheets said he has "strong support of recycling programs in the City of Quincy." He said he will "work closely with the Recycling Committee to make these programs a priority of my administration's first year in office."

Last May, the city launched a curbside paper recycling program. On Tuesday, officials announced the program will expand.

On Feb. 26, an office paper recycling program will begin in several public buildings including City Hall, the John F. Kennedy Health Center, the Department of Public Works and school buildings.

Bins will be located in each building and custodians will collect the paper in the bins. The paper will then be picked up by the city and transported behind the DPW building at 55 Sea St.

Next month, a drop-off center for recyclable glass will be established behind the DPW building. Residents will be encouraged to take brown, green and clear glass to the facility.

Glass must be clean and window glass will not be accepted since it is not recyclable.

Sheets said times when the center will be open have not been set yet. "We hope to get it off the ground and underway in March."

"Glass and plastics are recyclable and resellable. Both have market value and both will be saving us money," Sheets said.

The city also will embark on a new public education program aimed at improving the participation rate for the present curbside paper recycling program. Currently, about 33 percent of city residents are recycling paper.

The rate offsets the cost of the program. However, if more citizens participated, the city could save well over $200,000 per year.

A large part of the new education initiative will involve the city's school children. Sheets said the children could make their parents more aware of the program.

The education effort might include printed material such as posters and creating a recycling logo and costumed recycling character to symbolize the programs. The character could drive the recycling truck and visit schools, thereby increasing public awareness, the mayor explained.

"We've talked extensively about what we can do to promote recycling. Obviously, we're going to have to do it as inexpensively as possible," the mayor said.

Another way to increase participation could be to change the bi-weekly pick-up to weekly. Sheets said weekly pick-up would lessen the confusion of bi-weekly pick-up and thus increase participation.

"We've had some difficulty at picking up at curbside but I think that's due to confusion. I think it's hard for people to keep track of the every other week schedule."

"If we go to a weekly schedule, I think it will be a lot easier and a lot more successful," Sheets said.

Colton is also preparing a plan for leaf composting. Sheets said a city-wide composting program could begin operation in October.

The city is soliciting bids from the private sector for an expanded curbside recycling program. In addition, the program will include items such as glass, metal, plastic and appliances.

Chretien said he hopes the expanded program will begin May 1 because that is when the city's current contract with Browning-Ferris Industries for paper recycling expires.

Sheets said the Department of Public Works will compete for the program with private companies by preparing their own "bid."

The mayor, noting "recycling is the wave of the future," said expanding the city's program is essential to improving the quality of life.

"As a country, we're going to get into recycling a lot more. We no longer have inexhaustible resources. We used to be a country

Those Little Things

Mayor James Sheets never really knew the late Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa although he met him once. That was long before Sheets entered the political arena.

Della Chiesa served 12 years as mayor under Plan E and Plan A from the mid 1950's to the mid 1960's. Different era. Different times. Different problems.

But Sheets, a Democrat and Della Chiesa, a Republican, seem to have one belief in common: little things can mean a lot.

Della Chiesa, who squeezed pennies until Abe Lincoln almost cried "ouch" used to walk around the mayor's office and other offices in old City Hall turning off lights that were not needed.

Sheets turns down the thermostat in his office in new City Hall.

Hey, it all helps. Especially these days.

SHEETS, incidentally, thinks Quincy will be able to ride out the current financial storm.

"It won't be easy," he says. "But we'll get through it. Turn the thermostat down another notch. Your Honor."

SEEMS LIKE OLD times seeing Grace Giunchiglia in the mayor's office.

Giunchiglia, who was Mayor Della Chiesa's secretary in the 1960's, is now serving Sheets in the same capacity. "She's great," says Sheets. "Really knows her job. And she's so well organized."

WILLIAM GALVIN is picking up some pretty good support in his bid for state treasurer.

The Democratic state representative from Brighton, already has in his corner the likes of:

City Clerk John Gillis, Tom Koch, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, City Solicitor Steve McGrath, former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly and John Keenan who lost a bid for the Ward 5 council seat to Charles Phelan.

All but Gillis are delegates to the Democratic state convention.

Flag Casket Ban Called 'A Shock'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I am responding to a report of the American flag being banned from the funeral service, "Veterans Angered by Funeral Flag Ban." What a shock!

I am 70 years of age. In my lifetime I have seen the National Colors suffer many indignities, ranging from being improperly displayed with intention, burned, spit on (several other things done to it in the same vein), eliminated from a place of public assembly, torn down, worn on the seat of someone's pants, and many other indiscretions which were brought out by the thousands of letters this news item will bring out. None of the above have distressed me as the Casket Draping Ban has.

I cannot go to my parish priest and ask him to correct this injustice. The priest is guided by directive from a superior that says anything other than a white cloth draped over the casket is unacceptable. Where as: the indignities suffered in the paragraph above can be discussed, corrected and the violators can be punished, because the National Colors are protected by prescription and a public law.

The tradition of draping the National Colors over the coffin of a service man or other dignitary is between a right and a privilege. A prerogative once granted cannot be revoked (in my opinion) all the hyperbole cannot change this tradition. This is a pill that cannot be swallowed without some kind of recourse or explanation of WHY, that will satisfy families, that will not under ordinary circumstances adjust to the absence of the National Colors draped on the casket of a loved one that served in the Armed Service. When for years this has been a part of the funeral service.

Any elimination of a phase of the service can be traumatic, without some kind of grace period. I do hope for a reconsideration of this mandated practice.

THERESA GACICIA nearly had City Clerk John Gillis in tears at her retirement party at City Hall last Friday.

Theresa had served 17 years as secretary to the City License Board after 25 years in Washington, D.C. where she was secretary to the Judge Advocate General in the U.S.

Department of the Navy.

After saying her farewells to everyone else, Theresa stopped to tell Gillis: "You are the best boss anyone could have."

"She's such a nice person. It just hit me," said Gillis.

ON THE SAME day, Asst. City Clerk Thomas Burke marked his birthday. "Thirty-nine," he insisted. But someone ran it through the computer and came up with 66.

The girls in the office presented him with a copy of the Sports Illustrated new swimsuit issue.

That might make him feel 39 anyway, someone said.

YOU MIGHT SAY former Mayor Francis McCauley has a new title "Professor." He is now teaching a municipal, state and federal government course three days a week at Quincy Junior College.

And who says people aren't interested in government? His classes average 35 students.

McCauley, incidentally, says he really doesn't miss City Hall. With all the financial problems facing the city and state today. Why should he?

His Rebuttal On Casket Flag

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This is my rebuttal to the Catholic Church's decision to remove the American flag from a veteran's casket at the rear of the Church before the ceremony.

"God and Country" Above Saint Joe's baptismal, My Catholic life began. Our Lady's Church first introduced Communion to this man.

Saint Boniface would be the place, Where mornings before school, I joined Veneto's Altar Boys, And served Mass as a rule.

When I confirmed my Catholic faith, The Church was then Saint John's. Then off to High School, next the war. And then my youth was GONE.

My father was an Army man, And taught me from the start, That lives have paid for freedom, And that someone plays that part.

I pledge allegiance to the flag, One nation under God. Thou shalt not kill does not apply. When fighting for the sod.

I knelt in dirt for Easter Mass, On L.Z. Five Five Eight. I prayed to live through Khe Sah'n's Tet. In nineteen sixty eight.

I prayed to God when combat, Ever brought me close to death. Then prayed again to thank him, When I stole another breath.

Religious freedom started concepts, Written long ago. Hence: GOD and COUNTRY's partnership, America should know!

So when I die and someone stops, My casket at the rear. Don't dare remove my flag from me, Just get me out of there.

Just bring me to my final rest, And drop me in the grave. My wife will say a prayer for me, I know that she'll be brave.

And even though I waved my right, To have a final Mass. MYSELF and GOD and COUNTRY. Will have finally come to pass.

McKim, Mader Clash Over Toxic Waste Incinerator Site

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The chief executive officer of Clean Harbors, Inc., and the chairman of the Quincy Environmental Task Force last week clashed over the company's proposed hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree.

Appearing on Quincy Community Television's "Newsmakers" program last Thursday, Company CEO Alan McKim and Bernice Mader, chairman of the city's Task Force, debated the suitability of the proposed site.

The two also argued whether the 45,000-ton-a-year incinerator would have a negative impact on the surrounding communities' health, safety and property values.

Hosted by Continental Cablevision General Manager Steve Farquar, "Newsmakers" will be repeated tonight (Thursday) on QCTV Channel 3 at 8:30 p.m.

Following the program, Channel 3 will air "Rush to Burn," a special documentary on the incinerator project produced by Green Peace.

McKim and Mader answered questions posed by media representatives Herb Fontaine of WJDA radio, Robert Bosworth of The Quincy Sun, and Scott Allen of The Patriot Ledger.

They agreed that something must be done to treat hazardous waste. However, Mader, who is the administrative assistant for Mayor James Sheets, called the East Braintree location the worst possible choice for a hazardous waste incinerator.

She noted the proposed site is located in the Fore River Industrial basin which is within close proximity to a proposed MWRA sludge treatment facility, the Proctor and Gamble factory and the Edgar power station. Mader also mentioned that a state health study shows a significantly higher lung cancer rate in the area.

"I'm not disputing that something has to be done to take care of hazardous waste. But I'll tell you, putting (the incinerator) in this site is absolutely inappropriate," Mader said.

McKim disagreed. "This is the most heavily industrial area on the South Shore. For over 100 years, heavy industry has been in that area."

"Quite frankly, if you were going to go across the state and try to choose the ultimate site, no, (East Braintree) wouldn't be the ultimate site, but it sure would be a choice."

McKim noted that Clean Harbors has operated at the East Braintree site since 1976. Previously, it was used as an oil refinery.

The CEO also mentioned that his company has spent $11 million the past two and a half years studying the site and has concluded the location is feasible. He also said, based on his company's 10,000-page analysis, the incinerator would not have harmful health effects or drop property values.

"This is a very populated area as far as industry goes, not as citizens go, as far as we're concerned," McKim added.

Mader, however, disputed that claim. She charged that Clean Harbors has not taken into account all safety precautions and standard operation procedures.

"I'm worried about the standard operation procedures for the local fire departments." In the case of a chemical fire inside a room, she said the fire department would first look at the wind sock to determine which way the wind is blowing before entering that room.

"Now, if you didn't have to worry about which way the wind was blowing to breathe, why is that in the standard direction if there's nothing to worry about?" she asked.

According to one report, the proposed facility would release a minimum of 9,000 pounds of particulate into the air.

Mader also came down hard on McKim's claim that the East Braintree-Quincy Point-North Weymouth area is not densely populated.

"And when (McKim) says not heavily populated, I consider 210,000 people in a two-square mile radius pretty heavily populated, considering the average (hazardous waste) plant around the world is located in an area where the average density of a population is 100 people."

McKim reasoned his incinerator should be located in East Braintree because the majority of hazardous waste generated in Massachusetts is produced within the Route 495 belt.

"We're talking about being close to our customer base, close to the people generating this waste so that we don't transport it, not only all over the state, but all over the country which is what we're doing right now."

Presently, 200,000 tons of Massachusetts waste—70 percent of the state total—is sent to another state or Canada for disposal. Of that, 90,000 tons goes as far as Texas to be burned.

McKim also argued that without the incinerator, other states will prevent Massachusetts from transporting its waste over its own borders. Because of his company's proposal, Massachusetts' waste can still be transported out-of-state, he claimed.

"The only reason why Massachusetts is allowed to ship into many of these states is because of our proposed facility. We are not the generators of hazardous waste. We're treating this waste," he added.

State law calls for reducing the amount of hazardous waste generated by 50 percent by 1994. Even with this law, McKim said there is still a need to his incinerator.

"I really don't think that, even with the most optimistic of 50 percent source reduction by 1994, we're still talking about having more than adequate capacity just in Massachusetts alone to keep this incinerator at capacity," McKim said.

As a solution to the siting issue, Mader has suggested a regional incinerator to treat the New England states hazardous waste needs.

Mader, who will write to Gov. Michael Dukakis and suggest the idea, said the regional incinerator could be sited on a remote island owned by one of the New England states. She said it would not affect large populations and could operate with funds supplied by the six states.

"I think those are creative possibilities where everybody and all the states which are currently strapped for money might be able to provide a creative solution for how they can deal with (hazardous waste) and take care of whole region's needs while they are at it."

Asked if he can guarantee the incinerator will not emit obnoxious odors, cause harmful health side effects and drop property values, McKim said, "We believe our proposal proves without a reasonable doubt, that it can operate safely, that it will not impact property values, it will not affect the health of our employees as well as any of the surrounding communities and that it should be judged on its merits, rather than on people's fear about issues that we think we've properly addressed."

He suggested having a community representative at the Clean Harbors site "to ensure that what we're doing is safe, not only today but everyday."

In response, Mader said she doubted the incinerator could operate without error. She noted that Clean Harbors' had its license for a medical incinerator suspended in 1987 for failing to keep the temperature high enough to destroy harmful emissions.

She also pointed out that the license to operate the company's oil recovery facility in Kingston was suspended for "substantial violations of state regulations."

McKim answered his incinerator was not shut down. Instead, the company agreed to install "state-of-the-art" pollution control equipment which cost more than $1 million.

Furthermore, the Kingston facility dealt with volumes of gallons treated, McKim said. "We're not talking about improper handling of waste."

6 Percent Cuts For All City Depts.

With the free cash, Sheets hopes the $11 million shortfall will be reduced to $2,690,000. The latter figure would then be "rolled over" into the FY 1991 budget and be absorbed by the six percent cuts, he explained.

However, the mayor said the FY 1990 shortfall could soar to at least $6.5 million if the governor withholds $3.7 million in local aid earmarked for education. He said Dukakis is "threatening" to withhold that money.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Della Chiesa Hits MTA Assessment Bill

Rep. Amelio Della Chiesa (R-Quincy) promised to fight shoulder-to-shoulder with other state legislators against a bill that would assess 14 fringe communities 25 percent of the Metropolitan Transit Authority deficit.

On the basis of the MTA's $7,829,004 deficit in 1952, he said, Quincy would be charged $503,010, or about $3.50 on the tax rate.

Nevertheless, when the legislature's Metropolitan Affairs Committee held a hearing on the bill no one appeared to oppose it, although Sen. Charles W. Hedges (R-Quincy) had himself recorded against it after the hearing.

"It was useless to express any opposition before the Metropolitan Affairs Committee as 11 of its 14 members represent communities that contribute to the deficit at the present time," said William O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

O'Connell said it was the Chamber's position that the New Haven Railroad "has demonstrated that it is possible to provide transportation to the South Shore at a profit" and the MBTA should be able to do the same thing.

MCCARTHY DENOUNCED

Rev. Bedros Baharian, pastor of the Quincy Point Congregational Church, denounced "those who have been using the 'Red menace scare' to ride to power" in a talk before the Quincy Lions Club.

"No one would have heard of Sen. McCarthy if he didn't make spectacular accusations — accusing one who may deserve it while defaming hundreds of others," said Rev. Mr. Baharian.

Dorothy Nickerson Honored On 90th Birthday

Some 60 friends and family members recently gathered to celebrate a special birthday for Dorothy Nickerson of 80 Clay St., Wollaston, who turned a young 90 Feb. 1.

The mother of three, Mrs. Nickerson has 11 grandchildren, seven great-grandchildren and is looking forward to the birth of her eighth great-grandchild.

As a special birthday gift, she was presented with a portrait of her family.

She has lived in Quincy for over 15 years, and has lived at the elderly housing at 80 Clay St. for the past ten years.

Even at age 90, Mrs. Nickerson keeps busy as a volunteer for the meals on wheels program, delivering meals to her friends and neighbors in the building.

It is that sort of active nature, say her family and friends, which keeps her so young at heart.

But Mrs. Nickerson has another response when asked about the secret of her longevity.

"I always figured the devil didn't have a shovel big enough," she says.

AT THE ANNUAL GOOD SCOUT PARTY, Councillor Charles Phelan, president of the Massasoit Campers Association, with Joe Ilacqua, representing the late Dominic Ilacqua who received the Massasoit Campers Award; Sheila McIntyre, who made the presentation; John Randall holding the John & Buell Fuller Award; Bill Shaw, County Coordinator and first recipient of the Fuller Award, and Harry Hanson, Senior District Executive of Boy Scouts.

Three Honored At Massasoit Good Scout Party

Three men were honored at the 11th Annual Good Scout Party of the Massasoit Campers Association held recently at Granite Place and attended by scouters, civic leaders, businessmen and friends.

Herb Fontaine, John Randall and the late Dominic Ilacqua were honored as individuals who by their lives and deeds displayed a belief and commitment to the principles of the Scout Oath and Law.

O. Donald Gohl, co-chairman for the party with Harold Crowley, presented the James R. McIntyre Good Scout Award to Fontaine. Fontaine is retiring this year after 35 years as news director of Radio Station WJDA, where he provided a voice for innumerable charitable causes in addition to publicizing Scouting events. Gohl thanked Fontaine for "making sure the good kids in our community are given the recognition they deserve." The award was presented by Sheila McIntyre, the widow of the former Quincy Mayor and State Senator. She also presented to him a bouquet of flowers for his wife, Barbara Fontaine, hospitalized after being struck by a car last month.

Crowley introduced Randall, the recipient of this year's John & Buell Fuller Award, given in memory of the twin Scouters who recently passed away. The award is given annually to a person who has devoted his life to the service of Scouting.

Randall, formerly Scoutmaster of Troop 25 and Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 5, now is advisor to Campmaster Service Post 110. He has been active in the reconstruction effort at Camp Massasoit for ten years.

"Credit for the excellent condition of Camp Massasoit must be given to John Randall and the dedication and talent he has brought to the task," said Crowley.

Bill Shaw, longtime Quincy Scouter and first recipient of the Fuller Award, made the presentation to Randall.

Honored posthumously with the Massasoit Campers Award was Dominic Ilacqua, who died unexpectedly two months ago. City Councillor Charles Phelan, president of the Massasoit Campers Association, described Ilacqua as "a dear friend to all whose handiwork at Camp Massasoit is everywhere—a lasting memorial to his skill and creativity."

Sheila McIntyre, presenting the award to Joe Ilacqua who represented the family, spoke of Ilacqua's dedication to the poor of Haiti along Scouting, stating, "his kind heart and sense of humor will be sorely missed."

The Good Scout Party, originally the idea of former Mayor and Senator, the late James R. McIntyre, helps to support the renovation and improvement of Camp Massasoit, the Boy Scout camp in Plymouth, formerly the summer camp of Quincy Boy Scouts and now owned and operated by the Greater Council of Boy Scouts.

Phelan praised the efforts of Jim McIntyre in saving the camp for future generations and expressed pleasure in continuing the McIntyre tradition.

Study Says Bush Has Abandoned Promise On Harbor Cleanup

The Bush Administration has abandoned campaign promises to clean up Boston Harbor, strapping local residents with billions of dollars in added clean up costs that should be paid by the federal government and toxic polluters, a study released Tuesday concludes.

The study, "Boston Harbor Toxics Cleanup: Who Should Pay," was released by the National Toxics Campaign Fund during a press conference Tuesday in the State House.

The study estimates sewer and water bills for Boston area residents will increase by 400 percent by the year 2000, forcing residents to pay an additional $1,000 each year.

The authors urged President Bush to restore $20 million in cleanup funds that were cut from the federal budget last month, and to assume a fair share of the cleanup costs.

Other costly sewer construction programs now underway in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco, unlike Boston, have all received major federal funding.

Up to 20,000 pounds of toxic chemicals and petroleum are dumped into Boston Harbor each day through the regional sewer system. Industrial polluters are responsible for most of that toxic discharge.

The report concludes much of this dumping would be eliminated if polluters paid higher fees for dumping their waste into the municipal sewer system. The authors proposed a new fee and permit system to raise funding while discouraging toxic dumping in the municipal sewer system.

Mass Real Estate Figures Show Effects Of Buyers Market

The number of residential, commercial and land sales in Massachusetts decreased by 15 percent last year, while property appreciation rates rose only 1.6 percent to increase the statewide average selling price for all real property to $176,764, according to a report released by the Massachusetts Association of REALTORS (MAR).

The sales statistics, as announced by MAR President J. Thomas Marquis, of Duxbury, show that 38,840 properties were sold through REALTOR-affiliated multiple listing service systems (MLS) in the state during 1989 compared to 45,714 properties sold the previous year.

The MLS sales figures include the sale of single and multi-family homes, commercial property and raw land, and account for approximately one-third of all property sales in Massachusetts.

"The 15 percent decline in the number of sales suggests that while mortgage interest rates improved last year, the rapid appreciation in home and land prices during the mid-eighties as well as uncertainties in the Massachusetts economy, delayed or prevented many people from purchasing a home or second property in 1989," said Marquis.

"The lower sales figures do not mean the state's real estate market has collapsed, rather the events of the past two years have led to one of the best buyers' markets ever seen," Marquis maintained.

"It is true that sales have slowed since 1986 and 1987, but those years were marked by unprecedented growth which could not be sustained forever," said Marquis.

"Although today's market has been stigmatized by an unusually high number of listings caused by overbuilding in some segments of the market, and an increase in the time to sell properties, the current sales pace indicates the return to a more normal market."

The REALTOR's report shows that 1989 was the fourth most active year for property sales in the state's history. The third quarter was the most active period for closings last year, while the first quarter was the slowest sales period. Second quarter sales were off most dramatically, with sales down 20 percent vs. the same period in 1988.

Regionally, every area of the state reported a decrease in sales activity in 1989. Property sales on Cape Cod remained relatively stable as the number of sales slipped just 2.4 percent from 1988 levels. However, the state's other regions observed more significant declines, with the Central Region (G. Worcester area and N. Worcester County) reporting the largest year-to-year decline at 23.5 percent.

The $176,764 statewide average selling price for existing property in 1989 is the highest ever recorded in Massachusetts, and is a 1.6 percent increase over the previous year's average price of $173,987. The state's appreciation rate for the year was less than the national annual appreciation rate of 4.6 percent, but slightly above the annual appreciation rate of 0.9 percent observed in the Northeast during 1989.

"The stabilization of property values during the past year demonstrates that the local housing market is going through a period of adjustment not a period of rampant depreciation," stated Marquis. "The state's homeowners have come to accept the corrections occurring in the marketplace, and have now begun to set more realistic asking prices."

After peaking at $180,921 in the second quarter, the statewide average selling price declined to averages of $178,348 and $171,118 in the third and fourth quarters respectively.

The West, Southeast and Northeast regions reported increases in property values during 1989, while Cape Cod and the Central Region each experienced a 2 percent decrease in their year-to-year average selling price. Greater Boston's average price was unchanged. The West Region recorded the largest increase in price appreciation (3.3%) between 1988 and 1989, but still remained the most affordable area of the state with an average selling price of $129,958 last year. The Greater Boston area claimed the state's highest average selling price at $225,815.

The modest property appreciation rates, and in some cases price reductions, should help improve sales activity in the state during the coming year Marquis predicted. "The lower appreciation rates will serve to strengthen the market as home buyers' income levels start to catch up with housing costs. The double-digit appreciation rates witnessed earlier this decade did more harm than good because they priced too many people out of the housing market," he said.

"The Massachusetts housing market in 1990 is likely to be a repeat of the year just gone by," noted Marquis. "With supply outpacing demand, prices will increase no more than one to two percent and sales will be slow due to the 'wait-and-see' attitude among prospective home buyers. However, sales should show a slight increase as home seekers take advantage of today's buyers market and recognize that affordable interest rates will not last forever."

Organized in 1924, the Massachusetts Association of REALTORS is a voluntary trade group with more than 18,500 members. The term REALTOR is registered as the exclusive trademark of members of the National Association of REALTORS who subscribe to a strict code of ethics.

OK To Cry At Funerals

YES! It's natural to shed tears, no matter your age or sex. Crying gives one an emotional outlet for men, women and especially children.

Holding back one's natural emotions on the loss of a loved one may cause psychological problems later on, especially with children.

It's a misconception that big boys and men should not cry. This is a mistake since crying offers a relief for the inner pains, for one and all.

53 Teams Competing

Quincy Kiwanis Hockey Tourney Opens Feb. 19

The Quincy Kiwanis Club's 17th annual International Youth Hockey Tournament gets underway Monday, Feb. 19, for a full week at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Fifty-three teams in four divisions will be competing in the Division I AHA-sanctioned tourney. A total of 93 games will be played at both the Quincy Arena and during the latter part of the week at the MDC rink at Neponset.

Opening the tournament next Monday morning at 8:10 will be a Mites contest between Quincy and Dedham.

Team Colorado from Denver is due to arrive on Wednesday afternoon at Logan International Airport. The Pee Wee team will play Framingham on Thursday morning at 9:20.

This year will mark the 16th year that teams from Suffolk, N.Y. have participated in the tournament, termed by many as the most exciting youth hockey tournament on the East Coast.

King Philip-Walpole parents are providing housing for the North Toronto players and Quincy team parents are providing housing accommodations for 55 team members of three Sackville, Nova Scotia, teams.

Beverly Reinhardt, rink manager, reports that a memorial Mass will be held at St. Ann's Church in Wollaston Friday morning, Feb. 23, at 9 a.m. for Doug Day, who died last April. For many years he brought several Sackville teams to the tournament.

The tourney will end Sunday, Feb. 25, with the exciting finals in all four divisions, Bantams, Pee Wees, Mites and Squirts. Participating in the awarding of trophies to the winners and runners up will be this year's Kiwanis chairman, Yves Poirier, President Bob Bunstein and Lt. Governor of Division 8, Rev. Richard Malmquist, also a member of the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

A pass, good for admission to all games, can be purchased at the door for $5. Single admission at the door is $3, and $1. for students 12 to 18 years old. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

Proceeds from the tournament will provide scholarships, camperships, financial assistance to families in need who are recommended by Quincy School guidance personnel as well as continued support for the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center at the New England Medical Center in Boston.

For information regarding specific times of games contact Beverly Reinhardt at the Quincy Youth Arena, telephone 479-8371.

Warren Wins Karate Medals In Italy

Garrett Warren, who owns and operates a martial arts school at 223 Parkway, Quincy, recently returned from the World Karate Championships in Italy with a silver and a bronze medal.

Warren, a second degree black belt, is following in the footsteps of his mentor, Billy Blanks.

He studied at the Billy Blanks school in Quincy and became instructor as he grew older. Blanks taught him success comes through hard work and desire.

Blanks had to close his Dojang after he moved to Hollywood and became an actor/instructor to the actors. He can be seen in Blood Fists (out on video), Tango 'n' Cash and the new Rocky movie.

Blanks and Warren keep in touch with each other as their careers progress.

Warren has been competing for four years. He won the 1989 WAKO-USA national championship held in Madisonville, Ky., last Labor Day weekend and was selected to represent the U.S. in the world championships in Venice last month.

Featured were national teams from over 30 countries, including several eastern block socialist countries.

Warren trained a minimum of six hours a day including weight training, cardiovascular conditioning and fighting in preparation for the championships. He is also a full time student at Northeastern University, majoring in physical therapy.

His combination of talent, hard work and determination were put to the test when, called upon to perform his form (or kata, a series of karate moves), he discovered the music to accompany his form had been taken and, with no time to practice, was forced to use unfamiliar music while improvising a form on the spot in front of the judges. He took a silver medal in spite of the circumstances.

He was dog-tired and drained when it was time for the fighting segment of the competition. He credits a team member, Steve Anderson, for rekindling his spirit. Anderson said, "What would Billy Blanks do if he was in this circumstance?" On that encouraging note, Warren gave his all and took a bronze medal in continuous contact fighting.

While in Italy, he traveled to Florence. He has been invited to return to Italy March 30 to perform his karate and to give seminars to share his knowledge of the sport for a week. Sports promoter Ennio Falsoni will be handling his tour, which will include Rome and Milano.

Warren has had a positive influence on the youth of Quincy and the South Shore.

North Track Teams Finishing In Style

The North Quincy boys' and girls' track teams are wrapping up their indoor season in fine fashion with easy wins over Quincy and many exciting performances in the Reg Auerbach freshman-sophomore meet and the State Relays.

The girls were overwhelmed by powerful Newton North as none took a first place, although there were some good performances.

Taking second places were Amy Wong in the 50, Suzanne Lewis in the mile, Amanda Young in the 600, Jennifer Nutley in the 300 and Sherrin Quintiliani in the two-mile.

Placing third were Tristen Mastrogiacomo in the hurdles, Claire Walsh in the 1000, Ilana Cobban in the 600 and Alana Crehan in the shot put.

In the Auerbach Development Meet, directed by former North coach Lou Tozzi, several of North's younger athletes turned in personal bests. Suzanne Lewis was a close second in the two-mile for North's only medal, but a majority of the performers placed in the Top Ten. Eighteen North boys and girls turned in personal bests or tied old ones.

The North girls overwhelmed the outmanned

Quincy girls, 82-4, and the North boys easily topped an equally outmanned Quincy team, 70-16, in the final dual meets of the season.

Winning for the North girls were Wong in the 50, Nutley in the 300, Mastrogiacomo in the 50 hurdles and shot put, Young in the 600, Claire Walsh, 1000; Julie Tangney, mile; Janet Corrigan, two-mile; Cheryl Kelly and Rebecca Squires, tied in the high jump, and the 4x400 relay team.

Quincy's only scorers were Jackie Potter, third in the 50, and Amy Dunn, second in the 300.

North boys' winners were Wayne Sit in the 50, Tony Anderlonis, 300; Mike Herman, 600; Adam Chansky, 1000; Andy Wohrab, mile and two-mile; Mike Yee, hurdles; sophomore John O'Donnell, who qualified for the state meet with a 5-10 in the high jump; and the 4x400 relay team.

Quincy's Mike Tempesta won the shot put, Matt Noenick was third in the hurdles, Chris Fay third in the 50, Pat Neil second in the shot put and Dan Thacker second in the high jump.

"I was shocked with O'Donnell's performance," coach Peter Chisom said.

"He really got into the competition today (all the league's jumpers compete together) with several clearing personal bests and we showed him an instructional video featuring Olympic calibre jumpers so he can refine his technique."

At the State Coaches Relays at the Commonwealth Armory, three North relay teams picked up medals and many outstanding performances were turned in.

The girls' shot put relay team of Crehan, Voula Regas and Trish McNamara placed fifth and the sprint relay team of Wong, Nutley, Suzanne Hamilton and Aimee Chin took fifth in the shuttle dash and the 4x200. With the exception of Crehan, all the girls are freshmen or sophomores.

The boys' relay teams ran well, although none scored. The hurdle team of Yee, Marc Larson, Greg Buck and Blaine D'Acci ran well as did the shuttle dash team of Sit, Anderlonis, Chris Murray and Yee and the 4x200 team of Sit, Anderlonis, Murray and Josh O'Donnell.

Raiders Shock Brookline, 60-59

The North Quincy boys' basketball team, faced with the task of winning its last six games to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tourney, something that several past teams also faced, gave its tourney hopes a big lift last Friday when it pulled the upset of the season, a 60-59 win over Suburban League-leading Brookline. North improved to 8-8 and Brookline suffered only its second loss in 18 games.

Ted Stevenson's Raiders faced another major task Tuesday at Brockton, will host another league power, Newton North, Friday night at 7 o'clock in the last league game and will be home to B.C. High next Tuesday night at 7:30.

Freshman Sean Donovan was the hero of the big win over Brookline as he went to the foul line with nine seconds to go and calmly hit both shots for the victory.

"This was just a great, great victory and every player contributed to it," said Stevenson. "Donovan showed great poise for a freshman as he hit those two big shots. It was a real team effort and the win should give us some momentum for our last four games."

The teams were tied at 29 at halftime and North held a 49-47 edge going into the fourth quarter.

With 20 seconds to play Brian Curran hit a jumper to give the Raiders the lead. With 16 seconds left Brookline's big scorer, Victor Koytkh, was fouled and hit both shots to regain the lead for Brookline, setting the state for Donovan's heroics.

"Our big man, Erik DeBoer, fouled out late in the game and the other players showed great character as they stayed right in there," Stevenson said.

Angelo Kyranis had a big night for North with 23 points and eight rebounds. DeBoer, the number three scorer in the league, had 15 points before fouling out and Curran, who played one of his best games, had eight points and 11 rebounds.

Donovan and Jeff Calvert had 10 points apiece. "Jeff and Dave Cawthorne played another outstanding defensive game and did a great job on their high scorers," said Stevenson.

Earlier in the week North Quincy defeated Waltham, 72-58, as DeBoer scored 25 points and hit five three pointers.

The 6-5 senior hit four of his three-pointers in the first half and also was six for six at the free throw line. Kyranis and Cawthorne scored 10 points apiece and Curran scored nine.

Hockey

Quincy's Famine Ends With Feast

It was a long time coming, but the Quincy hockey team finally got its first win of the season last week and it was an easy 11-2 decision over Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

However, the Presidents' jubilation didn't last long as they lost to Suburban League power Brookline, 8-6, last Saturday, dropping their record to 1-12-3.

Quincy will host Waltham Saturday at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena and will finish the season Monday at Newton North at 6 o'clock.

The Presidents had everything their own way against Cambridge as sophomore Scott MacPherson, their leading scorer, had a hat trick.

Sean McArdle, Scott Curtin and Paul Shine had two goals each and freshman Jim Smith and Jimmy Schatzl had the other goals.

Goalie Craig Galligan had 15 saves as Quincy took a 4-1 first period lead and added four goals in the second period.

"It was just great for our kids getting their first win," said assistant coach George Peachey. "We have the youngest team in the league with seven freshmen and five sophomores and they have really played hard all year. Despite our record, the kids have improved in every game and the opposing coaches have complimented them for their efforts.

"Things are looking up at Quincy and with the experience these young kids have gained, prospects are good for the next few years."

Brookline, which is battling Brockton for the Suburban League title, was just too much for Quincy last Saturday as it scored five goals in the first period and added three in the second.

— TOM SULLIVAN

North Edged, 2-1 Loses Tourney Berth

The North Quincy hockey team dropped its second straight squeaker, 2-1, to Waltham last Saturday, knocking it out of a tournament berth.

The Raiders, who lost to Newton North, 1-0, in their previous game, dropped to 7-7-2.

North played Suburban League co-leader Brookline Tuesday night and will face the other co-leader, Brockton, Saturday at 4 o'clock at Brockton, Asian Rink.

Injuries hurt the Raiders in the past two games with their top two scorers sitting the game out or playing hurt. Sal Manganaro, the number three scorer in the league with 42 points, sat out the Newton game and played hurt against Waltham. Joe Fasano, the

"It is tough to face these teams with your leading scorers out of action," said coach Dave Peters. "But the defense played very well in the last two games and Pat O'Donoghue played as well as any goalie in the league. I'm very pleased with our season, even though we failed to make the tournament."

Jamie Tapper scored the goal against Waltham with Manganaro and Brian Zimmerman assisting.

Quincy Girls Win 5th

The Quincy girls' basketball team has had a roller coaster season with ups and downs and last week it had an 'up' day as it defeated Newton North, 51-44, for its fifth victory of the season. Quincy improved to 5-11.

The Quincy girls played at Waltham Tuesday and will host Brookline Friday at 5 o'clock.

Junior Jen D'Alessandro led Quincy with 13 points and 10 rebounds against Newton, while Chris Barrett and Amy Baker had 12 points each.

Barrett also had 10 rebounds and six assists and Baker had seven assists.

North Girls Need One Win To Qualify

The North Quincy girls' basketball team still needs one victory to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament after losing two games last week.

Their record dropped to 11-6 with three games remaining.

The North girls faced Brockton, undefeated Suburban League leaders Tuesday, will play at Newton North Friday night at 7:30 and finish up at Barnstable in a non-league game next Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

North dropped a tough 52-48 decision to Brookline last Friday after leading at the half, 27-22. Foul trouble hurt its cause in the second half as Brookline hit 16 free throws in the last two quarters.

Point guard Tricia Hughes picked up her fourth foul and center Joanna Rugnetta her third early in the third quarter. North fell behind, 34-33, going into the fourth quarter.

Tara Miles paced North with 14 points, Kerry Tolson had 13, Hughes 10, Kara Sullivan nine and Rugnetta two.

Earlier in the week North lost to Waltham, 47-37, trailing at the half, 18-12, and being outscored, 14-5, in the third quarter to trail by 15 going into the final session.

Miles had 11 points, freshman Jen Santry eight, Rugnetta six, Tolson five, Hughes four, Kristen Haddigan two and Gina Golden one.

Hazardous Waste Incinerator Documentary On Ch. 3 Thursday

"The Rush To Burn," a 35-minute videotape documenting citizen opposition to hazardous waste incineration in communities throughout the United States will air tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m. on Quincy Community Television Channel 3.

The documentary immediately follows QCTV's "Newsmakers" which features Clean Harbors Chief Executive Officer Alan McKim and Bernice Mader, chairperson of the Quincy Environmental Task Force. They recently debated the proposed hazardous waste incinerator for East Braintree.

"Hazardous waste incineration is a process where we're taking very hazardous waste materials and using old technology without any assurances that the technology is completely destroying them," says Willie Fontenot, Environmental Specialist for the Louisiana Attorney General's office.

The video begins by outlining the limitations of incineration technology: its inability to destroy heavy metals that are carcinogenic, mutagenic and suppress the immune system; the creation of enormous quantities of toxic ash that pose a new disposal dilemma; and the fact that it discourages industries from reducing waste at the source.

Local citizens describe their struggles against proposed and existing facilities throughout the country. The video shows struggles against incinerators in Louisiana, Georgia and Chicago.

The documentary was produced by Chris Bedford and Foongy Kyo Lee of Organizing Media in Washington, D.C. It is available to the public for $19.95 (plus $4 shipping and handling) through Greenpeace Films, 1436 U Street NW, Washington, D.C., 20009, (202) 462-1177.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Valentine's Day is for children, lovers and romantics. Well, essentially, yes, but when it comes to affairs of the heart, everyone is included.

Valentines need not be expensive. A happy note written in your own handwriting ... a telephone call to someone who might not otherwise receive a call.

Some people find it hard to say "I love you," but on Valentine's Day they express that sentiment with special remembrances or gifts. It is also a day that "mushy" sentiments on brightly colored paper are not really taken seriously (i.e. Valentines exchanged by children at school). There, the important thing is the number of valentines received, not the sentiment. As people mature, the sentiment becomes more important than the number.

It takes only a little time to send a valentine, or a note, or to make a telephone call to someone, especially someone who is a little "out of circulation" these days. A little surprise gift will make that someone feel special, and you'll feel good too!

2 Police Officers Cited For Preventing Possible Gang Shootout

Two Quincy police officers have been commended for their professionalism and strategy which prevented a possible shootout in a residential neighborhood last May.

Officer John Grazioso and Detective Robert Curtis were commended by the Southeast Massachusetts Police Chiefs Association for foiling a robbery attempt near Governors Rd. in West Quincy last May 21. The three suspects who surrendered were members of a Cantonese gang working out of Boston.

Grazioso responded to a call of "suspicious parties" in the area of Governors Rd. Upon his arrival, he observed three male suspects crouched next to a black motor vehicle parked in front of one of the homes of that street.

Believing these men might be armed, Grazioso noted the vehicle's registration number just before it sped away. The three men then proceeded to walk single file.

Grazioso parked his vehicle across the street at an angle which protected him from any possible gunfire. He then radioed for assistance.

Curtis, knowing the history of robberies and assaults at the address, was already enroute to the scene and within seconds, he observed Grazioso and the three suspects.

Inside an unmarked vehicle, Curtis casually drove around and parked nearer to the men and he, too, protected himself from any possible gunfire.

Both officers then ordered the suspects to "halt."

After several attempts to flee, the three men finally surrendered to the officers. After a thorough investigation, it was established that the suspects were members of a Cantonese gang working out of Boston and the vehicle involved was located in Chinatown.

For their professionalism in averting serious violence, Grazioso and Curtis were commended by Joachim-Ingo Borowski, president of the Southeast Mass. Police Chiefs Association and chief of Hingham Police.

The officers also received special citations from City Council President Ted DeCristofaro.

The awards ceremony was held at the Common Market Restaurant in West Quincy.

Sheets Seeks Budget Extension To Study Cuts

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets has asked the commissioner of the state Department of Revenue for a 30-day extension in submitting the city's FY 1991 budget so that the school, police and fire departments can examine cuts more closely.

Last week, the mayor ordered all city departments to reduce their budgets by six percent to help balance next year's budget. The six percent "across-the-board-cuts" will help offset a projected $15 million deficit next year.

The rest of the shortfall will be made up by a sewer user fee which the City Council was expected to pass Tuesday night.

Last week, Sheets asked Edward Collins, Deputy Commissioner of Local Aid Services for the Department of Revenue, to extend the April 3rd budget submission deadline to May 3. The mayor's request came one day after the School Committee voted unanimously for the extension.

"Obviously, the reason for this is to allow a broader time frame for making the necessary cuts in our budget," Sheets told Collins in a letter.

As of Tuesday, Sheets had not heard from Collins. However, the mayor is hopeful since Collins granted an extension to all 351 cities and towns last year.

Besides School Supt. Dr. Ricci and the School Committee, Sheets said he

School Committee Calls Special Meeting On State Cuts Effects

The School Committee has invited the city's legislative delegation to a special meeting Wednesday, Feb. 28 at 7 p.m. in the media center at Quincy High School.

The committee is concerned about the impact of state budget cuts on education and the possibility of Chapter 70 funds being reduced in June.

Chapter 70 money is specifically earmarked for education and "is precisely what the governor has indicated that he will hold up" to balance the state's $500 million shortfall, said Mayor James A. Sheets who is also chairman of the School Committee.

The Quincy School Department must cut $2.2 million before fiscal 1991 begins July 1. Sheets said the committee wants to know how the state's budget crisis is going to affect education here.

"It's hard to do long range fiscal planning when the future's so bleak," Sheets said Tuesday.

"(The committee) has a lot of questions they would like to be answered."

Sheets noted that Quincy is expecting $3.7 million in Chapter 70 funds as part of a $15-$16 million local aid package this spring.

If the Chapter 70 money is withheld, Sheets said he would try to make up for that deficit in FY 1992.

"It would be very difficult to deal with another $3.7 million deficit. We would have to roll that into FY 1992." However, Sheets is unsure whether he could do that.

The mayor would try to roll the deficit into FY 1992 because he believes the city is confronting enough budget cuts for FY 1991. The mayor has ordered six percent cuts in all departments to offset a $15 million shortfall in FY 1991.

As of Tuesday, Sheets had not heard from Senator Paul Harold and Representatives Michael Morrissey, Robert Cerasoli and Steve Tobin.

John Keenan Named To Zoning Appeals Board

Atty. John F. Keenan, 83 Lincoln St., Wollaston, has been appointed to the Zoning Board of Appeals by Mayor James A. Sheets.

Keenan replaces Atty. Peter F. MacDonald as the attorney appointment to the board.

He is employed by the law firm Boudreau, Burke, McMenimen and Barber of Boston. A 1986 graduate of Harvard University and 1989 graduate of Suffolk University Law School, Keenan is a member of the Boston Bar Association.

JOHN KEENAN

Active in the community, he is currently chairman for the Mayor's Commission on Handicapped Affairs, vice president of the Quincy Citizens Association, and a member of the Wollaston Park Association Board of Directors and Quincy City Club.

In 1987, Keenan was narrowly defeated by Charles Phelan for the Ward 5 council seat. A three-time elected delegate to the Massachusetts Democratic State Convention, he chaired the Ward 5 Committee to Elect Jim Sheets Mayor last year.

Restaurant Appeals License Suspension

Peter Kelly, owner of Kelly's in The Square restaurant, Cottage Ave., has appealed the recent Quincy License Board decision to suspend his license for a period of five days.

Kelly will appear before the state Alcoholic Beverage

Control Commission on Thursday, March 8.

The state hearing will determine whether or not to uphold the decision of the license board to suspend Kelly's license based on alleged violations of the city closing regulations and city fire regulations last December.

Board Chairman John Gillis said that a member of the Quincy Fire Department and an Assistant City Solicitor will attend the state hearing on behalf of the city.

Kolson Submits 17 More Parcels For Open Space

Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson was expected to submit 17 parcels of land at Tuesday's City Council meeting, making a total of 41 to be rezoned open space. Kolson has already referred 24 parcels to the Quincy Planning Board to be rezoned open space.

According to Kolson, all these properties are in tax-title taking by the City of Quincy and would be consistent with the residential flavor of Ward 1.

It would also ensure that the character and beauty of these parcels of land will be preserved for the future.

$57 Million Contract For Interim Sludge Facility Construction

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has awarded a $57 million construction contract for the interim sludge processing facility at the Fore River staging area in Quincy.

The interim sludge facility is part of the $6 billion Boston Harbor Cleanup project. The facility is scheduled to operate from 1991 to 1995.

The contract, the largest approved by the MWRA to date, was awarded to Kiewit Eastern Company. Its terms include construction of the pelletizing facility as well as all necessary machinery, utilities and rehabilitation to existing structures within the area.

Kiewit, which has regional offices in Southborough, submitted the lowest of five bids and meets the MWRA's Minority Business Enterprise/Women's Business Enterprise requirements.

Commenting on the contract, MWRA Executive Director Paul Levy said, "This is a true indication of the progress we are making. The award of this contract marks the end of five years of planning and designing and the beginning of the construction phase at the Fore River staging area."

"When the new facility goes on line in 1991, it will be the first time in over 100 years that sludge, a primary pollutant to the Harbor, is prevented from tainting our waters."

The interim sludge facility, which will occupy approximately five acres of land, will process 500,000 gallons of sludge per day that are now discharged into Boston Harbor. The sludge will be converted into roughly 70 tons per day of fertilizer pellets.

The MWRA also awarded a separate construction contract for $4.2 million to the John Mahoney Construction Co., Inc., of Milton for the reconstruction of Pier 3 at the staging area which abuts the shipping channel that will serve as the off-loading terminal for barges transporting liquid sludge from the Deer Island and Nut Island waste water treatment plants. Mahoney was the lowest of 11 bidders and meets all the MWRA's MBE/WBE requirements.

QCA Supports Lawsuits Against MWRA, Fighting Waste Incinerator

The Quincy Citizens Association has informed Mayor James A. Sheets that it supports the city's fight against a proposed MWRA permanent sludge facility and a hazardous waste incinerator in the Fore River industrial basin.

In a letter written by QCA President Arthur Chandler, the association congratulates Sheets for initiating two lawsuits against the MWRA to prevent the locating of sludge-processing plants in the former General Dynamics shipyard.

In another letter, Chandler told the mayor that the QCA is "very happy that you and the city councillors are now actively participating with Braintree, Weymouth and other South Shore towns in the fight to prevent Clean Harbors from getting a license to locate a new hazardous waste processing plant on the shores of the Fore River."

Chandler noted that a bill sponsored by the QCA has been filed by Representative Suzanne Bump of Braintree, which if enacted, would prevent the siting of any hazardous waste plant in Massachusetts within a two-mile radius of any residential area.

"Between the hazardous waste plant and sludge processing plant, the health and welfare of all South Shore residents is at serious risk, but we trust that 'Right will win out' and that both plants will be shunted to remote areas where their threats to humanity are negligible," he said.

Chandler noted that for 20 years, the QCA has advocated upstream sewerage plants be built in local communities where the sewerage is generated, rather than bringing it all to Boston Harbor via Deer Island and Quincy.

"We trust that Quincy's court cases will reveal the deficiencies of MWRA's engineering and design, in as much as the sludge would be brought to Quincy in liquid form and the liquid discharged into conduits frequently unable to handle additional periodic volume overflows into Boston Harbor.

"The sludge incinerator fumes would be noxious in the densely populated residential areas abutting the shipyard; there is probably no sure market for the sewerage pellets that would contain cooked-in hazardous materials that would poison the land, and might end up being stockpiled on shipyard property--thus earning Quincy the uncomplimentary title of 'Sludge Capitol of Massachusetts' devaluing the city as a whole," Chandler said.

"We agree wholeheartedly with your view that the proposed siting of such an undesirable, hazardous, polluting and incompatible industry is the worst thing that has ever been contemplated for Quincy, our historic 'City of Presidents'."

"Your action in filing the suits against the MWRA is the right course to take, and our association thanks you sincerely," he added.

Committee To Study Cultural Center Need

The Quincy Cultural Center Committee will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room of new City Hall to begin the process of studying the feasibility of constructing a cultural center in Quincy.

Explaining Quincy's need for a cultural center, Chairman Michael Cheney noted there is no single location for the arts in the city. A center would provide a place for small theater groups, school groups and "plays of all sorts" to perform, Cheney explained.

He also said there is no "real home" for the Quincy Symphony Orchestra. The QSO presently plays at North Quincy High School.

In addition, Cheney pointed out that the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater is limited to outdoor events.

"By having a cultural center, we would be able to have the same types of events year round. We would be able to bring in big name bands for concerts. We would be able to have plays similar to what the Wang Center brings.

"I think it's an exciting opportunity for the city of Quincy for residents of all ages," Cheney added.

Part of the function of the eight-member committee will be to determine a site and identify funds to build and maintain the center.

Constructing and maintaining a cultural center would require a corporate sponsor such as Wang or IBM, Cheney said.

"The city couldn't afford to fund the center at this point. It's important not to use tax dollars at such a critical time," he said.

It will take the committee about six months to look into the center's feasibility and location as well as define the center's use and groups most likely to use it, Cheney said.

"I think if you offer a wide variety, I think everyone would attend."

After the study is completed, the committee would move into the implementation stage. The committee would form a non-profit organization or join a non-profit organization which would be responsible for operating and maintaining the center as well as scheduling performances.

Cheney said he wanted to work on establishing a cultural center during his campaign for councillor-at-large. However, he said the project is "more than just a campaign promise" because "a city our size should have a cultural center."

He said he got the idea for the center after attending a show at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater last summer. He was pleased by the joy the show brought to senior citizens and other residents but thought "what a shame to just have this kind of entertainment two months out of the year."

The committee will tour at least two successful centers and talk to its board of directors. The members will also seek advice and find out why their centers have been successful.

"I can envision everything from ballet to child and adult theater workshops. This would allow community and civic groups to put on plays at the cultural center.

"There are very few halls in Quincy that have the acoustics that do justice to plays," he said.

Cheney said he hopes to present the feasibility study to the City Council by June.

"We hope to pick a site by that date," he said.

Besides Cheney, other committee members are:

Discussion Continued On Drive-Through Window At Burger King

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday continued for one week a discussion regarding the installation of a drive-through window and a menu board at Burger King on Adams St.

The window has been in operation since Jan. 27.

The board this week received a communication from Mayor James Sheets who said he believed the installation of the window was done without prior approval from the License Board.

Atty. Kent Wicker of Boston, representing Burger King, told the board the establishment was unaware of the need for approval of the board. He said the original common victualer license, issued in August of 1963, included a restriction only on the hours of operation of the restaurant.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey told Atty.

Wicker that "any alteration of an existing building requires a permit from the Building Department according to City Ordinance."

He said his department has no record of any communication whatsoever from Burger King on the matter.

Wicker said that the drive-through window does not "alter" the building, as only a pane of glass was replaced.

However, Mulvey said the menu board is considered a sign by the building department and as such, requires a permit.

"The city codes are clear cut," Mulvey said. "There are very minor things that you can do to a building without a permit from the city."

Mulvey requested a one-week continuation in order to review the plot plans for the establishment. After reviewing the plan, he said, he will make a determination as to whether the alteration is in compliance with the zoning bylaws of the city.

The board considered having the drive through window closed during the one week continuation, but Wicker said it would have "a significant effect on business."

The board did not order the window closed.

Daffodil Days For Cancer March 20-21

Over 100,000 golden daffodils will burst into bloom in nine South Shore communities March 20-21 as the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society stages its annual Daffodil Days to benefit the research, education and service to cancer patients throughout the area.

"Last year people here bought about 115,000 daffodils even though cold weather on the West Coast forced a delay in deliveries," Pauline Sweeney of Quincy, one of the co-chairmen of this year's effort says. "And we hope to do even better this year."

Orders are being taken now for the bright yellow blooms and volunteers will be selling them at various locations after delivery beginning on March 20. Deadline for the advance orders is March 7. They may be placed by calling Mrs. Sweeney at 773-8226. A bouquet of 10 is $4, and a box of 500 is $200.

The South Shore Unit of the Society carries on its program of help for cancer patients in Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Scituate and Weymouth. More than 1400 businesses and individuals in these towns, many of them purchasers of daffodils in the past, have been contacted by volunteers for support this year.

Serving with Mrs. Sweeney as co-chairmen are her husband, Dennis, and Barbara Sullivan of Braintree. Representatives in each of the towns are assisting in the project.

HAVE YOU ANY IDEA HOW MUCH YOUR POSSESSIONS ARE REALLY WORTH?

Can you remember the value of every item you own... items that you've accumulated through the years which have undoubtedly grown markedly in value each year?

To adequately ensure replacement protection of your belongings it is essential that you keep track of both what you own and how much it is worth. Make a list of your possessions, the approximate date of purchase, their original cost, and the rooms in your home where they are presently situated.

A Personal Inventory can pay off twofold. It can save you perhaps thousands of dollars should your home be destroyed. If you can remember the value of each item. Secondly, it can help determine how much insurance you really need.

We recommend further that you I.D. valuables with personal numbers to help regain them in the event of theft. And lastly, we suggest you photograph each room in your house after you have inventoried its contents.

We're willing to wager you'll be utterly astonished at the actual worth of your valuables and also perhaps by the inadequacy of your current insurance.

Kaufman Sitting It Out

If this year's Republican gubernatorial candidate — Steven Pierce or William Weld — is counting on a now well known helping hand from Washington, it looks like he will be disappointed.

There has been media speculation that Quincy's Ron Kaufman, who worked for George Bush in Massachusetts, will be coming back to wave his campaign magic wand over either Pierce or Weld after the state convention.

KAUFMAN

But Kaufman's close friend, and former mentor, Mayor James Sheets, is pretty certain that Kaufman, who is now Deputy Director of Personnel at the White House will sit this election out in Washington.

"He doesn't sound like he is going to get involved," says Sheets, who visited with Kaufman in Washington a few weeks ago.

"Ronnie likes the campaign trail," Sheets acknowledges.

But he feels Kaufman won't hit that trail again until Bush's bid for a second term in 1992.

Kaufman is a former student of Sheets at Quincy Junior College and campaigned for Sheets in the latter's first bid for Ward 4 City Councillor 17 years ago.

He helped get Sheets elected. But, of course, he's now more famous for helping to get Bush elected.

As New England campaign coordinator for Bush, Kaufman put together some political goodies to help crush Michael Dukakis.

Kaufman is credited with staging Bush's Boston Harbor pollution extravaganza under Dukakis' nose. And, lining up the Boston Police Patrolmen's union endorsement of Bush over Dukakis. That was sort of like thumbing their nose at Beacon Hill.

And then to top it off Kaufman dug up Willie Horton and hung him around Dukakis' neck. Dukakis may still be having nightmares of Willie.

CARD

Kaufman's brother-in-law, former state Rep. Andy Card of Holbrook, who is now Deputy Chief of Staff under John Sununu also had a hand in pulling the rug from under Dukakis in his own back yard.

Card, for awhile, was toying with the idea of running for governor this year but changed his mind.

Sheets, a Democrat, thinks Card, a Republican would have had a good shot at the governor's office this year.

Kaufman might have come back to campaign for him.

But it looks like neither Weld nor Pierce will have Kaufman by his side for the final run against the Democratic candidate.

"Ronnie," says Sheets, "has become a legend in Washington."

And he means Kaufman. Not Reagan.

RICHARD KOCH, JR., who gave up his City Council at-large seat and a promising political career in the mid 1980's to move to the Cape and become a police officer apparently hasn't gotten politics out of his system.

Koch was recently elected chairman of the Barnstable Democratic Town Committee.

Tom Koch, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets, says his brother is looking forward to his "new assignment." Hmm!

Both are the sons of the late Richard Koch, Sr., executive secretary to the Quincy Park-Recreation Board and a long-time political power in the city.

Young Dick at one time was considered mayoral timber but he was more interested in a career in law enforcement.

KOCH

A LITTLE ITEM here last week regarding Grace Giunchiglia's return to City Hall as Mayor Sheets secretary, has created a reunion in-the-making.

Gertrude Callahan Monahan, former head librarian at the Thomas Crane Public Library now living in Randolph is a Quincy Sun mail subscriber and spotted the item.

She called Grace at City Hall to congratulate her and chat about the good old days of the 1950's and 1960's.

The two of them and Gertrude McGill, who was then City Personnel Director, used to go out for lunch or dinner together. McGill is now living in Marblehead.

The three of them will now get together in Marblehead when the weather gets a little warmer and have a luncheon or dinner reunion.

Just like the good old days.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter (and from wherever they got it): Just because you find fault doesn't mean you have to report it.

Readers Forum Concerned Over Expanding Recycling

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am concerned about the city's plans to expand the recycling program to include glass, metal, plastics and leaves.

I support the concept of recycling, but the fact is that voluntary recycling of newspapers has been, to date, a failure. Adding more items now seems rather pointless, unless the program is made mandatory, and that is where I part company with recycling advocates. I admire politicians who lead, and I can live with those who merely follow, but I deeply resent and fear those who want to mandate. Synonyms for mandate are order, decree, impose, command, require, dictate. The Junior-grade Napoleons of this world who are sure they know what's best for us and who insist we obey their orders strip us of our free choices and reduce us to serfdom.

Would we soon have block captains and trash monitors checking on our compliance? Will school children be asked to turn in their parents if a tin can is tossed in the wrong barrel? Most of the problems we face in today's society stem from too much government intrusion into our daily lives. We surely don't need more. As the rest of the world moves toward greater freedom, we seem to be heading in the opposite direction.

A popular song of a few years back said something like "You can't even run your own life, I'll be damned if you'll run mine." I second that sentiment. My message to petty tyrants is "Get off our backs!"

Keep the program, but keep it voluntary. We don't like mandates.

Sheets Seeks Budget Extension To Study Cuts

believes Police Chief Francis Finn and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell could also use the extension since all three departments face "deep cuts."

"The extension will affect the school department, particularly if they get into closing a middle school or shifting the fifth grade into the middle school and eighth grade into the high school. That's a lot of options."

"As for the other city departments, if we're looking at ending some police programs or closing a fire station, then we could use additional time working with the police chief and fire chief. "I think the six percent cuts are deep cuts that reduce the level of services in the fire department, possibly the police department and certainly have a deep impact on educational services."

In particular, the mayor noted the impact on the school department which must cut $2.2 million.

"The School Committee is really under the gun. I certainly hope Edward Collins extends the time."

Ricci is considering several options to fund the school department at $36.76 million as compared to $38 million last year. They include:

- Consolidating one or two middle schools.

- Shifting the fifth grade into the middle schools and the eighth grade into the high schools.

- Cut bus service to students who live closer than a mile from school.

- Sell the old Lincoln School or one or both of the houses used for administrative offices.

- Increase class size. Ricci is scheduled to present his budget recommendations to the School Committee March 7. A public hearing on the school budget is set for March 21.

The School Committee must then give final approval and the budget will then be submitted to the mayor by Ricci March 28.

According to O'Connell, the city will lose 15 of its 180 firefighters and possibly close one or two fire stations.

The current $10.1 million fire budget must be cut by $608,271.

As for impact on police, Finn said the department can reduce its current $11.2 million budget by $677,045 without cutting manpower.

Without the sewer user fee, Sheets said budget cuts would go from "deep" to "devastating."

"These are deep cuts with the sewer user fee but devastating cuts without the sewer user fee. I think it should make it clear how devastating cutting $9 million more (out of the budget) would be."

"If you had to cut $9 million more, I would say $4.5 million would come out of education. It would be devastating on education, fire and police service."

The fee is expected to raise $9.5 million next year.

Commenting on the school options, Sheets, a former instructor at Quincy Junior College, said he would "carefully weigh" restructuring the fifth and eighth grade class.

Furthermore, he said closing a middle school raises the question of which one. He also wonders how reduced bus service will affect families.

Technically, the mayor is required to submit the entire city budget 90 days after the organizational meeting which this year was held Jan. 2. Without the extension, that day is April 2.

Sheets will begin going over department budgets and meet with each department head in an attempt to finalize each department budget by mid-March. He hopes budgets can be printed out and ready for the City Council by April 2.

The school budget goes through a slightly different process than other city budgets. A public hearing must be held (scheduled for March 21) and then the school committee must give final approval.

The budget is then submitted to the mayor. Without an extension, that day is March 28.

Sheets noted that if the city does not receive an extension, he would have only three days to change the school budget's bottom line because the entire budget must be submitted April 2.

Once submitted, the City Council has 45 days to enact the entire city budget. The council can only cut the budget, not add to it.

The mayor can cut and add to the budget.

If the council does not enact the budget within 45 days of submission, the budget becomes law without council approval.

Time Bomb Damages WMEX Facility

The transmitting plant of Boston radio station WMEX on West Squantum St., North Quincy, was damaged sometime during the night by a time bomb that was exploded at the base of one of the towers.

Feb. 22-28

1961

29 Years Ago

The engineer on duty said he heard what sounded like an explosion about 10:30 p.m. but debris from the blast was not discovered until the following afternoon and the station remained on the air.

Workers found a small alarm clock, a set of dry cell batteries and fragments of the bomb casing in the marsh.

Quincy police theorized that the planting of the bomb was tied in with a WMEX talk show hosted by the controversial radio personality Jerry Williams, dealing with civil rights.

SHEA PUSHES BUSES

Rep. Charles L. Shea (D-Quincy) advocated privately franchised bus service from Quincy Sq. to South Station instead of state-operated rapid transit, which, he said, "tends to become a burden on taxpayers."

"Transportation on rubber wheels, either by bus or by automobile, is the coming thing," he told a transportation meeting of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Bus routes can be changed as the needs develop, he said, while rails must remain in the same location.

College Opportunity Fund Keeps Pace With Rising Tuition Costs

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) announces a new program recently signed into law by Governor Dukakis insures a family's tuition savings against rising college costs.

The College Opportunity Fund, a first-in-the-nation program, encourages families to save for college by guaranteeing that those savings will keep pace with tuition increases.

During its first year, the program is expected to help thousands of families save for participating public and private colleges in Massachusetts. Plans call for the program to be made available to out-of-state students at some point in the future. Morrissey endorses this plan.

The College Opportunity Fund allows families to purchase tax-exempt, municipal minibonds in amounts as low as $50 years before the child is ready to attend college. The bonds are worth a predetermined percentage will remain fixed-locking in tomorrow's costs at today's prices. When the bonds are redeemed at the participating college, their value will be at least the tuition percentage established at the time of purchase. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts guarantees that the redeemed bond will pay at the rate equal to the average increase in college costs. And, participating institutions will guarantee that the savings will equal their individual college increase.

The College Opportunity Fund is designed for those middle class families who would need assistance in financing their child's college education. The program encourages these families to make plans early to pay for tuition instead of relying on unknown sources when their children are about to enter college.

For instance, the Smith family of Boston, has a five-year old daughter, Amy. In their first year of saving, they commit to save $50 a month through the College Opportunity Fund. At the end of the first year, they will have saved $600 which represents 40 percent of the current cost of Public College x's total first-year tuition of $1,500 or six percent of Private College Y's tuition tab of $10,000.

Rice Cakes

A Recipe To Rave About

Recently, I was a guest at the Mother's and Other's Club and was asked to give a cooking demonstration. Since in the past few years, I have been a guest there, I had to come up with something different. I decided on my rice cake recipe. It won raves, and I noted that several of the women were writing down the recipe.

RICE CAKES

1 Cup rice (well Done)
1 egg
½ Cup grated parmesan or romano cheese
2 or 3 Tbsps shredded cheddar or mozzarella cheese
1 quarter cup flour
½ Cup ground beef (cooked)
I used a pork sausage cut up very small
Salt and pepper to taste

COATING FOR RICE CAKES

Corn flake crumbs mixed with seasoned bread crumbs
1 egg

After the rice is cooked add all other ingredients (except ingredients for coating). Mixture will be easy to handle. Form a ball and then roll in the egg and then the bread crumb mixture. Heat about a half cup of oil until very hot. Press rice ball down a bit until it looks more like a cake and fry, turning until both sides are brown. Drain on a paper towel. These can be made ahead and put in a warming oven (225). They go very well with any kind of meat in place of plain rice or potatoes.

Marie D'Olimpio is the author of "Simply Italian-And Then Some," a collection of her own recipes. Copies of the book are available at Previte's Market, Sumner St., Quincy Point, Samoset Pharmacy, Samoset Ave., Merrymount and Winfield Gift Emporium, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The course helps participants identify stress in their lives and learn to handle it. A certified instructor leads the course through practical self-help techniques, designed to minimize frustration, anger and anxiety.

The program emphasizes turning stress into positive energy through time management and goal-setting.

Each participant receives a comprehensive course booklet, which includes sections on stress on the job and relaxation techniques.

A Chance With Acupuncture

By DANIEL S. KARP
Licensed Acupuncturist

The idea that a pinprick can cure an illness is foreign to our thinking.

However, we cannot dispute the fact that acupuncture works, as expressed by Walter R. Tkach, M.D., physician to former President Nixon, who said:

"It would be foolish to ignore this startling development in medicine... There is no doubt that acupuncture is a genuine and valuable technique."

The difference between western medicine and acupuncture is that western medicine repairs structural damage, whereas acupuncture repairs abnormal function of the tissues and organs of the body by restoring the normal flow of electrical energy responsible for regulating the function of an organ. Acupuncture has the unique ability to correct an impaired flow of electrical energy.

Here are ailments which lend themselves well to acupuncture treatment. The NONPAINFUL ailments are various skin diseases; insomnia; dizziness; epilepsy; nervous tension; dry or tired eyes; poor vision; dry mouth or too much saliva; excessive sweating; tight jaw muscles; difficulty in opening the mouth; chronic cough; hiccup; speech difficulty; asthma; stopped-up nose; cold hands or feet; numbness and/or weakness of the arm, hand, finger or leg; poor stomach or gallbladder; hypoglycemia; bad digestion; constipation; gas; hemorrhoids; swollen ankles; lack of vitality; menstrual or menopausal symptoms; urinary frequency; high blood pressure; and substance abuse: cigarettes, alcohol, and drugs.

These are PAINFUL ailments which similarly respond to acupuncture treatment well: headaches; facial pain; pain of the neck, shoulder, arm, hand, finger, hip, leg, heel, foot or toe; low back or knee pain; menstrual pain; inability to raise arm; shingles; traumatic injury from accidents (no fractures); muscle cramps; stomach ache of functional cause; and gout pain.

One happy patient said: "There are hundreds of thousands of desperate people who could be helped—if only their prejudice could be overcome."

For further information, please call Daniel S. Karp, Licensed Acupuncturist (617) 471-5577.

The Secret Of Healthy Eating

By Dr. GEORGE BLACKBURN

There's a little secret I tell my patients struggling to control their weight.

Until now I have saved this secret for people walking into our clinics who are obsessed with food. But now that obsession is spreading.

The newscasters and advertisers feed on every nugget of nutrition research. Vitamins, calcium, salt, sugar. We follow these nutrients like the stock exchange. We've never been so attentive to healthy eating, but the rules have never seemed so complicated.

The biggest commotion is over cholesterol. The American Heart Association is in the midst of a national education campaign on the subject, and the typical patient we see has been educated in bewilderment.

Some cholesterol is good. Some cholesterol is bad. Coffee is bad; decaf is bad. Oat bran is first good, now bad. It's breakthrough after breakthrough. My patients are losing their patience. They have to check the morning paper for permission to fix their breakfast.

Consider the reaction to a new study debunking oat bran, recently published in the New England Journal of Medicine. Essentially, this study showed that oat bran failed to lower cholesterol levels of young dietitians with extraordinarily healthy diets.

Fair enough. But that's not quite the message that's reached the public. Instead, the same media fervor that made oat bran a miracle now makes it out a myth.

The problem? You can't follow medical research like a murder case. Every new study is a sliver of truth, to be placed into a whole by continuing peer review. More than a few deadlines will have to pass before these complexities are fully understood.

Yet advertisers love to capitalize on all the hubbub, drumming up business with half-truths. Some American soybean producers are quick to criticize "tropical oils" from competitors in Malaysia or the Philippines. Cookie-makers brag brazenly of "No Tropical Oils" on otherwise unhealthy products. Diet-mongers are often the worst: cranking out me-too miracle diets to ape whatever approach is in medical favor.

No wonder my patients are frustrated. At the Center for Nutritional Research, our physicians and nurses spend half their time sweeping away all the 95% fact-free flimflam, before we can build new habits from scratch.

The fact is that the secret of healthy eating isn't all that complicated. We've been helping patients control their weight for over twenty years now. Our own research confirms what the American Heart Association has been saying for some time.

Here's the secret: Don't eat more than thirty percent of your daily calories from fat—any fat.

Of course, eat moderately. If you're interested, the American Heart Association also recommends 48% from complex carbohydrates, 12% protein, 10% refined sugars.

But if you concentrate on reducing your intake of fat, everything else should fall into place.

You'll eat more carbohydrates, more fiber, less sugar. If you're too heavy, you'll lose weight. (Regular exercise helps too.) Chances are you'll control your cholesterol, and you'll reduce your risk of heart disease.

Sounds too simple? Well, it's easier advice for some people to follow than for others. We spend a lot of time teaching patients the behavioral skills and nutritional habits to stay on track. We spend nearly as much time showing them how their own actions can subvert their best intentions. And some people with special illnesses have special requirements.

But for most healthy people, the 30 percent rule is the only scientific breakthrough you need to get through breakfast.

(George Blackburn, M.D., Ph.D. is Medical Director of the Center for Nutritional Research, a nutrition medicine center based in Wellesley. He is also an associate professor of surgery at Harvard Medical School.)

HEALTH HINTS

Are you under stress? Do you go out in the sun, eat sweets, drink fruit juices, go out in the cold, or just get tired?

Most people do at one time or another, which may account for the prevalence of cold and cancer sores in the population. Doctors estimate that roughly half of all Americans are affected by cold or cancer sores each year. Cold sores are caused by the herpes simplex I virus and are brought on by fatigue, stress, fever or exposure to sunlight or cold. The cause of cancer sores, which occur inside the mouth, is unknown, but doctors believe they may be triggered by eating sweets, biting the inside of the gum, stress or fatigue.

In the past, both types of sores have been difficult to treat because they attack moist tissue, where traditional salves and ointments cannot adhere for long. Fortunately, pharmacists now have ZILACTIN®, a new, medicated gel that forms a flexible, bio-adhesive film on cold and cancer sores. Once applied, ZILACTIN sticks to the sore for hours, providing lasting pain relief. Recent clinical studies have shown the product to be superior to other cold and cancer sore remedies on the market.

WHIPLASH

The term "whiplash" is most often used to describe a type of neck injury that occurs when a person is involved in a "rear-end" automobile accident. The sudden jolt from behind causes the unsuspecting driver's neck to snap backwards quickly, and then whip forward violently. This rapid bending backwards and forward, or hyperextension-hyperflexion, of the neck injures the neck muscles and ligaments which support the neck and oftentimes displaces one or more of the neck bones.

Some whiplash injuries cause immediate problems, but it is not unusual for hours, days or even weeks to pass before the neck, back, or head pain becomes evident. Every day people walk away from accidents believing that they are not seriously hurt because they did not lose any blood or because they were told at the emergency room that there were no broken bones. The misalignment of the neck bones caused by the whiplash injury may lead to neck pain or stiffness, headaches, dizziness, blurred vision, nausea, and swelling, tingling or numbness in the shoulders, arms, hands and fingers.

After any incident in which your neck may have been injured, even if the symptoms are not immediately apparent, it is essential that you have an examination by someone who is trained to examine the spine and related structures. Chiropractors understand the dynamics of the whiplash injury and are especially skilled in treating such conditions.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, North Quincy - 773-4400.

Too Many People Enter a Nursing Home for the Wrong Reason

For some, a nursing home is an appropriate, compassionate setting. However, MEDI's Adaptive Living Communities may be an appropriate, less expensive alternative for those who

- find it difficult living alone;
- have had a mild stroke; or
- have a fractured hip.

MEDI communities, located in luxury, residential buildings, will make available the services needed to avoid unnecessary nursing home placement.

If you'd like to discuss your options, please call 617/786-0188. After all, the alternative you seek might be as easy as a phone call.

Medical Enterprise Development, Inc.

Adaptive Living Communities are not nursing homes and are not covered by Medicare or Medicaid

New Scientific Evidence Shows 'Asbestos Panic' Unwarranted

Citing a Harvard University symposium's finding that asbestos in buildings is less dangerous than drinking water in Miami, the former president of the Institute of Real Estate Management (IREM) says the U.S. must replace its current "fiber phobia" thinking with responses more appropriate to the actual health risk.

"When an issue such as asbestos contamination seizes the public's consciousness, too often emotion, not reason, prevails," states Robert D. Shreve, CPM®. "The result has been too many asbestos management decisions based on partial knowledge and incomplete analysis."

Anxious to comply with the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act of 1986 and respond to public concern, school districts and building owners have been scrambling to remove asbestos from their sites as quickly as possible. While Shreve agrees that asbestos is a critical problem, he feels the Harvard study is powerful evidence that this well-intentioned but hasty action is often unnecessary.

The International Symposium on the Health Aspects of Exposure to Asbestos in Buildings, co-sponsored by the IREM Foundation, brought together North American and European environmental experts to consolidate and summarize available scientific data on the subject.

Their conclusion, published in August 1989, is that the health threat from asbestos is "far less than most other common environmental health risks." The chance of premature death from asbestos in school buildings, the study found, is 1 in 100,000, compared to 400 in 100,000 from radon and 7 in 100,000 from Miami drinking water.

Shreve, vice president of the Macner Company, AMO®, Omaha, sees these findings as an important step forward.

"The safety of school children, office workers, and apartment residents depends on building owners and managers making the best possible decisions on managing hazardous substances," he notes. "Without scientifically proven data, forming correct strategies is impossible."

Shreve made these comments in an article in the December issue of the Journal of Property Management. Free copies of the article are available from the Journal at P.O. Box 109025, Chicago, Ill. 60610-9025, (312) 661-1930. Annual subscriptions to JPM can be ordered for $28.95. Copies of the Harvard symposium report can be purchased for $15 from IREM at the same address.

The Journal of Property Management, IREM's official bimonthly publication, is designed to keep the real estate industry, government officials, and the public informed about the property management and asset management fields.

REACH Projects Displayed At Montclair School

Students in Quincy's 10 elementary schools and their Rich Experiences and Challenging Horizons (REACH) projects were recently featured at a "Celebration of Academic Excellence" display held at the Montclair School.

The REACH program is an enrichment program for academically talented third and fourth graders. It is a modification of Dr. Joseph Renzulli's Revolving Door Identification Model as it enables qualified students with specific strengths in the area(s) of social studies, language arts, science and/or mathematics to revolve into the program at various times of the school year dependent upon their academic strengths and interests.

Children are selected for the program on the basis of teacher nomination, grades, an assessment of task commitment and motivation and a score in the 90th percentile or higher on the California Achievement Test in one or more of these areas: social studies, language arts, science and/or mathematics. Those identified children make up the talent pool.

The program, available in all elementary schools, (Parker, Merrymount, Snug Harbor, Wollaston, Montclair, Bernazzani, Daniel Webster, Atherton Hough, Lincoln-Hancock and Squantum), is taught by three enrichment specialists:

They are: Anne McDonough, language arts; Mrs. Carole Smith, social studies and language arts; and Mrs. Deborah Madden, math/science.

For the first cycle which ran Sept. 18 to Dec. 1, McDonough coordinated students from the Parker, Merrymount, Snug Harbor, Wollaston and Montclair schools.

During that same period, Smith coordinated students from the Bernazzani, Webster and Atherton Hough schools.

Madden was the coordinator for students from the Lincoln-Hancock, Wollaston and Squantum schools.

Each specialist is in a particular school one day per week on a three-month rotating basis.

In the morning, specialists provide all identified students with enrichment activities in the area of their strength. Students are encouraged to pursue exploration activities and develop high level thought processes.

In the afternoon, a small group of these students revolve into the REACH program to work with enrichment specialists to complete in-depth research activities in an area of specific interest. After the group completes their projects, they revolve out of the afternoon part of the program to make room for another small group of students from the talent pool.

For example, a third grade student with an identified strength in language arts participates in the REACH program one morning per week for a three-month period. He or she revolves into the afternoon program for as many sessions as his or her project requires. Children may be identified to participate in one or more three-month enrichment areas during the year.

The second cycle, now underway, will continue until March 16. Students are required to present one individual and one group project.

The third cycle, to run March 19 to June 8, requires students to present one individual and one group project. The third is optional.

A total of 254 students will participate in 462 sessions throughout the year.

Within the REACH program the enrichment specialists and classroom teachers work together to enrich and challenge the learning experiences of academically talented students.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Be Suspicious!

Be suspicious of unknown delivery men and salesmen, don't invite them into your home at any time. Some are not what they may appear to be. Beware of a package that is delivered that you did not expect. This method has been used as a means to gain "peaceful" acknowledgment. Demand proper identification from all unknown persons.

Beware of so-called "inspectors" who will examine your home without charge to determine the safety of your furnace, roof or foundation. If you do require any of these services consult a reputable dealer.

Be suspicious of a stranger entering your neighbor's home when you believe him to be away, or a truck or moving van parked outside his home when you have not heard anything about his moving. CALL THE POLICE IMMEDIATELY AND HAVE US CHECK OUT THE SITUATION.

- Be suspicious of broken or open windows and doors.
- Be suspicious of persons loitering about the neighborhood either on foot or in a vehicle. If they are in a vehicle try to get the registration number.
- Be suspicious of the sound of breaking glass or shattering wood.
- Be suspicious of a stranger carrying appliances, household goods or luggage from a neighbor's home. Get a good description of the person if possible.
- Be wary of wrong number telephone calls. Often times they are made to determine if anyone is at home prior to breaking in. Ask questions of the caller and inform the entire family about the call. Give no other information.

Most important of all is to CALL THE POLICE if someone does not look quite right. We would much rather answer a hundred calls that lead to nothing than to let one crime go unsolved.

Sports

Hockey

North Shells Rindge

The North Quincy hockey team bounced back from one-sided losses to Brockton and Brookline, the two top teams in the Suburban League, to wallop Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 10-1, Monday in the season's finale.

The Raiders, under first-year coach Dave Peters, won their first five games but went only 3-9-2 the rest of the way for a final 8-9-2 record.

Sal Manganaro had two goals and an assist to finish with 45 points, Joe Fasano had a goal and two assists to finish with 38 points, and Mark Zych, Chris McCallum, Bill Jarnis, Billy Lydon, Mike DesRoche, Jim McCarthy and Armando Mancini a goal each. Mike Christopherson had three assists and Steve O'Brien one.

Last week North was blasted by Brockton, 8-0, and Brookline, 10-0. In the Brockton game goalie Pat O'Donoghue was outstanding in the first period and kept the score from growing even larger.

North's Manganaro, Fasano and Mancini were named to the Suburban League all-star team.

Quincy Closes On Losing Note

Quincy, North Wrestlers Place In Championships

Eight Quincy wrestlers placed in the South Sectional championships last weekend, including one winner and one runnerup. North Quincy placed three, including one runnerup. Seventeen schools competed.

Quincy's Al Souza won at 130 pounds, Tony Madden was second in the heavyweight class and Brian Burgess was fourth at 171, all qualifying for the state championships this Friday and Saturday at Chelmsford High.

Matt Fratolillo was fifth at 103, Tom Fratolillo fifth at 135, Bob Stanton fifth at 140 and Tom Burton fifth at 189. All will be alternates in the state meet. Ally Sleiman placed sixth at 145.

North Quincy's Bill Lee was second at 160 and will be in the states as will Derek Colantonio, fourth at 112. Dave Goon was fifth at 152 and will be an alternate.

Randolph, which went 25-0 during the regular season, won the sectionals and will be one of the favorites to win the state title.

Squirt As Lose

Quincy's Squirt A hockey team, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, lost a 3-2 decision to Dorchester on a late goal.

Billy Barron and Tom

Sullivan scored the Quincy goals with assists for Scott Cooper and Eric Wood. Robbie Pirelli, Tim Wood and John Manning checked well. Paul Princiotto, Mike O'Brien, John Ryan and Dan

Hughes did some excellent penalty killing. Dan Stone, Joe Bracken and Matt Jarnis played strong defense and Tim Sheehan was outstanding in goal.

Quincy's young hockey team ended its season in disappointing fashion Monday when it lost to Newton North, 11-3.

The Presidents, with seven freshmen and five sophomores, finished at 1-15-3.

One bright spot in the loss to Newton was that all three goals were scored by freshmen, Jeff Craig, Jim Marani and Dave Mullen. Scott MacPherson, a sophomore and the leading scorer, had two assists and Mullen, Marani and Craig one each.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Waltham, 4-1, despite one of its best efforts of the season. MacPherson had the goal and freshman Jimmy Smith assisted. Craig Galligan played a strong game in goal.

Quincy's Galligan and Shane Abboud were named to the Suburban League all-star team.

Giants' Tryout For Shaughnessy

Another Quincy player will get his chance at making the National Football League when former Quincy High and Curry College standout quarterback Billy Shaughnessy tries out for the New York Giants at the Giants' mini-camp in April.

"He wanted a shot at it and the Giants are going to accommodate him," said Curry coach John Doherty. "I think it's great because he is an exceptional athlete."

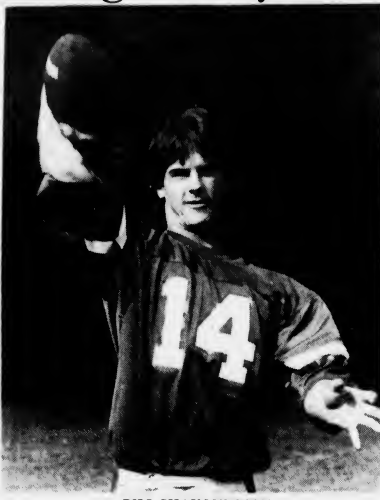

"Billy deserves the chance and I think he has a chance to make it," said Curry assistant coach Peter Chella, a former Quincy High player and assistant coach. "He is a good, heady player and has excellent size (6-1, 210 pounds) for a quarterback."

Shaughnessy, following an excellent career at Quincy High, received a scholarship to UMass/Amherst, but transferred to Curry where he was an outstanding passer and scrambler and backboned Curry's offense for three years.

Shaughnessy succeeded another Quincy player, Bob Barrett, who holds all the Curry passing records.

If the Giants don't like what they see in him as a quarterback, he'll try to impress them as a defensive back. He begged Doherty to play him both ways last season but the veteran coach feared he would be injured.

Doherty finally obliged in the last game of the season and Shaughnessy had two pass interceptions.

BILL SHAUGHNESSY

"I sent my films to a scout with the Giants and he said I have an honest shot at making it, but who knows," the former President said. "I've played at Division I and I know I can play with those guys. Quarterback is my first choice, but I'd play anywhere. I just want to show them I can play."

Shaughnessy is following former North Quincy and Plymouth State star running back Joe Dudek in his quest to make the NFL.

Dudek, following a sensational career at Plymouth State, signed with the Denver Broncos as a free agent. He excelled in a nationally televised game during the players' strike but was on injured reserve during the Broncos' Super Bowl game. He did earn a Super Bowl ring, something not many players can boast of.

He was later cut by the Broncos and tried out with the New York Jets, but was cut by them, ending his NFL hopes.

Raiders Tourney Hopes Are Ended

The North Quincy boys' basketball team, after being knocked out of the Eastern Mass. Tourney by Brockton, lost its final Suburban League game of the season to league power Newton North (16-3), 66-59, dropping the Raiders' record to 8-10.

North finishes the season this week with two non-league games. Tuesday night the Raiders met Boston College High, coached by Quincy's Brian Buckley, and tonight (Thursday) will play at Boston Latin. B.C. High needed one win in its last two games to qualify for the tournament.

The Raiders were led by Erik DeBoer with 19 points, including five three-pointers, but Newton North led for the entire game.

Angelo Kyranis, who came along fast as a scorer this year, contributed 13 points for North.

North cut the lead to two points, 58-56, late in the game but Newton's Josh Hammermesh's three-point play clinched the win.

Earlier in the week Brockton, trailing by eight points after three quarters, came back with a full-court press and eight points off the bench from Kevin Wilson, to pull out the win and knock the Raiders out of a tournament berth.

North had to win its last six games to qualify for tournament play.

Presidents Host Annual Tournament

The Quincy boys' basketball team (0-18) hoped to salvage a win or two in this week's annual Quincy Invitational Tournament at the Vo-Tech gym.

The tourney got under way Tuesday night with Quincy facing Silver Lake and Hingham meeting Stoughton.

The championship game will be played tonight

(Thursday) at 8 o'clock and the consolation game will be at 6:30.

The Presidents, who have played better than their record indicates, dropped their final Suburban League game to Brookline (15-3), 91-63, last Friday night.

Capt. Joe Russell, Quincy's leading scorer, paced the attack with 18 points and freshman Robbie Kane had a fine game with 11 points and six assists.

Brookline's top scorers, Mark Dunlap and Vic Koyipik, led the Indians with 22 and 15 points respectively.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Waltham, 70-46.

Russell again led the Presidents with 11 points and 10 assists and Kane, in his first varsity action, had five points and four steals.

Quincy Girls End With 5-13 Record

The Quincy girls' basketball team finished its season last Friday with a 5-13 record when it lost to Brookline, 52-42.

Amy Baker had an excellent all-around game as Quincy held a 21-17 halftime lead and still led, 31-28, going into the final quarter.

However, Brookline, which had a fantastic night from the floor, shooting 85 percent, came back to pull out the victory.

Earlier in the week Quincy threw the ball away 23 times, 12 times in the fourth quarter as it bowed to Waltham, 34-15.

Erin Doherty had seven points to lead the Quincy girls.

Coach Doug MacFarlane has reason to look forward to next year with some optimism.

This year he had nine returnees and only two, Maureen Shea and Lisa Morrell, are seniors. Seven other returnees, juniors Baker, Doherty, Chris

Barrett, Jennifer Dondoro, Julie McCloskey and Melanie Sullivan and sophomore Kim

Marsden, will lead next year's team and several other varsity players as well as every member of the junior varsity squad will be back to give MacFarlane an excellent nucleus.

The 100th day in school celebration was culminated with 100 pieces of pepperoni pizza and a cake complete with 100 candles. Children sang "Happy 100th Day To Us."

North Quincy, B.C. High Basketball On Ch. 3 Feb. 26

North Quincy and Boston College High School square off in basketball action in the final game of Quincy Community Television's "High School Game of the Week" series Monday, Feb. 26 at 7 p.m. on Ch. 3.

All of the games were shown on Ch. 3 Monday nights throughout January and February and were produced on location with community television volunteer crews trained in sports production and the use of the QCTV-3 mobile van, under the direction of producer Jack Low. Each week the community members volunteered five to six hours for set-up, production and break-down of each game so that Continental Cablevision subscribers could watch high school sports on Channel 3.

QCTV-3 has produced a total of 10 games this season, including hockey and boys and girls basketball from both North Quincy and Quincy High School. Community volunteers Mike Tucker and Shawn Cunningham donated their time to provide complete play by play announcing and sidelines interviews for each of the games.

George Cappadona, a long time QCTV volunteer, held a variety of crew positions throughout the season, working as director, technical director, audio and camera; while volunteers Skip Smith, Rita Lund, Bruce Henderson, Joe McCarthy and many others donated their time to making this season possible.

Plans for QCTV-3 coverage of Spring sports are already underway and a complete schedule will be available when game dates and times are confirmed.

7 Residents Return From Sea Term Semester Training

Seven Quincy residents are among the Massachusetts Maritime Academy cadets who recently returned from Sea Term Semester Training aboard the school's Patriot State training ship.

They are:
Carl Lockhart, 193 Taffrail Rd., Kevin Tape, 87 West Elm Ave., Timothy Burke, 24 Webster St., Lisa Rodriguez, 68 Glover Ave., Michael Brighton, 249 South Central Ave., John Bangs, 290 Atlantic St., and Kevin Flaherty, 25 Webster St.

The 48-day voyage was reduced from 65 days because of the state's fiscal problems. The cost-cutting measures are expected to reduce overall training costs an average of 49 percent for an estimated savings of $345,487. This year, the ship visited ports in Tampa, Florida, New Orleans, Louisiana and Nassau, Bahamas.

The eight-credit course provides Mass. Maritime cadets with a portion of the six months of seagoing experience required by the U.S. Coast Guard before students can take their Ship's Officer examinations.

Beechwood Center Receives Grants For Asian Cultural Festival

Beechwood Community Life Center, Feno St., Wollaston, has received grants from the Quincy Arts Council and the Heritage Festival at Beechwood, for the Arts and Humanities.

The Heritage Program grant ($3,100) is for Beechwood to sponsor Nikki Hu, choreographer-dancer, in performances of "Kuan Yin", a piece choreographed and written by Nikki in response to the political turmoil in China last summer. Nikki is conducting dance workshops with students at Central Middle School this week. The children will be part of performances of "Kuan Yin" at Central Middle School, Parker Elementary School, Montclair Elementary School and at the Asian Cultural Festival at Beechwood, Saturday, Feb. 10, from 12:30-4:00 p.m.

The grant from the Quincy Arts Council ($1,000) is just for the Asian Cultural Festival. In addition to the performance of "Kuan Yin" the festival will also include PAMAS, the Philippine American Association of New England dance group performing traditional dance and RONDALA, a Philippine string ensemble. Also CONTEMPO, a Chinese band, will perform contemporary music and Miss Felecia Kuo will perform a Chinese dulcimer solo and traditional Chinese dance. Numerous Asian foods and craft booths will be included. Beechwood will provide transportation within Quincy.

The Heritage Program is one of the programs currently under consideration to be cut from the Massachusetts Council due to budget restraints. For more information call Beechwood Community Life Center, 471-5712.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Old virtues such as duty, patriotism and service to one's country sometimes today meet with a certain cynicism. So it's good to remember the birthday of George Washington ... "First in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

Washington was born February 22, 1732, in Westmoreland County, Virginia ... one of five children of a family which had for three generations lived in America.

Because his father, a well-to-do planter, died when he was twelve, he was sent to England like his elder brothers for an education ... He became a surveyor and took his place in the militia when his brother became ill. As a major, he was sent on two expeditions against the French, and on the second was defeated. On a third, led by General Braddock, the British and Americans were again defeated. But apart from this start and these lessons, Washington rose to become a commander in later years of American forces in the hard-fought revolution against Britain. He then became the new nation's first president.

For fifteen years, seven in war and eight as president, Washington founded and guided a new nation in manhood and, as the father of our country, bequeathed a unique and precious heritage heritage to all Americans.

North Girls' Tourney Hopes Rest On Final Game

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, which needed only one win in its last five games to make the Eastern Mass. Tournament, went down to the last game Tuesday night at Barnstable, still needing that one win.

North lost its last four games, necessitating a win at Barnstable to qualify for the sixth time in 10 years.

Newton North made it tough for the North girls, pulling out a 27-25 victory on two free throws at the buzzer last Friday. Newton has been a jinx team for North throughout the years.

Earlier in the week North was bombed by Brockton's undefeated Suburban League champions, 70-30.

North stayed in the game for one quarter but Brockton had a 27-6 edge in the second quarter for an insurmountable 44-17 halftime lead.

"This is a young team and we will be losing only one starting senior," said coach Ken Panaro. "We knew going into this game who we were up against. I've seen Brockton blow out other teams by 50 and 60 points using its jayvees."

Joanna Rugnetta had nine points for North and Kara Sullivan, Tricia Hughes and Kerry Tolson turned in solid performances.

SYC To Kick Off Centennial March 23

SENATOR PAUL D. HAROLD and Rep. Stephen Tobin take a moment to congratulate the children of Lucy Sheppard of Quincy at the recent ARC of Massachusetts Distinguished Citizens Awards ceremony held at the State House, Boston. Lucy was recognized posthumously for working a lifetime on behalf of persons with mental disabilities and teaching these people the importance of exercising their human rights. From left, Norman Fredette, ARC of Massachusetts' President; Senator Harold; Rep. Tobin; and Lucy's children, Alfred Sheppard, Jeanne Buckley and Sandra Billard.

The Squantum Yacht Club will celebrate its Centennial this season both on the bay and in the clubhouse.

Donald McGilvray, who served as Commodore during the 1958-1959 seasons, will again lead the membership of 340 through what promises to be one of Squantum's finest years.

The celebration will officially begin March 23, with a "Centennial Kick-Off Dinner" at the Neighborhood Club. A buffet will be served and entertainment will be provided by The Guildsmen. Reservations are required and are filling quickly.

The boating season will be marked by the traditional Opening Night festivities at the clubhouse. In addition, McGilvray will hoist, to a ceremonial cannon salute, a commemorative club burgee, which all members will be encouraged to fly.

Other activities planned include the Tornado National Championships and the Fourth Annual Lipton Cup Regatta, both of which will draw boats from across the country, Canada and Bermuda. A two-day Centennial Regatta will be conducted by the Squantum Race Committee for all club members and a fishing tournament will be held for the powerboat fleet.

The membership's July meeting will be moved to the 9th, the exact date when 100 years ago, a group of men met at 4 Walker St. in Atlantic and formed the then "North Quincy Yacht Club." A reception will follow.

The North Quincy Yacht Club was renamed to the "Merrymount Yacht Club" and later to Squantum, adopting as it did the now familiar blue burgee pierced with a white tomahawk. Fleets flying this burgee became known nationally and internationally for their outstanding racing performance.

Although those at the helm have changed, Squantum promises to continue to be one of the foremost racing yacht clubs.

The club is largely responsible for the present popularity of interclub racing on Massachusetts Bay and it is with pride that the members of today carry this legacy into Squantum's second century.

DeCristofaro Asks Levy To Consider Alternate Method To Sludge Treatment

City Council President Theodore DeCristofaro has written MWRA Executive Director Paul Levy regarding a proposal that could shrink the cost of the Boston Harbor cleanup by $2.2 billion and reduce the sludge earmarked for Quincy Point by 25 percent.

In his letter, DeCristofaro, who represents Ward 2, referred to a new chemical treatment method now used in San Diego, Calif. In a recent published report, Donald Harleman, a professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said he believes the method could be used here by the MWRA.

"I'm wondering why the MWRA hasn't looked at that," DeCristofaro said, adding that the authority should carefully examine the alternate method since it could save ratepayers substantial money.

"The bottom line is the money it could save the rate payers," he said.

The cost of cleanup is estimated at $6 billion.

As of Monday, DeCristofaro had not received a reply. When he hears from Levy, DeCristofaro said he would make it public.

Leasing Company Gets License To Sell Cars

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Tom Connolly of Tom Connolly Leasing, Inc., 165 Hancock St., for a Class II Motor license to sell cars after they have been leased.

The Board received a letter from Ward 6 Councilor Thomas Nutley saying that he and the neighbors of the area have no objections to the license providing three conditions are applied: that the existing shrubbery and fencing at the site be maintained and replaced if damaged; that no additional signs, free standing or otherwise, be installed at the site; and that no vehicles be parked outside of the fenced area of the business.

Connolly said he agreed with the conditions.

Connolly also gave the board a letter from immediate abutters to his land stating that they had no objections to the license.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey said he would have his department check to ensure that vehicles would be parked in compliance with city ordinance.

Neighborhood Club Ordered To Replace 150 Trees Cut Down

By JANE ARENA

The Conservation Commission has levied its harshest fine of $1,000 against the Neighborhood Club, Glendale Ave., for damage caused when the club cut down some 150 trees last October in order to expand its parking lot by 80 spaces.

According to the Commission's order of conditions, issued last week, the club must also replace all the trees destroyed and do so as closely to the natural configuration as possible. That, says Conservation Enforcement Officer Heather Sargent, is a job that could cost as much as $25,000 according to one estimate.

However, Sargent suggested that the work could also be done by an agricultural school for less money while providing students with a valuable learning experience.

"This thing doesn't have to be all bad," she said.

The work was done by the club without prior approval from the Conservation Commission and, according to Sargent, has already had serious effects on bordering vegetated wetlands.

The trees destroyed included maples, oaks, poplars and beech trees ranging from 6 to 30 inches in diameter. According to one area resident, some of the trees may have dated back to the days of the Adams family.

Sargent said that it could be 20 years before the wooded area is back to where it once was.

In addition to replacing the trees, the Commission has denied any subsequent plans for expanding the parking lot by a smaller amount.

The club now has the option to appeal the Commission's decision to a higher court, but, according to John Corcoran, attorney for the club, that option has not been decided on as yet.

"The order of conditions and the feasibility of making an appeal have been taken under advisement," Corcoran said Monday. Corcoran also noted that an appeal must be filed by the end of this week.

According to Corcoran, "the club received a permit from the Building Commissioner and, on the basis of that permit, they commenced the work."

Sargent said that since the property is bordered by vegetated wetlands, it requires a permit from the Commission before any work is done within 100 feet of that wetland area. She said there is also some question as to whether or not a zoning permit was needed for the work.

The wetlands in question contain an intermittent stream and bank, a flood control area, and a wildlife habitat. When the trees were cut down, the Commission

Finn Retires, To File For Disability Pension

Sheets To Name New Police Chief By Early June

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The next Quincy chief of police will be selected from within the department, perhaps by June 1, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

Chief Francis Finn has decided to step down after a 24-year reign as chief. In a conversation with Sheets on Monday, Finn told the mayor that his doctor strongly urged him to retire.

Finn has had heart problems and has undergone bypass surgery.

Paul Nestor, the senior captain, has been named acting chief and will remain in the interim until a new chief is named.

"I have a great deal of faith and confidence in Capt. Nestor," Sheets said. The acting chief will work with the mayor in setting next year's police budget.

Sheets said he will appoint Finn's successor from the top three officers on the current Civil Service list. They are, in order of their finish: Sgt. William Falco, Lt. Francis Mullin and John Ford, who is now chief in Bourne.

"I've made a decision to choose from the current (Civil Service) list available," the mayor said. He could have called for a special exam limited to the Quincy Police Department or called a statewide exam which former Mayor Francis McCauley preferred.

Sheets said he would likely name the next police chief by

FRANCIS FINN

June 1, mid-June at the latest. He said he wants to take some time to meet with each candidate and discuss the department's future with them.

"I'd like to have the decision made by the first of June. I'll make the decision by mid-June at the latest."

"I'd like an opportunity to meet much more extensively with them and talk with them in much greater detail about their ideas relative to the future of the police department."

The mayor said he hoped to devise an appointment schedule with each candidate by the end of the week.

On Monday, Finn told

Sheets he was retiring on the strong advice from his doctor. The former chief is filing for a disability pension apparently because of his heart problems.

"(Finn's) filing for his pension was a direct result from very strong advice from his doctor. His doctor felt that he did not want him to work under sustaining pressures."

The medical advice followed a physical examination about 10 days ago, the mayor said.

Finn, who earned $65,000 a year as chief, will remain on sick leave until the city's retirement board rules on his request for accidental disability retirement. After a team of doctors review the case, a decision will be made. Sheets said a decision would probably take between three and six months.

Commenting on Finn's career, the mayor said the chief has "done a good job," particularly during the last three or four years. In that time, the department moved into a new station and began computerization.

"He was very much involved and responsible for those projects," Sheets said.

The mayor also said Finn will be missed. "I've always had the utmost cooperation

Summer Start For Interceptor Project

The West Quincy Interceptor, which should resolve sewer problems in that area of the city when it is completed, is on schedule and construction could begin this summer, Mayor James Sheets announces.

The mayor based his optimistic assessment after learning that Secretary of Environmental Affairs John DeVincentis issued a favorable certificate on the project's draft Environmental Impact Report (EIR). When the final EIR is approved, the project will move forward at a cost of approximately $4 to $5 million, Sheets said.

On Tuesday, the mayor said the final EIR could be approved as early as the end of March. "Since the design for the interceptor has already been completed, we can then move forward and seek construction bids," he noted.

"It is conceivable that construction could get underway this summer." Once it begins, Sheets said the project could take six months to complete.

According to Sheets, the project essentially entails laying a 12 to 14 inch sewer pipe under the Furnace Brook Parkway which would be dug up. The interceptor will service residents from Willard St. south to Braintree, Willard St. north to Milton and everywhere in between.

The interceptor will be hooked up to the high level sewer, which is the main sewer line running through West Quincy.

Although Furnace Brook Parkway is maintained by the Metropolitan District Commission, Sheets said Quincy will not receive MDC assistance. He said the city will have to re-asphalt the dug up section of the parkway.

Since the City Council approved a sewer user fee last week, the project can be bonded through the Department of Public Works and the Water, Sewer and Drain Department. The mayor, along with Ward 4 Councilor Thomas Fabrizio, hope to keep the project within the projected time frame.

Once completed, the interceptor should take pressure off the West Quincy subsystem lines and end major sewer backups in the West Quincy area.

"The City of Quincy is presently participating in the Metropolitan Police Act (MEPA) process to get approval to update our present system. We are now beginning the Final Environmental Impact Review (FEIR) process and when that

Alerted By Smoke Detectors 7 Driven To Street In Early Morning Blaze

Seven people were driven into the cold and one firefighter injured in a fire at a three-family home at 46-48 Gay St., near St. John's rectory, shortly before 6 a.m. Tuesday.

Damage was estimated at over $45,000.

Benjamin and Mary Kavida and their four children, living on the second floor, were awakened by smoke detectors and fled in the building, according to Quincy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell.

After alerting the fire department, the family and the only other resident of the building, Anna Sullivan of the first floor, safely exited. Chief O'Connell said.

The American Red Cross is in the process of securing temporary shelter for the residents.

The chief said the fire started in the second floor pantry and extended up through the ceiling to the attic level of the house.

Under the leadership of Deputy Fire Chief Joseph Jackson, firefighters were able to "quickly put the fire under control and extinguish the blaze," preventing an extensive loss," Chief O'Connell said.

Firefighter Stephen Corbo received a burn to his left leg during the blaze, the chief said. He was treated and released from Quincy Hospital.

The fire was investigated by the Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau and the City Wire Inspector.

"It was discovered that the fire was electrical in nature and originated in an electrical ceiling fixture in the pantry," Chief O'Connell said.

The chief said damage to the building was estimated in excess of $45,000.

The chief credited smoke detectors in preventing the possible loss of life in the blaze and also commended the quick actions taken by the Quincy Fire Department in preventing more extensive loss of property and contents.

Burger King Given 30 Days To File 3 Alteration Permits

By JANE ARENA
The Burger King on Adams St. will have 30 days to file with the Zoning Board of Appeals for three special permits needed when the restaurant installed a drive through window, and a menu board and altered a free-standing sign, according to Matthias Mulvey, Acting Chairman of the License Board in the absence of John Gillis.

Mulvey explained that the Zoning Board special permits are needed because the changes affect the parking at the restaurant.

Mulvey also said that three permits from the Building Department are required as well.

The restaurant conducted the alterations without the required permits Jan. 27.

If the restaurant fails to file with the Zoning Board of Appeals within 30 days of a letter of confirmation from Mulvey, the matter could be taken to criminal court, Mulvey said.

Mulvey will issue his letter in a matter of days, he said.

Should the Zoning Board of Appeals deny the special permits, Mulvey added, the restaurant would be ordered to revert the building back to its original structure and remove the drive through window, he said.

Mulvey further noted that under the technicality of the city ordinance, the restaurant could be charged up to $200 a day for each of the three violations by the Zoning Board Appeals. The Building Department could fine up to $1,000 per day for each violation, he added. All fines could be charged retroactively, Mulvey noted, from January 27. Theoretically, Burger King could be fined up to $3,600 per day of violation, Mulvey said.

The restaurant could appeal the Zoning Board decision within 20 days, Mulvey said.

Mulvey explained that the Burger King received a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals on November 4, 1988 to operate in the residential area.

At that time neighbors and abutters of the establishment, represented by James Sheets, then Ward 4 Councillor, stressed that they did not want a drive through window at the restaurant. Mulvey said that Burger King never recorded the 1988 variance.

The License Board was alerted to the drive through window in a communication from Mayor Sheets two weeks ago.

The board placed the matter on file because the jurisdiction lies with the Building Department and the Zoning Board of Appeals.

'Costing A Fortune,' Cheney Says Sheets, Councillors Back Accreditation For Police Dept.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Despite the city's budget crunch, Mayor James Sheets and four city councillors support continuing the Quincy Police Department's accreditation process.

Since it began in August of 1987, the accreditation process has cost the city $140,000. Designed to develop and implement better police policies and procedures, the accreditation will likely take at least one more year before it is completed.

Earlier this week, the mayor and four councillors said they believe the time and money spent on accreditation is an investment which will ultimately improve the department and thus the services it provides to residents.

"I think you have to go through with the accreditation process," Sheets said Tuesday. "I think it's important for the operation of the department in the future."

Sheets noted that since the accreditation program began, the department has made great strides in identifying policy in a number of areas. "I think that is important for the meaningful operation of our police department."

With all city departments facing six percent cuts, Sheets said he still believes the accreditation should continue.

"It would be unfortunate of not being able to continue. We might have to slow the process down to deal with the budget crunch."

"If it is necessary to slow it down because of the budget crunch, we'll do it but we will move forward."

At a meeting of the City Council's Public Safety Committee Monday night, Acting Chief Paul Nestor and Lt. Thomas Frane explained the merits of the process.

Frane, who is in charge of accreditation, told councillors the process is 50 percent completed. According to one guideline, the process should only take 12 to 18 months to complete.

However, Nestor and Frane defended the department's off-schedule progress. Nestor said the department has had to deal with unforeseen factors, such as moving into a new police station. During this project, he said several departments were not working under the same roof at times.

If the three full-time accreditation employees can continue working on a full-time basis, Frane said the process could be completed in a year.

However, Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley doubted that estimate. Nutley, who was among the councillors who gave the accreditation a green light two and a half years ago, said the council at that time did not think it would be as costly or time consuming.

Since the police department, like all other city departments, faces a six percent budget cut in FY 1991, Nutley suggested suspending the program.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney came down harder, calling the process "a frill" which has cost the city "a fortune."

According to his own research, Cheney said departments in 69 communities have abandoned accreditation because of budget constraints. "We're not made of gold," he told Frane.

He said the process was supposed to be a guideline to reorganize the department using accredited standards. However, he did not realize it would be as costly or time consuming.

Furthermore, Cheney said departments which become accredited find themselves "webbed in paperwork which reduces patrolmen's flexibility."

Concerned about Quincy's war on drugs and the number of drug officers on city streets, Cheney said he prefers to keep the department's drug unit intact before more money is spent on accreditation.

"It's an excellent process to set up policy procedures. It allows us to open our eyes. But the fact remains that it's costing us a fortune."

"I feel it's expensive, unwanted and doesn't accomplish 100 percent of what I'd like to see it accomplish," Cheney said.

The department has proposed a $10,000 expenditure for the program in FY 1991.

"I really can't justify spending $10,000 when we're going to lay off police officers," Cheney added.

Councillors Timothy Cahill, Charles Phelan, Patricia Toland and Thomas Fabrizio all said they support continuing the process.

"To stop the process now would be a waste of money," Cahill said, adding that stopping it would hurt department morale. "The accreditation will be a valuable tool for the next chief; it will give him background and policy outlines."

"Just because we are under budget constraints doesn't mean government has to stop," he added.

O'Connell Meets Castro

Quincy businessman Peter O'Connell is passing out cigars to his friends.

No, he and Marcia, aren't welcoming a new arrival.
But as cigars go, these are really something. Straight from Havana. And, straight from Fidel Castro. They're his.

Castro gave O'Connell a box of them last week while O'Connell was in Cuba with Cardinal Bernard Law.

The brand name is Cohiba. They measure almost eight inches long and reportedly go $5 or $6 each.

Cardinal Law was flown to Cuba in the O'Connell company's Lear 35 twin engine plane for a pastoral meeting with Cuban bishops.

With them on the flight and three day visit were Bishop Roberto Gonzalez, regional bishop of Framingham; Monsignor William Murphy, secretary for community affairs and Monsignor Timothy Moran, the Cardinal's personal secretary.

O'Connell, a close friend of the Cardinal's, is a member of the Catholic Charities board. Pilots on the flight were O'Connell's brother, Tom, and Tom Whitty. Peter was a backup pilot.

The Cardinal spent several hours in discussion with Castro and later
O'Connell got to meet him.

LAW

That was Monday, Feb. 19 -- Presidents Day. And, with Castro the president of Cuba and O'Connell from Quincy, O'Connell felt it was appropriate to mention he was from Quincy where John Adams and John Quincy Adams were born.

Castro understands English but speaks through an interpreter although he didn't have to with the Cardinal who was born in Mexico and speaks Spanish fluently.

"Castro seemed to know who John and John Quincy Adams were," O'Connell said.

O'Connell also told him that George Bush was born in Milton, the next town over from Quincy.

Then Castro wanted to know where Ronald Reagan was born. (Tampico, Ill.)

"He was very cordial and friendly," says O'Connell.
"But obviously I am at the other end of the political spectrum. He's an avowed Marxist socialist and I am a capitalist."

Castro, who has been in power some 31 years, definitely is no buffoon according to O'Connell.

"He's no hick. He's an intellectual."

O'Connell, his brother and Whitty got to roam freely around Havana. Nobody stopped them or checked them out.

"Like other Communist countries, there were long lines for everything," O'Connell reports.

And, like Communist countries: "There was no maintenance. The buildings are falling apart."

O'Connell says economic changes are in store for Cuba with the Soviet Union now in dire financial straits.

The Soviet Union cannot continue its multi-billion dollar handout to Cuba, O'Connell says.

The Soviets purchase all of Cuba's sugar at four times the world price, according to O'Connell.

When the Soviet Union can't afford that tab anymore, Castro will have to look elsewhere for a helping hand. And it could be here, says O'Connell.

The Soviets are still in evidence there though.

The O'Connell plane flew into Cuba behind a Russian Jumbo.

Neither Cuba nor Castro can be ignored, says O'Connell.

Its only a 10-minute flight from Miami to Cuba.
That's really close for a Communist land and Castro.

QUINCY GOT MENTIONED twice in the TV miniseries "The Kennedy's Of Massachusetts." And mispronounced both times.

One was in a scene in which President Franklin Delano reminds Joseph P. Kennedy, Sr. of his days as manager of the Bethlehem Steel Co. shipyard "In Quincee, Massachusetts."

Joe Kennedy had his own political ambitions at one time and according to this TV version even would like to have been the first Irish Catholic president.

So, when he becomes Ambassador to England, young Jack Kennedy, who would be the Kennedy to reach that presidential goal, encourages his father by telling him other Ambassadors to England were later elected President including "John Quin-see Adams."

Well, the real Joe Kennedy and Jack Kennedy pronounced it Quin-see.

Why Recycling Is So Important

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As chairman of Quincy's Recycling Committee, I am writing in response to John McDuff's letter in last week's issue of this newspaper.

McDuff has criticized the recycling program once before in The Sun. In that first letter, he also went out of his way to strongly imply that I was a Nazi fascist. Last week Quincy's version of Senator McCarthy expressed concern that recycling will become mandatory and thereby "strip us of all our free choices and reduce us to serfdom."

Because those words may have influenced some people to think less of recycling, I will take this opportunity to make a few comments.

First of all, I challenge McDuff's extremist expression of freedom, particularly as it pertains to recycling and trash disposal. In my opinion, people who choose not to recycle unfairly inhibit the freedom of those who separate their garbage. Likewise, those who do not recycle limit the ability of others to enjoy a healthy environment and lower taxes.

Our planet is at risk because too many people have felt it is their right to pollute and to waste scarce natural resources. Selfishness has transformed a life supporting environment into a life threatening environment. From a democratic perspective or in terms of Judeo-Christian morality, this has to change. No person has been granted a right to spoil the environment either by God or by the Constitution.

When you talk dollars and sense, recycling offers tremendous benefits—both economically and ecologically. The city pays $91 per ton to ship 40,000 tons of unseparated trash per year to a landfill in East Bridgewater. Therefore, opportunities to save are readily available.

Currently, about 35 percent of Quincy's households recycle which is enough to pay for the program. However, in many cities throughout this country and others, the participation rates exceed 75 percent. If Quincy achieved that level of paper recycling, the city would save over $200,000! When the program expands to include glass, plastic and metal, potential savings will be even greater. In any case, the amount of money we save depends upon the amount of people recycling.

To put it another way, people who choose not to recycle are being subsidized by those of us who do. Is that fair? Why should a family who recycles pay the same tax rate as a family that chooses to be lazy? McDuff wrote about freedom. Well, I want to be free from bearing the burden of other people's wastefulness.

Now let's get back to Mother Earth. Thus far the paper recycling program has prevented the need to cut down 20,000 trees. By getting our participation rate up to 75 percent, we could annually save over 80,000 trees! We could also save 35 million gallons of water and enough electricity to heat 5,000 homes for an entire winter. At today's rates, that amounts to big money.

Mills using recycled paper generate much less pollution than mills using wood. If more Quincy households recycle, we could keep 300,000 pounds of pollutants out of the air we breathe. I want to be free from that pollution. I also want to be free from having somebody build a landfill or incinerator in my backyard.

Finally, what legacy will we leave to future generations? Although we now live in what has been called a "throwaway society," we do not live in a throwaway world. When my children are born, they should have an environment that is healthy and capable of supporting economic prosperity. As Americans we are all entitled to private property, but we are not entitled to take the planet with us when we go. In the name of freedom, please recycle.

Snow Storm Cuts Off Houghs Neck

The second great snowstorm in a month, backed by 40-mile-an-hour winds, struck Quincy, flooding the Squantum Causeway and cutting Houghs Neck off from the city by drifting snow.

Only a few days before, some 70 male residents of Houghs Neck attacked drifts from the previous storm with their shovels to open the street car line as far as the church turnout on Babcock St.

The women of Houghs Neck kept them supplied with hot coffee and lunch.

Meanwhile, Quincy school teachers were indignant over the fact that they were docked in pay for the days in which they were unable to attend classes because trains weren't running in the snow.

Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting of the School Committee said he was sure that if the teachers could make satisfactory explanations of their absences they would be reimbursed the lost pay.

Concerned Over Proposed Toxic Waste Incinerator

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

There is a lot of attention being put on the issue of a toxic waste incinerator in the Fore River Basin, which is as it should be since the question is of great importance to the entire South Shore area.

A year ago I did not fully appreciate the entire issue since I, like many others, had Clean Harbors confused with "cleaning the harbor." They are not the same issue and over the last year I have determined several things which are of concern to me.

The American Lung Association reported on 1/19/90 that the health costs associated with air pollution are now $40-$50 billion a year. The Harvard School of Public Health released a study that found a strong association between frequencies of chronic cough, bronchitis, earache and chest illness in pre-adolescent children and air pollution.

A report last summer on CBS News stated that the death rate from asthma has increased markedly and that environmental pollution is a contributing factor.

Tufts University has released a study that states "...the release of various incinerator by-products into the environment (emissions and ash) has generated concern for the public and environmental health of areas surrounding incinerators."

I am concerned when I realize how many serious health problems are associated with the carcinogenic benzene (used in many synthetic products including other solvents, pesticides, and pharmaceutical products) ... and realize that the level of benzene already exceeds state guidelines in the Fore River area. I am concerned when EPA has ordered a study by Clean Harbors of its already contaminated site in East Braintree and one of the identified contaminants is benzene.

I am concerned when EPA research shows ... "that depending upon the chemicals in the emissions, and co-occurring atmospheric chemicals, the transformation products can be more potent mutagens or carcinogens than the original emissions."

I have to be concerned when there exists complete regulations covering only seven dangerous pollutants ... 7 of over 300 just isn't good enough.

I have to be concerned because I know how easy it is not to be concerned, not to take the time to become better informed and I know how easy it is to assume you will not become one of the "health statistics."

St. Patrick's Combo Dinner

A Nice Change Of Taste

At our house, we don't always wait for St. Patrick's Day to enjoy a boiled dinner, instead we have it several times a year. Last time I made it I used a small pot roast of beef in the same pan as a smoked shoulder and the results were a nice change of taste.

ST. PATRICK'S COMBO DINNER

Smoked shoulder (about 5 to 6 Lbs.)

2 lb. piece of bottom of the round

(or other cut of beef)

four medium sized potatoes

(cut in quarters)

3 carrots cut up

1 small turnip (cut up) (optional)

1 stalk celery (cut)

1 medium sized head of cabbage

In a large pan, place the beef and smoked shoulder, onion and celery and cover with water. Cook for about an hour and a half and then remove the beef and set aside. The smoked shoulder takes from 2 to 3 hours depending on the size. While the smoked shoulder is cooking, add the rest of the vegetables and cook until done. Then add the beef to warm, and serve altogether. Of course, you all know you can completely eliminate the beef and just use the smoked shoulder. Happy St. Patrick's Day!

Neighborhood Watch

The Neighborhood Watch Program is an effective means for citizens to take positive steps to protect themselves and their neighbors against crime. Your neighbors are often your single best security device.

In a few neighborhoods it is virtually impossible for a burglar to enter the area on foot or in a car without being detected. But, unfortunately, many people simply do not get to know their neighbors. They are hesitant to report suspicious persons or vehicles, fearing that they may be regarded as "snoops" or "busy-bodies." Neighborhoods in which people are truly concerned with each other and their mutual safety have extremely low crime rates.

Neighborhood Watch does not require frequent meetings or ask that anyone take personal risks to prevent crime. What it requires is residents working side-by-side to make their neighborhood a safer place in which to live.

There are two phases to the program:

- To make you aware of the many ways a home and property can be made safer. With the guidance of your Crime Prevention Officer, Neighborhood Watch members are provided with the information they need to improve the security of their property.

- To make you "alert" to suspicious activity in your neighborhood. Too many times people are burglarized in broad daylight while their neighbors look on without doing anything. Through Neighborhood Watch we want to instill the importance of watching out for your neighbors and calling the police whenever you see something suspicious.

If you would like to start a Neighborhood Watch program in your neighborhood please contact me at 479-1212 ext. 117.

$53,000 Needed To Form Police Athletic League

A Quincy Police Athletic League for the city's youth is in the planning stage and $53,000 is needed to make it a workable reality.

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, Quincy Police Sgt. Robert Hanna and Patrolman Robert Clark, safety officer, are the organizers.

The idea, to keep youngsters out of trouble, has the enthusiastic backing of Mayor James Sheets who thinks the timing is right because of budget cuts.

"It is important at this time that young people have recreational opportunities and that they are supervised by people who represent authority," he said.

"My role," said Delahunt, "is a catalyst in raising contributions. We have got to meet the needs that will result from cutbacks."

Delahunt said the program "will bring police officers back into the community."

He sees the program having "an extremely positive impact" in reducing drug use and in "bringing ethnic, religious and racial groups together."

The fund-raising goal is $53,205, which, it is hoped, will be realized through contributions in the business-professional community.

The budget calls for a 1990 medium duty truck for nearly $28,000, which would serve as a sports-mobile.

The vehicle, staffed by off-duty volunteer police officers, would go to the city's playgrounds during the warm-weather months.

It would be outfitted with sports gear including softball bats, gloves and balls, street hockey equipment, basketballs, volleyballs, baseballs, etc.

Cost of this equipment is estimated at $1,822.

There would also be some $3600 in cooking broilers and other equipment, large insulated beverage containers and tables.

Another $3,000 would go for food and paper products and some $10,456 worth of T-shirts and hats.

A stereo system, disc player, speakers and a generator would cost another $2,850.

Truck lettering and fuel would run about $3,500.

Hanna said there are 30 members of the Quincy Police Department "who want to volunteer their time."

The Quincy program would be similar to that of the Boston Police Athletic League, the first in the state. Quincy's would be the second.

The Boston PAL Center is located in the McDonough Gym on East Broadway behind the South Boston District Courthouse.

Boston Police Detective John Swirbalus, a Weymouth resident, and a member of the PAL board of directors, says the Boston program has been so successful that a second truck has been purchased there.

Swirbalus also noted that the program has improved relations among the city's youth.

"The sportsmobile has taken black teams into South Boston with PAL supervising the game and then taken them back to Roxbury," Swirbalus said. "And (white) teams from Charlestown have been taken into Dorchester."

He estimated that 92 cents of every $1 raised goes into the program.

He also cited "the information that comes back from the kids."

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

Window Of Opportunity

Your energy bills don't have to go through the roof if you let comfort in through the windows.

Solar glare and heat can cause discomfort in many homes. To help solve these problems, many Americans are turning to an updated version of a 30-year-old technology.

New and improved sun control window films, such as Scotchint film, not only reduce heat and glare from the sun, they also help keep draperies, carpeting and furniture from fading.

Sun control films are thin plastic sheets with a transparent metallic coating which filters out harmful sun rays. They can screen out 73 to 98 percent of the sun's ultraviolet rays. That provides more comfort and helps reduce air conditioning costs and energy use. Available from 3M authorized Energy Control dealers, the new generation of window films are scratch-resistant and economical. They come in neutral, bronze or clear. They can even help keep a window together during an earthquake, hurricane, tornado or explosion.

Is there a film on your windows? It could be good if it's the kind that keeps out glare and ultraviolet rays.

It would appear these tinted films can help you let the sun shine in comfort.

Household Hints

- Instead of paper towels, try wiping windows and mirrors with newspaper and old cloth baby diapers. They don't leave lint or dust behind.
- Clean stove tops with an extra strength cleaner to avoid sticky build-up.
- Periodically empty refrigerators and clean with an ammonia-based cleaner for a fresh clean.
- A chrome finish is thin and especially prone to fingerprints and smudges. Frequent wiping with an extra strength glass cleaner will help keep it looking shiny.
- Laminated plastic work surfaces are quite soft and should be cleaned frequently to avoid soil build-up. Never clean these surfaces with an abrasive powder. Try a glass

Quincy Pee Wee As Streak To Championship

Quincy's Pee Wee A team was one of two Quincy teams to win championships in the annual Kiwanis International Youth Tournament last week at the Youth Arena.

Quincy swept through five games undefeated, defeating Schenectady, N.Y., 7-3, in the championship game Sunday.

Quincy started off strong with a 10-0 romp over Brockton. After scoring three goals in the opening period, Quincy clinched the win with five second-period scores.

Eric Zimmerman, Scott MacPherson and David Cooper scored two goals apiece and Doug Nolan, Bill Coughlin, Dave Pacino and Joe McPhee one each. Cooper had six assists, Dennis Pateras three and Zimmerman, Nolan, Coughlin, Andy Vermette and McPhee

Also playing for Quincy were Dan Donahue and Jay Evans.

53-Team Tourney Draws Large Crowds

The 17th annual Kiwanis International Youth Hockey Tournament at the Quincy Youth Arena last week again was a huge success with large crowds attending the games, including the championship games despite the snow.

The tourney again produced close and interesting games with 53 teams from all over the U.S. and Canada competing.

Rink manager Beverly Reinhardt had words of praise for several people who worked hard to make the tournament a success.

"In particular, I want to thank Tom McCabe, Jane Carthas and Dave Fasano," she said. "Tom has made out the schedules since the first tournament and, with 53 teams and 90 games, it is quite a job. Jane is in charge of our housing and she, as usual, did a great job arranging for the housing of the out-of-state teams. And Dave takes over after the schedules are complete, answering questions as to who plays who. They all did a fantastic job for us."

Quincy Players Keys In B.C. High Win

Quincy's Rich MacDonald scored twice for the Eagles and Kevin Daley, also from Quincy, had two assists.

Basketball

North Girls Qualify For Tourney

It came down to the final game of the season, but the North Quincy girls' basketball team finally qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the sixth time in the past 10 years by defeating Barnstable, 48-41, last week in a non-league game.

Paul Bregoli led the team into the tournament five times in his nine years as coach and Ken Panaro, in his first year as head coach, has made it.

North needed only one win in its last five games to qualify, but lost four straight Suburban League games before topping Barnstable.

The team, last-seeded with a 12-8 record, faced a huge test in its tournament opener, playing at fourth-seeded Duxbury (18-2) Tuesday night.

If it pulled the upset, it will meet the winner of Dartmouth-Wellesley Friday night.

If Barnstable had defeated North Quincy, it would have qualified for tournament play as it had the same record.

The teams played to a standstill in the first quarter, which ended in a 10-10 tie. In the second quarter North combined offensive punch with a great defensive effort and outscored the Cape team, 14-5, for a 24-15 halftime advantage.

However, the third quarter belonged to Barnstable as its man-to-man trapping defense confused North and outscored North, 18-13. North still led, 37-33, going into the fourth quarter.

North regained its composure and had an 11-8 edge in the finale to bring home the big victory.

Senior co-captain Kerry Tolson had a big game with 15 points, eight rebounds and six steals. Kara Sullivan, only 5-6, took over the point guard position, ran the offense like a seasoned veteran, scored nine points, had five assists, five rebounds and five steals.

Tara Miles, the team's leading scorer, had nine points and three steals. Tricia Hughes moved to forward to better utilize her height and had nine points, four coming from offensive rebounds.

Joanna Rugnetta had four points, seven rebounds, four assists and two blocked shots and Kristen Haddigan had two points.

North Quincy Grads In Key Roles At ENC

Three North Quincy graduates, Tad and Jim Sheets, sons of Mayor and Mrs. James Sheets, and freshman Kipp Caldwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Caldwell, have played key roles for the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team.

Although the Crusaders are having a losing season (8-15), they won the Cadet Classic Tournament at Norwich University and among the victims in a recent three-game winning streak was the U. of Maine at Farmington, the No. 1 team in the NAIA District 5.

Tad Sheets, a business major with a 2.8 grade point average, is averaging seven points and three assists a game.

"He knows his limitations, but he tries to do his best every time he walks out onto the court," said coach George Sisson. "He tries to be the role model as far as his work ethic."

Jim Sheets, a 6-4 forward with a major in psychology and religion, averages five points and three rebounds a game.

"He is our first big man to come off the bench," said Sisson. "He gives us a lot more strength in the middle. He's been away for a couple of years with a knee injury, but he gives us somebody to muscle with."

Caldwell was ENC's sixth man until the semester break and has started seven games. A mathematics major with a 3.35 grade point average, he averages nine points and five rebounds a game.

"Kipp has been a consistent player all year as a freshman," Sisson said. "We like to call him the garbage man. If there's a weak side rebound, a loose ball or a tipped ball, he ends up with it. He's always around the ball and plays with a lot of intensity."

Raiders Win Last 2, DeBoer Outstanding

By TOM SULLIVAN

"I sure would like to have those early games back."

Those were the words of North Quincy boys' basketball coach Ted Stevenson after his team, eliminated earlier from the Eastern Mass. Tournament, finished the season with impressive wins over Boston College High and Boston Latin to wind up at 10-10.

The Raiders lost three of their first four games of the season, two by two points and one by three. If they had won two of those games, they would have qualified for the tournament.

"We really should have won those games," said Stevenson. "We just made too many early season mistakes. They come back to haunt us now. But, I am pleased with the way the boys came back from losses to Brockton and Newton North to defeat B.C. High and Latin, two strong teams."

Erik DeBoer completed a fantastic season last Thursday when he scored 27 points, including five three-pointers (56 for the season) as North defeated Latin, 77-65.

He averaged nearly 30 points a game for the season. Dave Cawthorne had 14 points, Billy Warren 11 and Angelo Kyranis 10 for the Raiders.

Earlier in the week North upset B.C. High, 74-58, helping to knock the Eagles, coached by Quincy's Brian Buckley, out of the tournament.

B.C. High had to win its last two games to qualify for the tournament but lost its chance when it lost a 65-63 squeaker to Peabody in its final game last Friday.

North Quincy exploded in the first quarter to take a 21-3 lead and it was all downhill after that. The Raiders had a 40-19 advantage at halftime.

"It was probably our worst game of the year," said Buckley, whose assistant coach, Bob Evans, also is from Quincy. "We never recovered after the first period."

DeBoer, with 19 points, and freshman Sean Donovan, who had 10, led the attack with some fine outside shooting, including a couple of key three-pointers. DeBoer had two and Donovan one.

Kyranis contributed 11 points and Jeff Calvert and Cawthorne played outstanding defense.

B.C. High's three Quincy players, John Shea, Pete McLoughlin and Jamie Green, played well with Shea scoring 20 points and McLoughlin 12 and Green playing strong defense.

In the Eagles' final game against Peabody McLoughlin scored 28 points.

In the all-star game last Friday, which the Suburban League stars edged league champion Brookline, 81-79, DeBoer had a big game with 21 points, including five three-pointers, and Calvert played his usual strong defensive game.

Meanwhile, luckless Quincy, which played better than its frustrating record shows, finished at 0-20 when it lost both its games in the annual Presidents Invitational Tournament.

The Presidents lost the consolation game to Hingham last Thursday, 73-36.

In the opening round Quincy lost to Silver Lake, 59-38, as the Lakers, determined not to see a repeat of a game three years ago, came out running and took an 18-4 first quarter lead. They led, 29-21, at the half as Quincy, led by sophomore Joey Crespi's nine second-quarter points, outscored SL, 17-11, in that quarter. However, the Lakers had a 16-9 edge in the third session and took a 45-30 lead into the finale after the Presidents had closed to within seven, 37-30, on Steve Hill's jumper.

Three years ago Quincy, also winless, had upset the Lakers in the Presidents tournament.

Capt. Joe Russell, Quincy's representative in the all-star game, had a good night with 10 points.

Quincy Wrestlers Finish Season In Style

Quincy's wrestling team wrapped up a fine season with a strong showing in last weekend's state championships at Chelmsford High.

The Presidents had one champion and a total of four wrestlers making the semifinals as they finished 11th among 22 teams in Division I.

Al Souza, who wasn't sure he would ever wrestle again last year, won the 130-pound championship as he finished the season at 29-0 overall.

He defeated Brockton's Pat Sainsurina, 11-2, in the championship match.

In the semifinals Souza pinned Longmeadow's Mike Dullen in 3:35.

Souza dislocated his knee three times a year ago and was told by doctors he shouldn't wrestle again. That didn't deter the Presidents' ace who won the South Sectional title at 119 pounds as a sophomore.

Souza was encouraged by Quincy trainer Al Roncarati and coach Lou Venturini and became the third Quincy grappler in history to win a state crown. The other titles came in 1978 and 1984.

"I thought he tried a risky move in the first period, a throw, in the championship match," third-year coach Venturini said. "It was worth five points. It was an exciting move, but I was nervous at first.

"He's a technician. He knows his moves well and is a hard worker. He also is in very good shape."

Quincy's other three semifinalists were Brian Burgess, who lost to Randolph's Jeff Azer, 7-1, at 171 pounds; Paul McCormack, who lost to Brockton's Mike Berarelli, 7-2, in the same weight class, and Tony Cussos of Central Catholic, 6-3, in the heavy weight division.

Chelmsford won the team title with 116½ points, followed by Agawam, 116; Brockton, 115; Westfield, 80½, and Randolph's South Sectional champions, 76.

Mite House

Balducci Tops Lydon-Russell

Balducci's defeated Lydon-Russell, 5-3, in Mite House League action.

Paul Markarian had two goals and Joshua Silverman, Matt Flynn and Matt Kane one each. Jesse Winter had two assists and Matt Flynn, Paul Flynn and Markarian one each. For Lydon Ryan Kreuger, Mike Sullivan and Mike Fitzpatrick scored the goals and Pam Sullivan, Brian Nolan and John Barron had assists.

The Paul Harold Club edged N.V. Survey Assoc., 4-3, as Derek McTomney scored twice and Brian Correia and Didier Alther once each. Spide Bertucci, McTomney, Nick Pizziferri and Sean Slatery had assists. Shawn Manning had two goals and Jim Sullivan one for Survey. Sullivan had two assist and Manning one.

Rogan Hennessy topped Purdy's Ice Cream, 3-2, on goals by Sean Garvey, Billy Connolly and Mark Hawes. Bob Harvey had an assist. Pat Grogan and Mark Foster scored for Purdy's and Matt Allen and Foster had assists.

In earlier games Purdy's defeated N.V. Survey, 3-1.

Mark Foster, Matt Allen and Chris Cullen scored the goals and Tom Sullivan and Foster had assists. Shawn Manning scored for Survey with Jacob Fleming assisting.

Lydon-Russell topped Rogan Hennessy, 5-3, as Matt Hill had two goals and Mike Welch, Jeff Glynn and Brian Nolan one each. Pat McGann and Glynn had two assists apiece and Nolan, Andrew Nestor and Hill one each. Sean Haidul scored twice and Billy Connolly once for Rogan and Bill Norris, Bob Harvey and Ryan Murray had assists.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We would like to share this poem with you from "The Sword of the Lord" entitled "Good Cheer."
"Ain't it fine today?"
Sure, this world is full of trouble;
I ain't said it ain't.

D. Scott Deware

Lord, I've had enough and double
Reasons for complaint.
Rain and storm have come to fret me,
Slaves were often gray;
Thorns and brambles have beset me
On the road ... but, say -
Ain't it fine today?
It's today that I am livin' -
Not a month ago.
Hoping, lovin', takin', givin',
As time wills it so.
Yesterday - a cloud of sorrow,
Fell across the way.
It may rain - but, say -
Ain't it fine today?

Do you ever catch y' self complaining about your health when you really don't feel that bad or the weather just because the rain ruined your day's plans? If so, would today be just the day to start with a fresh new attitude instead of looking at yesterday's failures, or tomorrow's worries? Remember it is TODAY we are living, and that's just as fine as we will make it.

pledged to get the necessary votes for City Council approval.

"The people of West Quincy have suffered long enough with water and sewer problems. This bond issue will fund the improvements needed to eliminate the long-standing sewer problems," Fabrizio said.

"This action clearly makes my recent vote on the new sewer user fee more acceptable to the people of West Quincy. Very simply, they will have to pay an additional fee, but their problems will finally be solved," he said.

The wastewater collection system in West Quincy serves approximately 8,010 residents with a piping network that includes 24.9 miles of gravity sewer ranging in size from 8 to 18 inches in diameter. It has been found that the main interceptor sewer portion of the system lacks the capacity to adequately serve the needs of the community.

The main reason for the lack of capacity is due to large volumes of infiltration and inflow within the system. This lack of capacity has resulted in sewer backups and overflows in portions of the system.

In some cases, the surcharging and overflowing have caused basement floodings resulting in property damage and health hazards.

Both Sheets and Fabrizio agree that with the study complete and pending environmental approvals, it is imperative that funding be put in place to make certain the work gets done.

At this time, the entire project will be bonded, Sheets said. The city has applied for state reimbursement, he added.

As a former Ward 4 councillor who served for 16 years, Sheets said the project represents "the fruition of years of effort and planning."

Club Must Replace Trees

says, the stream's flow was interrupted and abutters began experiencing flooding where they never did before. The natural covering for the wildlife habitat was destroyed as well.

However, neighbors are also concerned because the trees provided a natural buffer zone between their homes and the lights and noise of the club.

"People come to my house now and say that they never knew I was so close to the Neighborhood Club," says Stephen Moynihan of 47 Sturtevant Rd. "There's no barrier any more. There used to be a woody barrier."

Moynihan also said that some neighbors have had severe flooding on their property. He said the Joseph McCadden family at 55 Sturtevant Rd. has had to have a pump to get rid of excess water on that property.

As part of the order of conditions, the club has also been directed to build a fence as a temporary buffer zone and to build an earthen berm to be placed along the edge of the existing parking lot to prevent further flooding damage to abutters.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan says he hopes the club will adhere to the conditions. "They went about it in a very bad way," Phelan said. "They have a lot of patching up to do with the neighbors."

Phelan, in whose ward the club is located, has been involved in the matter from the beginning, along with Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien who has a degree in forestry, and Councillor-at-Large Patricia Toland.

The neighbors say that they are not angry at the Neighborhood Club, but rather view the situation as an unfortunate mistake.

"I'm not happy that they have to spend all that money," Moynihan says, "I really feel sorry for the management and the club members... but they didn't come to the neighborhood before they did the work."

"I'm upset with the way the Neighborhood Club went about it," Dr. John Dalton of Sturtevant Rd. agreed. "I think they should have consulted the neighbors... but if they follow through on the order of conditions, then I'm happy with that."

According to the order of conditions, the club must submit a plot plan to the Commission by March 20 which will plot the exact location and species of the trees to be replaced. Sargent says that it should be as close to the natural plot as possible. The trees must be planted no later than June 15.

with Chief Finn in my 16 years as Ward 4 Councillor."

In speaking with Finn, Sheets said the former chief has mixed feelings about retiring.

"I'm sure he would like to see the computerization and accreditation completed. I'm sure he'll miss the police work and miss having the challenges."

"But, I'm also sure he can retire knowing he's done a good job. I'm sure he can retire with pride. With any retirement, you feel like you're leaving a part of your life behind so I think he has mixed feelings."

For Outstanding Community Service

Clara Yeomans Honored As Quincy Sun's Citizen Of Year

Clara Yeomans, a long-time environmental activist was honored Sunday as the 1989 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year."

The fifth annual award was presented at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by nearly 100 persons, including family members, city officials and friends.

Established in 1985, the Sun Citizen of the Year Award honors an individual for outstanding community service or for a special achievement.

Senator Paul Harold was emcee at the reception. Speakers were Mayor Sheets, City Council President Ted DeCristofaro and Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth.

Bosworth presented Yeomans, now a freelance natural resources consultant to the community's schools, clubs and organizations, with a clock plaque as The Sun's 1989 Citizen of the Year for her "dedication and untiring efforts to protect and preserve the environment."

Bosworth told Yeomans the clock is symbolic for "the many, many hours" she has given helping to preserve and protect our environment and "respecting every blade of grass."

A companion presentation, a framed copy of a special Quincy Sun Page One telling of Yeoman's selection as Citizen of the Year was made to her by Sun Editor Robert Bosworth. Extra copies were distributed to those in attendance.

Yeomans also received words of praise from Mayor Sheets and Council President Ted DeCristofaro. Both presented her with special commendations.

Landfill Capping Extension Sought

The City Council has asked the commissioner of Public Works and the city solicitor to seek an extension regarding the time frame to cap and fill the closed West Quincy landfill.

The entire cost, which could total $4 million, could be reduced by a compost program, councilors said. The program is expected to begin this fall.

However, the city has been ordered by the state to fill and cap the West Quincy landfill by Nov. 15. Since it takes about 12 months for leaves to turn into compost, the city would not be able to use any compost to fill the landfill next spring.

Several councilors asked DPW Commissioner David Colton to seek an extension. He replied that the city has already received several extensions and doubted the state would grant another.

However, Ward 1 Councilor Michael Cheney said the city could argue from an environmental standpoint. He reasoned that the state should allow more time because the compost program would result in less waste in the waste stream.

Cheney then asked City Solicitor Stephen McGrath whether the city can go back in court and delay the capping.

McGrath said the city can go back but he doubted the original court order will change that much.

Although the city would save money and reduce its waste stream with a compost program, McGrath said "There might not be a lot of sympathy for that point of view."

Still, the solicitor said the extension is worth pursuing.

The discussion over the delay generated over a $457,000 appropriation. The money, which the council approved 7-0, will cover the costs to cap the landfill's plateau which must be done in June.

The project also entails placing an impermeable liner on the top of the 40-acre plateau. Drainage material and loam will also be placed on the plateau and grass will be planted.

Last fall, the cost to cap the plateau was estimated at $600,000 last fall. The entire cost was projected at $4 million.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city's three largest departments are slated to lose a combined 84 employees by June 30 and Mayor James A. Sheets predicts many more could follow if the state's financial crisis continues.

The layoffs represent as many as 55 school department positions, three police superior officers, 11 patrolmen and 15 firefighters.

The school department, which must reduce its current $38 million budget by $2.2 million before FY 1991 begins July 1, will probably lose 40 teachers. They include eight from the elementary level, five from the middle school grades and six from the high school level.

The schools will also lose between 13 and 15 staff positions and a nurse. Other layoffs pertain to specialized teaching such as art, music, foreign language, computer education and vocational education.

The lost teaching jobs will increase class size, perhaps up to between 30 and 35 students per classroom. Sheets said the average class size now is less than 30.

Besides the fire department layoffs, two ladder trucks, one from Houghs Neck and the other from West Quincy, are being deactivated. That will leave the city with three ladders: one each at Central Headquarters and the Wollaston and North Quincy stations.

On Tuesday, Acting Police Chief Paul Nestor presented Sheets with his budget recommendations. They include laying off three superior officers and 11 patrolmen.

Both the police and fire departments must cut approximately $600,000 from their present budgets.

Explaining the reductions, Sheets said he believes the state financial crisis will get worse during the next few months. He said that the state's budget deficit for FY 1990, now estimated at between $600 and $750 million, will likely be $1 billion by June 30.

If that happens, the mayor said Gov. Michael Dukakis will likely withhold more local aid which could be devastating to Quincy.

"My sense is that the governor is going to be looking at a $1 billion deficit on June 30. He'll probably cut local aid and that means Quincy could end up with between a five and eight million deficit.

"If that happens, then you're talking about closing a fire station," he added.

Sheets based his grim forecast on the reluctance of lawmakers to adopt a tax package and the governor's continued denial of a large deficit. Some legislators, such as Richard Voke, chairman of

Sheets Creates Ward 1 Environmental Committee

Mayor James Sheets has created an Environmental Ad Hoc Committee for Ward 1 to be comprised of six members.

According to Ward 1 Councilor Peter Kolson, the committee will be responsible for bringing any environmental concern in that area of Quincy to him. Kolson, in turn, will inform the mayor.

The six members will be appointed by Sheets from a list compiled by Kolson. The appointment carries a two-year term. No one has been appointed yet, Kolson said Tuesday.

Among the environmental concerns the committee will focus on are coastal debris, oil the area's marshes.

and the city planner have unveiled a plan which would restructure several acres of land behind the DPW's storage yard.

The plan, announced by DPW Commissioner David Colton and City Planner Michael Wheelwright, would revitalize and utilize the space to its fullest potential.

The plan was unveiled at a recent meeting with Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and the Quincy Conservation Commission.

Approximately one acre of the land is to be set aside for composting. The plan also calls for various storage areas for numerous construction materials.

Officials anticipate that the proposed composting site will prove beneficial to the recycling program initiated by Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the Quincy Recycling Committee.

Kolson, a member of the committee, said, "I am hopeful that this will be a very positive step in promoting the commitment that Mayor Sheets has set forth in his goal to work with the Recycling Committee and to reorganize the city's efforts to reach that goal."

Public Safety Committee To Meet On Mothballing 2 Fire Ladder Trucks

The City Council Public Safety Committee will meet Monday, March 12 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers to discuss the proposed deactivation of two fire department ladder trucks.

Because of budget restraints, Chief Paul O'Connell has decided to sideline Ladder 3, an 85-foot aerial tower located at the West Quincy station, and Tower 1, a 100-foot tower, located at the Houghs Neck station.

The deactivation of these apparatus and reassignments of personnel will take effect later this month.

The meeting has been called by Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, chairman of the Public Safety Committee; Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

With the restructuring, the three remaining aerial trucks in service will be Ladder 1, located at Central Headquarters, 40 Quincy Ave.,

Ladder 2 at the Wollaston Fire Station and Ladder 5 at the North Quincy Fire Station.

"This deployment of the aerial trucks is the best possible solution to a very serious situation which is caused by a lack of manpower, contributing to a reduction in the amount of apparatus in service," O'Connell told councillors in a recent letter.

Tobin Asks For Summit Session On Fiscal Problems

Rep. Steve Tobin has asked Mayor James Sheets to convene an economic summit meeting comprised of the city's Congressional delegation, state legislators and local officials as a way to propose solutions for the financial difficulties brought on by the multi-million dollar Boston Harbor cleanup.

In a letter to the mayor dated March 5, Tobin said the summit would allow federal, state and local officials to appeal to the Bush Administration for federal money to help pay for the cleanup.

"We need to prevail upon the federal government to provide the financial means to clean Boston Harbor. Quincy taxpayers cannot be expected to pay for the clean-up of a harbor which has been polluted by industry, commerce and shipping," Tobin said.

Among the proposals the officials could discuss are:

- Federal legislation to grant up to $7 billion over the next 10 years to pay for the harbor cleanup.

- Restructuring of EPA guidelines to allow for advanced primary treatment of sewerage as opposed to secondary treatment at an estimated $1.5 billion to taxpayers.

- Direct federal subsidies to communities to forestall teacher layoffs, cutbacks in school programs and proposed school closings.

- Obtaining commitments from the Bush Administration to aid Quincy financially as a model of federal educational assistance to needy communities.

"Though there may be other proposals we could add to this list, we should avoid advocating for new taxes and emphasize our desire to prioritize education. These goals are the stated priorities of the Bush Administration and ought to be ours as well," Tobin said.

The representative also said a summit meeting should "forge a coalition of interests which could prove invaluable during negotiations with the MWRA for concessions and considerations to combat reductions in teachers, public safety and public health."

Tobin asked that the meeting be convened at the earliest possible date.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he will sit down with the city's legislative delegation within the next 10 days. He will discuss with them the idea of forging a coalition with lawmakers representing the 43 cities and towns within the MWRA's district.

The mayor said this "legislative clout" could lessen the burden for municipalities saddled with the cost of the harbor cleanup. The cleanup represents one of the largest sewer projects in the world.

Neighborhood Club Appeals On Trees Replacement

By JANE ARENA

The Neighborhood Club has filed a request with the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), for a superceding order to the conditions issued by the Quincy Conservation Commission.

The request was filed March 1 by Atty. Dennis E. Harrington who will be handling the appeal process for the club, according to Atty. John Corcoran, spokesman and general counsel for the Neighborhood Club.

The Conservation Commission had issued an order of conditions for work done by the club in October. The club cut down 150 trees to expand its parking lot and did so without the prior approval of the Commission.

The action, the Commission said, had serious effects on bordering vegetated wetlands and was found to be in violation of both the state Wetlands Protection Act and the city Wetlands Ordinance.

The order of conditions denied any subsequent expansion of the parking lot by a lesser amount and also directed that all the trees be replaced in as close to the natural configuration as possible.

Because the trees were mature, Conservation Enforcement Officer Heather Sargent had estimated that it would be another 20 years before the wooded area was back to what it once was. The cost of the replication was estimated at $25,000.

In addition, the club was directed to erect a fence to serve as a temporary buffer zone between the club and nearby homes on Sturtevant Rd. The trees had provided a natural buffer zone, shielding the homes from the lights and noise of the club.

The act of cutting down the trees also disturbed an intermittent stream, causing flooding to nearby property and, according to the Conservation Commission, may have a future effect in the groundwater level in the area. The order of conditions leaves room for a groundwater study in the future.

The club was also directed to expand catchbasins and install gas traps on the existing parking lot to prevent further drainage problems to abutters.

The club has raised objections on each of those points with the DEP.

Corcoran said that the DEP has a period of 70 days to review the request for a superceding order and make its decision. In the meantime, he said, "everything freezes."

However, the Conservation Commission does not necessarily agree.

The Commission maintains that the City Wetlands Protection ordinance should also have been appealed, perhaps at the same time as the state appeal.

According to Mary Ann Lencky, secretary of the Conservation Commission, the city ordinance is still in effect because it has not been appealed. Therefore, the club is still obligated to follow the order of conditions imposed by the Commission and the clock is still ticking on those conditions. They have only a matter of 30 days to follow those conditions.

Lencky, with the help of the Conservation Law Foundation, drafted the city Wetlands Protection on the local level.

No one has ever appealed the local ordinance before, Lencky said. Any time it was imposed people have accepted it and gone along with the imposed conditions, she explained.

James Kelley Named To Planning Board

Mayor James Sheets announces the appointment of James F. Kelley of 63 Vershire St. to a five year term on the Planning Board.

Kelley, a Registered Professional Engineer, will replace Kathy Roberts who the mayor praised for her work and dedication.

Kelley is retired from the Massachusetts Department of Public Works as Director of all maintenance activities for the Division of Highway Maintenance.

Long involved in community affairs, Kelley was involved in the Traffic 2000 Study which examined traffic problems in the city and made recommendations for their relief.

Kelley was also a former member of the Mayor's Traffic Task Force in 1984 and 1985. In addition, he has prepared several papers on issues including traffic safety, highway maintenance and the use of salt in Massachusetts and its effect on the environment.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, Kelley is past president of the Montclair Men's Club and is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Quincy Citizens Association.

Kelley is married to the former Mary E. Kelly, is the father of four children and has 12 grandchildren.

Siciliano Named Acting Director

Mayor James Sheets has appointed Tony Siciliano Acting Director of Quincy Civil Defense.

The appointment, effective immediately, will continue until a permanent police chief is appointed.

Chief Francis X. Finn, who also served as Civil Defense director, has resigned.

Sheets said he will appoint a new police chief by mid-June. Once the appointment is made, Siciliano will return to his position as deputy director.

He has served as the city's Civil Defense deputy director for 10 years. He was appointed to the position in 1980.

McCauley's Not Running

Former Mayor Francis McCauley spikes reports he is planning to run for Norfolk County treasurer this year.

"I've heard that rumor," he says. "But there's nothing to it. I'm not running for Norfolk County treasurer or any other office this year."

Another office he is not running for this year is state auditor.

Republican State Committee

SHAMIE

Chairman Ray Shamie has asked him to consider running for that post but McCauley told him "thanks, but no thanks."

If McCauley had run for county treasurer it would have been a political rematch with incumbent Treasurer Dan Raymond.

McCauley and Raymond squared off in the 1981 mayoral race with McCauley winning 18,037 to 12,222.

But that was a non-partisan election and county elections are partisan. And, Norfolk County is a Democratic stronghold.

McCauley hasn't completely divorced himself from the political scene. He has been helping to line up delegates for GOP gubernatorial candidate William Weld. McCauley is a Weld delegate himself and will be at the GOP state convention Saturday at the World Trade Center in Boston.

Meanwhile, he has been staying busy with his income tax preparation business and teaching American government at Quincy Junior College.

The latter is a bit of a switch. He's teaching one of the courses his successor as mayor, James Sheets, taught at JQC.

He also has his real estate sales license and might dabble in that field.

But when he says he is not running for any office this year, does that mean he might next year?

"Well, you never close the door on anything," he says. "Not in politics, certainly." But I don't see 1991 as a terribly exciting political year.

In fact, he says, "Jim Sheets could be unopposed for mayor next year."

McCAULEY

The last incumbent mayor to run unopposed was McCauley himself in 1983. And the last -- and only other one before him -- was Thomas Burgin in 1940.

THIS IS SORT of an all-in-the-family item.

Kathleen Coletta Stefani received her state police corporal stripes Sunday at ceremonies at the Framingham State Police Academy where she graduated 12 years ago as the first woman to complete that course.

KATHLEEN

She grew up in Quincy, the daughter of Jerry and Margaret Coletta. Pop is chief executive assistant to Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt. So, she's sort of following in his law enforcement shoes and that has sort of become a family affair.

Kathleen's husband is Staff Sgt. Michael Stefani, station commander at the Norwell State Police barracks.

And, Kathleen's brother, Chip, is a state trooper at the Framingham barracks.

Kathleen is a fingerprint expert assigned to the Middleboro barracks whose expertise recently figured in a conviction in a Brockton murder case.

Kathleen and Mike have two children, Mike, 4, and Bridget, 6, who might just someday keep the family tradition going.

BRABAZON

LOUISE BRABAZON, popular City Hall figure for a quarter of a century will be leaving this year. Now administrative assistant to the City Council, she plans to retire Sept. 1.

She came to City Hall in 1966 as Mayor James McIntyre's personal secretary.

And in his final year (1970) as mayor before becoming counsel to the state Senate, she served as executive secretary.

You Can Now Register Anywhere To Vote

A new voter registration law now allows eligible Massachusetts residents to register to vote anywhere in the state; at any city or town hall, and at any special registration sessions held at work sites, colleges or other locations.

"This law is an important first step toward making the registration process easier, especially for working people," said Secretary of State Michael Connolly, the state's chief election official and co-sponsor of the new law.

"With the hustle of getting to and from work and dealing with all the other day to day tasks we face, many working men and women just don't have time to appear at their home city or town clerk's office, during regular business hours, to register to vote.

"Making the process more convenient can only increase voter registration throughout the Commonwealth."

The law calls for city and town clerks to forward the registration forms for out of town registrants to their home towns, where they will be added to the local rolls.

Urges Fair Tax Package

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Quincy Mayor James Sheets has proposed a sewer user fee because the city faces the prospects of an estimated $15 million deficit in fiscal 1991. If the fee measure failed, Sheets said there would be 13.7 percent cuts in city services across-the-board. Two-thirds of the fee revenue would go directly to the MWRA to cover assessments.

Quincy is the only community in the MWRA district without such a fee and, apparently, a majority of the Quincy City Council agrees with the mayor that a sewer fee is necessary whether we like it or not. City Councillor Tom Nutley from Ward Six opposes the fee saying, "We're all too busy wiping up the flood (current deficit) to remember to turn off the faucet (future deficit). We can't go on like the state spending more than we take in."

As a fiscal conservative and an opponent of the liberal tax and spend philosophy up on Beacon Hill, I understand where Nutley is coming from but I don't believe he fully comprehends the state's fiscal crisis. Cities and towns have already begun to feel the sting of cuts in local aid. Quincy which depends on local aid to supplement much of the city budget faces cuts in areas of child care, programs for battered women, housing, The Gateway Cities program which is assisting recent Asian immigrants acclimating themselves to their new community, job placement, prenatal care and preventative health care education.

To date, drastic cuts in the state budget have only denied the financial shortfall while jeopardizing the quality of life down to intolerable levels. As the protracted debate on the need for new tax revenue continues, many wonder how long the crisis can continue.

Kudos to state Sen. Bill Golden (D-Weymouth) for all his efforts at protecting local aid and for saying, "We can't allow the state to pass the buck and create a new crisis for cities and towns" and to Frank Doyle, Boston's director of state relations who stated, "We are driven by inflation, we are driven by the cost of new contracts, and we are driven by escalating health insurance rates. The problems that the state faces we face, and it can't just walk away from cities and towns in difficult times."

One possible solution held up by Sen. Golden is for the state to guarantee 40 percent of all personal and corporate income and sales taxes and all of the lottery revenues to local aid as one possible option for financially-strapped municipalities.

As a fiscal conservative I do not support higher taxes as a general principle but cities and towns are caught between a rock and a hard place and in a vulnerable position. Municipalities are limited in their ability to raise revenue. Fees, licenses and property taxes are about it and Proposition 2.5 limits the amount by which local governments can raise the property tax to 2.5 percent annually. Since inflation increases, on the average, 4 percent each year, the law places communities like Quincy at the mercy of the ever-shrinking local tax revenue. Up until now, state aid to local governments has offset the inflation rates with infusions of local aid monies (The state even pledged in 1982 to donate 40 percent of all new revenues to local government) but those were the good old days when everyone believed Massachusetts was miracle land.

As Massachusetts enters the 90s on the down slide, cities and towns are being hurt by the fiscal crisis—years in the making up—on Beacon Hill. How many more programs can be cut before people are really hurt, how long before our legislative leaders realize—whether they like it or not—that their Anti-Tax attitude can only help make matters worse? How long before Massachusetts starts looking like some third world nation mired in misery? Our political leaders have to get off their duffs, make more moderate cuts and then advocate for more tax revenues to sustain needed services in the 351 cities and towns of the Commonwealth.

The bottom line for municipalities is how to provide basic services like public education, public safety and public works without public monies. Please urge your state legislators to pass a fair and equitable tax package to end the paralysis of government and provide for the Commonwealth.

Cut Jobs, Not Services To The Disabled

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
How many readers were appalled at the newspaper and TV pictures of Barbara Burt and her mentally retarded foster son who were forced to drag themselves into the governor's office to have state aid restored to them?

And what about the picture of the wheel-bound young woman who appeared before the first meeting of the budget sessions? How humiliating for all concerned—those afflicted and those who are struggling to take care of them.

These scenes were brought about by the governor's proposed budget and the suggested cuts in MADA (Medicaid Assistance for disabled adults). Cuts have to be made. But, before deciding what should be axed, I ask our legislators to go over every line of the budget before cutting MADA. If jobs have to be cut, so be it. It is more humane to cut jobs than services to the disabled, the experience of looking for a job is nothing compared to the pain and anxiety of afflicted people who are now threatened with a cut-off of services.

I hope our legislators will think well about the havoc they will create in the lives of these disabled people if they do not strike the suggested cuts from the governor's budget. These benefits were meant to make life a trifle more bearable for those who already live lives of quiet desperation.

Place Mandatory Recycling On The Ballot?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
In response to Councillor Chretien's reply to my recent letter, would he agree to place the question of mandatory recycling on the ballot in a binding referendum? I would be willing to abide by the vote of the people of Quincy. Would he?

In the event that he pushes his plan through, is he willing to foot the bill to enlarge all our kitchens to hold the extra trash buckets we'd all need, and will he pay for those buckets? What fate awaits those of us who disobey his order? Perhaps a Trash Gulag?

As regards his characterization of me, I greatly prefer having the mindset of an American patriot like Senator McCarthy to having the collectivist mentality of a Joe Stalin which compels "the greatest good for the greatest number" and to hell with free choice.

I am said to hold "an extremist view of freedom." To me the most treasured freedom we have, and the one our forefathers founded this nation upon, is the freedom to be let alone by government. Barry Goldwater said, "Extremism in the defense of freedom is no vice."

William Buckley once remarked that the expansion of government control is "a form of eating to politicians." It is our job to put them on a diet.

Daffodil Days Raise Over $100,000 To Fight Cancer

Dennis Sweeney is going a bit "daffy" this time of year. As in daffodils, that is.

The owner of the Sweeney Funeral Homes of Quincy and his wife, Pauline, co-chair the annual Daffodil Days fundraising event for The American Cancer Society.

The extremely successful campaign began in 1984 and the tremendous success for the Quincy-Milton (now South Shore) unit has been largely due to the efforts of the Sweeneys.

When the unit was formed in Quincy in 1983, Dennis was asked to serve on the board of directors. Since his father Joseph had died of cancer in 1977, the ACS was a charity close to his heart.

The Daffodil Days idea was introduced to the unit that year and while it was originally aimed at large sales to corporations, Dennis thought to offer them to Quincy and Milton citizens and arrange to have them delivered.

The concept was an immediate success; people could contribute to a worthy cause and have flowers delivered to their homes.

The first year netted $33,000. Last year was up to $28,000 for a six year total of $101,550. During the past six years, 29,000 bouquets of daffodils have been delivered.

All across the city people call in orders to the Sweeney Funeral Homes to send daffodils to friends and relatives and celebrate the "first day of spring." Sweeney DAFFODIL DAYS Co-Chairmen Dennis and Pauline Sweeney have been busy taking orders for this year's daffodil days March 20 and 21. They are optimistic that their goal of $47,000 will be reached.

said, "Our territory has expanded this year to seven other South Shore towns because of restructuring of the unit. The volunteers who help us are fantastic. We should reach our goal of $47,000," he said.

The orders are in. Daffodil Days are set for March 20-21 when the first flowers of spring will be popping-up all over.

How To Protect You And Your Car

Even the most careful driver can be faced with an emergency situation. Use common sense and these tips to help protect yourself from danger:

- If you car should break down and you are not near enough to one of your safe spots, follow these steps:
- Get off the roadway, out of the path of oncoming traffic, even if you have to drive on a flat tire. The tire is replaceable.
- Turn on your emergency flashers. If you have emergency flares in your trunk, position them conspicuously.
- Raise the hood and tie a handkerchief to the antenna or door handle.
- If a roadside telephone or call-box is handy, use it. If not, sit in your LOCKED car and wait for help.
- If a motorist stops to render assistance, its better to remain in the car, and ask him/her to get help. Ask them to call the local police to assist you. (Likewise if you see a stranded motorist, its better not to stop. Call the police).
- If you think you are being followed, don't drive home. You would only be telling the follower where you live.
- Stay calm. As long as you think clearly you'll be in control of the situation.
- Flash your lights and sound your horn long enough to attract attention to you, and consequently the person following you.
- Drive to one of your already identified safe spots, sounding your horn and flashing your lights. Do not leave this safe location until your sure your follower is gone.
- REMEMBER, you are your best protection. If you follow these steps, you'll be protecting the most important part of your car -- YOU!

PROTECTING YOURSELF

Common sense will generally steer you clear of the very infrequent dangerous situations:

- Always lock your car doors while driving, and roll windows up far enough to keep anyone from reaching inside.
- At stop signs and lights keep the car in gear and stay alert.
- Travel well-lighted busy streets. You can spare those extra minutes it may take to avoid an unsafe area.
- Keep your purse and other valuables out of sight, even when you are driving in your locked car.
- Park in safe, well lighted areas near your destination.
- ALWAYS LOCK YOUR CAR, even for a short absence. And before unlocking your car quickly check to make sure no one is hiding on your seats or floors, front and back.
- NEVER pick up a hitch-hiker. Even the most harmless looking stranger can be dangerous. Don't find out.
- When you arrive home, leave your headlights on until you have the car in the garage and the house door unlocked. If you can have a remote control garage door opener installed, it will allow you to remain in your locked car until you are safely inside your locked garage.
- Check the daily routes you travel and pick out safe spots, 24 hour stores, gas stations, convenience stores and police and fire stations. If trouble should arise, drive straight to one of these locations.

A SPECIAL FRONT PAGE of The Quincy Sun telling the story of Clara Yeomans' selection as the 1989 Sun "Citizen Of The Year" is presented to her by Sun Editor Robert Bosworth.

Clara Yeomans Honored As Sun Citizen Of Year

Among those attending Sunday's reception were three of the four previous award recipients.

They are: Ruth Wainwright, community volunteer; Thomas Koch, executive secretary for Mayor James Sheets, who represented his father, the late Richard J. Koch Sr. who was honored posthumously two years ago; and last year's winner, Martin Finnegan, director of Athletics for Quincy Public Schools and the coordinator of Project Impact, a program designed to help youngsters deal with drug, alcohol and other problems.

Tony Siciliano, acting director of Quincy Civil Defense and the first Sun Citizen of the Year, was unable to attend.

Yeomans was selected from among 37 nominations submitted by Quincy Sun readers. The final selection was made by a panel of nine judges.

Accepting the award, Yeomans said she has enjoyed her work in trying to preserve and protect the environment. She also said much more work has to be done to educate the citizenry because Earth is the only discovered livable planet.

"Whatever we do for the environment, we do for human beings," she said. "There's not a planet discovered yet that's livable except for ours and we haven't been taking very good care of it."

"But in protecting the environment, I have come into contact with so many wonderful people I feel so much a part of the human race because of the sympathy and the love and the consideration that everybody has afforded me that I feel so rich and so guilty because having been brought up a Polish, New England, Roman Catholic, all of those particular credos say that you're supposed to suffer before you get an award."

"Now, who's been suffering," she said, drawing laughter from the crowd.

For nearly 40 years, Yeomans has been an environmental activist and a member of many environmental protection and preservation groups.

She is a charter member and former executive secretary of the Quincy Conservation Commission established in 1965. The commission initiated action to acquire an 80-acre strip of privately owned land in the Black's Creek open space area with state and federal reimbursement of 75 percent. This gave Quincy an invaluable complex of open space for citizen enjoyment and saltmarsh preservation.

In 1972, Yeomans was appointed executive secretary of the Conservation Commission and received an annual salary of $5,240. She served in that capacity until 1981 when the position became a casualty of Proposition 2 and a half.

Since then, she has been a freelance consultant to the community's schools, clubs and organizations.

Other committees and groups she has been a member of include: the Five Year Open Space Planning Committee; Save Our Shores and the Quincy Quarries Acquisition Committee.

She has also been involved in school programs, educating students from elementary schools up to Quincy Junior College.

"She has touched all ages and taught all ages respect for the environment. Clara has been doing her thing for over 30 years, most of it unpaid," Bosworth noted.

"She was speaking back then when environmentalists were considered by many as obstructionists to progress but who time proved were quite on target with their concerns," he added.

Although progress has been made, Yeomans said people must continue to preserve the environment and take care of planet Earth. She mentioned the city's curbside paper recycling program which is expected to branch out to include other materials.

"There's so many things we have to do that don't hurt in order to make this planet livable. There's so many careless people in this democracy," she said, adding that "every shoulder to the wheel is a help."

"And when you begin helping, then you meet all the other fine people who are helping and your life is so tremendously enriched that it's, well, it makes one feel guilty because so much more comes back than goes out in consideration, in kindness, in love (and) in sharing."

Yeomans thanked all the people she has been in touch with and all the associations and friends she has made.

"I just can't get over how lucky I am. I thank you all very, very much."

Yeomans was nominated by Corinne Mitchell of Wollaston who was a special guest at Sunday's reception. In nominating her, Mitchell said,

"Clara has worked tirelessly through the years to preserve and protect our environment and to educate our citizenry."

"She has volunteered her time and energy to many organizations among which are the League of Women Voters, Quincy Conservation Commission, Save Our Shores, Friends of the Blue Hills and many others at a time when an understanding of our resources is so important."

Permission Sought To Sell Flowers At FR Rotary

The License Board Tuesday placed on file a request from Jim Clifford of Clifford's Florist, Quincy Sq., for a license to sell flowers at the Fore River rotary on 3A on weekends.

The board told Atty. Carl Johnson, representing Clifford, that it does not have jurisdiction over the issuance of hawker's and peddler's licenses. According to Matthias Mulvey, acting chairman of the board in the absence of John Gillis, who is on vacation, the Sealer of Weights and Measures issues those licenses.

Mulvey explained that both a state and local permit are needed in order to sell wares on the street. He said that under the state hawker's license the seller must keep moving, stopping only to make transactions.

Johnson told the board that Clifford, a Quincy businessman who employs local people in his shop, would sell flowers there primarily near holiday weekends. His own employees would be in charge of the operation, he said.

Mulvey explained that since May of last year, the board has worked closely with the police department in an effort to "clean up the junk vendors in the city."

The board's reasoning was to protect local businesses from outside vendors who come to the city only on weekends. The board also aimed to clean up the city aesthetically, he explained.

According to Mulvey, there are now about one percent of the vendors that there were in May of last year.

According to Mulvey, Clifford could set up a stationary shop at the location under zoning by-laws and would then only need a building permit. He said that as long as the zoning setbacks and requirements were met, he would not need a hawker's license for the operation.

Clifford said he would discuss the matter with the Building Department.

Speaking on behalf of Clifford, Councilor Timothy Cahill told the board that outside vendors are still operating at the rotary and that, because they have state hawker's permits, continue to operate there although they are not in compliance with city regulations. Cahill said that on one occasion, Clifford was asked by state police to leave the location, while hawkers from outside the city were allowed to stay. Local police, however, are instructed to remove vendors without a city permit.

"I agree 100 percent with the board's policy to clean up the city," Cahill said, "but flowers are different...flowers brighten up the city rather than detract from it."

Cahill suggested that an exception be made in city regulations to sell flowers.

Mulvey said Clifford could propose such an ordinance to the city if he chose.

In the meantime, Clifford said he would discuss the zoning matter with Mulvey to see about setting up a stationary shop at the location.

Sheets: 'We Should Consider Terminating Contract'

14 School Buses Ruled Unsafe

After a routine state inspection found 14 of Quincy's 22 school buses to be unsafe on Saturday, Mayor James Sheets, Chairman of the School Committee, said that the city should consider terminating its contract with the Ryder Student Bus Co.

This is the second time in two months that Ryder buses in Quincy have been failed by Registry inspection.

The defects, according to the Registry, are all safety-related, and included eight buses with faulty emergency brake systems, one bus with excessive smoke, two buses with faulty exhaust systems and one bus with a leak in the brake mechanism.

The buses were taken off the road and Ryder provided other buses to transport Quincy students this week.

However, School Superintendent Robert Ricci

faulted the Registry for not allowing maintenance workers to repair what he believed were minor defects and only involved six buses. Ricci planned to speak with Registry officials regarding their procedures in the matter.

The city's $600,000 contract with Ryder will expire in June. At that time the city can either drop the contract and seek bids for another, or renew it.

84 Will Face Layoffs In June

the House Ways and Means Committee, have pegged the deficit at close to $750 while Dukakis has insisted it is lower.

The mayor also said that tax revenue projections will be off because the economy "is deteriorating." Medicaid reimbursements are also taking a toll on the state budget.

Because the federal government is paying less, the state must pick up more of the reimbursement.

With revenue projections down and reimbursements up, Sheets said the governor will probably withhold aid to balance his own budget instead of bonding the debt.

The governor is required by the state Constitution to balance the state budget.

If Quincy loses another $5 to $8 million in aid, Sheets said he would ask the state to allow him to roll that debt into FY 1992. However, if denied, Sheets said another 150 to 160 municipal employees could be laid off.

Of that total, 80 would probably come from the school department and 52 from the fire and police departments.

The number of layoffs could be reduced by retirement incentive programs. The School Committee was expected to discuss an incentive program at Wednesday night's meeting.

Already, a sewer user fee has been passed which will raise about $9.5 million next year. The fee was introduced by Mayor Sheets in January as a means to offset a projected $15 million deficit in FY 1991.

The City Council approved the fee in February, thereby reducing the FY 1991 shortfall to $6 million. Sheets then ordered a six percent "across-the-board" cut in all city departments to balance the budget.

Commenting on the proposed cuts, Sheets said he does not want to impose them but there are no other options.

He noted that without the sewer user fee, the city would have experienced a devastating loss of employees and services. For example, the city would have had to close at least two fire stations if the fee had failed.

Sheets also said cutting the police budget is "frightening" because of Quincy's close proximity to Boston. Thus far this year, there have been 27 homicides on Boston streets.

He also noted a reduced fire budget will increase fire insurance premiums for homeowners.

Even if the governor withholds another $6 million in local aid, Sheets said he will not support a Proposition 2 and a half override because the measure is regressive and because that is what the governor wants.

"I'm firmly against a Proposition 2 and a half override. The governor wants to push the 351 cities and towns into a position where they are relying on property taxes (to fund their budgets)."

Without the proposition, Sheets said today's property taxes would be twice as much as 10 years ago.

When it was approved by voters in 1980, Proposition 2 and a half was designed to be supported by increased local aid. For most of the decade, Quincy received large amounts. However, the payments have begun to drop off at a time when the city faces increased costs, including its share for the $6 billion cleanup of Boston Harbor.

North Girls Lose To Durfee In EMass. Tourney

Ken Panaro's first year as head coach of North Quincy girls' basketball team came to a close last week when his team lost to heavily favored Durfee, 58-28, in the opening round of the Eastern Mass. tournament.

North, which had to wait until the final game to qualify, was the last-seeded team with a 12-8 record, while Durfee was seeded fourth with an 18-2 mark.

The North girls held their own in the first quarter, trailing only by an 11-8 score, but the Durfee girls held North to four points in the second quarter to take a 26-12 halftime lead.

Tara Miles paced North with 15 points, including two three-pointers, while Kerry Tolson and Joanna Rugnetta played fine defense. Tolson had six points and Rugnetta played a strong game and had six blocked shots.

"We really played well against a very strong team," said Panaro. "We had Durfee nervous when we came out with a triangle and two. They couldn't figure it out at first. But that four-point second quarter cost us the game."

"We had a very young team and went down there with mostly juniors and freshmen. We'll be even better next year."

North's appearance in the tournament was its sixth time in 10 years.

Quincy Girls' Hopes High For Next Year

The Quincy girls' basketball team finished the season recently with a 5-13 record, and coach Doug MacFarlane has good reason to look forward to next season with high hopes.

This season MacFarlane had nine veterans, only two of them seniors. His major losses will be Maureen Shea, Lisa Morrell and Marsha Goodman and other graduating seniors are Lisa Connolly, Violet Kambanis, Kathy Kane and Andrea Mohr.

The Quincy coach will have seven varsity veterans, all juniors, back, as well as every one of Coach Mary Holleran's junior varsity and several excellent prospects from coach Glenn McGhee's freshman squad.

"We will have an excellent nucleus next year," said MacFarlane. "Interest is at its peak and this year we had our largest turnout ever, 50 girls. I expect an even bigger turnout next year."

Girls' Softball Clinic To Be Held March 17

Boston College; and Barbara Webster, North Quincy High softball coach.

On N.E./Team USA 2 Quincy Women In Europe Hockey Tournament

Team New England/Team USA, a women's ice hockey team which includes two Quincy players, Sheila Graham and Karen Horrigan, will travel to Europe where it will defend its championship in the second annual Icebears Tournament.

Teams from Switzerland and Germany will compete against the N.E. team in the tournament, which will take place April 17 to 26.

Joining Graham and Horrigan will be Leslie Matthews of Stoughton, Randy Brooks of Easton, Paula Stanton of Revere, Kelly Conville of Weymouth, Jean Goodwin of Hyde Park, Terry Shea of Marshfield, Donna Duprey of Pepperell, Sharon Jenkins of Essex, Alex Estin of Boston and Allison Banano of Londonderry, N.H.

Graham is a former Quincy Sun newscaster.

Last year, New England outscored its opponents, 33-2, but the competition is expected to be stronger this year. The only team to score against N.E. last year was Dusseldorf, which played to a 2-2 overtime tie.

The trip will cost each player between $1,500 and $1,800 and they can try to get sponsors or pay for it themselves. It is up to each player.

"I am looking forward to going back there to meet my pen pals I met last year," said Graham. "The letters are great to read; it is sort of like a puzzle, just like mine probably are to them. It is something I am looking forward to, I can't explain it."

Anyone wishing to help the girls raise money for the trip or to get any more information on the tournament can call Sheila Graham at 461-1820, ext. 5069 days, or 328-7862 evenings.
